Capitalism Not Dead Yet, Mr. Touhy Sobbed. No Kowtow, Says Kang Teh. Book by Lindbergh, Sr.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

GEORGE H. MAINES announces:

"Senator Huey Long and Norman Thomas debate at Mecca Temple in New York City; subject, Capitalism is doomed and cannot now be saved by a redistribution of wealth, Thomas taking affirmative, Long negative, defending capitalism."

Norman Thomas may convince his audience, but history will take Senator Long's side. Military feudalism, having ruled Europe for many centuries, gave way to what is called "industrial and capitalistic feudalism." Such systems of government do not rise and fall quickly.

Long after today's little NRA, CWA, RFC and other alphabetical complications and remedies are forgotten, government of the world by modern feudalism of capitalistic and industrial intelligence will continue. This century will not see the end of it.

THE WORLD is always ruled by intelligence and power. Rulership resided once in the heavy club of the strongest, most intelligent savage, and then passed to organized government by kings and armies.

Just now, power is in accumulated dollars and in industrial science and organization. It may pass eventually to what is vaguely called "the general intelligence and the rights of man." But that is a long way off.

IN ILLINOIS Mr. Roger Touhy, called "Terrible Touhy," ruler of the underworld, expert kidnaper, goes to jail under a ninety-nine year sentence, with fifteen automobile loads of policemen accompanying him to the prison gates.

The super-gangster, head bowed, shoulders sagging, tears in his eyes, sobs in his throat, says:

"This is terrible."

It is terrible, of course. Ninety-nine years in jail, even though you may come out, as Touhy may, at the end of some thirty years, is a long time.

BUT KIDNAPING, fastening men's eyes and mouth with adhesive tape, tying their wrists and ankles with wire, torturing their relatives with anxiety, is also "terrible." It would hardly do to have all the "terribleness" on one side of the fence.

In California the people got tired of kidnaping, and, especially of torture, so two men that kidnaped and used burning paper to extort money will be hanged by the neck until they are dead. They, doubtless, think it is terrible, and it is.

THE NEW emperor of Manchuria, Kang Teh, ascends the throne declaring that everything is happening in accordance with "the will of Heaven," thanking "our neighbor, Japan," for Japanese help in "suppressing bandits and other threatening elements." Kang Teh found that Japan also worked in accordance with the will of Heaven.

He put his hand solemnly upon the altar of the great Manchu god Shang Ti, and bade farewell to that god humbly as he left his presence.

You would not want a more impressive ceremony, the young Emperor wearing a long robe of jet-black fox fur, golden yellow sash, with the imperial vest, an orchid, and a high black headdress. Crowns are not worn by Mongolian rulers.

This is Kang Teh's third inauguration as Emperor, twice in China, thrown out twice, now in Manchuria.

DURING THE coronation the Emperor, still young, calling upon his subjects—there are thirty millions of them, no small crowd—to study modern methods and forget some ancient ones, did away with an old rule, and omitted the "kowtow" that would have compelled all entering the sacred imperial presence to kneel and press their foreheads on the ground.

That Oriental custom, based on the belief that the divine emperor is everything, and even the greatest of his subjects nothing, is well described in a few words by Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth in her book, "Crowded Hours," published by Scribners.

MRS. LONGWORTH was taken to the forbidden city and the imperial gardens to see the Chinese dowager empress, a haughty, severe old lady, because she, then Miss Roosevelt, was the daughter of Theodore Roosevelt, ruler of a great nation.

She was carried through the imperial gardens, as was the empress, sitting in a golden chair, borne on men's shoulders As the two ladies talked, the well-known Chinese diplomat, Wu Ting Fang, translated.

In the United States, that intelligent Chinese of high rank had been an important person, telling us what he thought we ought to do, criticizing frankly. In the garden of the old empress, he was no more than an ant in the dust of the path or a worm burrowing in the sod.

This is how Mrs. Longworth describes what happened:

"He (Wu Ting Fang) stood between us a little to the side, but suddenly, as the conversation was going on, the Empress said something in a small savage voice, whereat he turned quite gray and got down on all fours, his forehead touching the ground.

"The Empress would speak; he would lift his head and say it in English to me; back would go his forehead to the ground while I spoke; up would come his head again while he said it in Chinese to the Empress; then back to the ground would go his

COURTROOM HUSHED AS SHE FIGHTS CHARGES

Regains Composure After Telling of Rheta's Death

CHICAGO, March 2.—(AP.)—Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop took the witness stand today in her own defense as her second trial for the murder of her daughter-in-law, Rheta, reached its climax.

As she reached the stage in her story of the operating table murder mystery where she was to tell how she found Rheta dead, Dr. Wynekoop choked with emotion, her voice failed her, and she was unable momentarily to continue.

Defense Attorney W. W. Smith asked in a tense, dramatic voice:

"You saw her face doctor, and what did you note?"

The courtroom fans, the jury, the Judge leaned forward.

"I—noted a—peculiar color."

"And what did that color indicate to you?"

The hush in the courtroom was that of a tomb.

STRUGGLES TO TALK

Dr. Wynekoop, she hod had seemed so stoic, struggle to answer. The muscles of her thin neck played.

Her thin lips were tightly closed as though they refused to obey her will to speak.

With a gasp she tossed back her head, her eyes quivering with tears. Then she whispered hoarsely:

"Death."

SON IN TEARS

Her older son, Walker Wynekoop, who had taken his turn on the witness stand to defend his 63 year-old mother from the charge of murdering the wife of his younger brother, Earle, leaned forward listening intensely, tears dimming his eyes unnoticed. His sister, Dr. Catherine, bowed her head.

As the questioning led up to the night of the slaying, the defendant began to show signs of emotion—she, who had always been so calm, so cold.

A state objection gave her a moment's rest. She leaned her head back, closed her eyes. Her thin hands were clasped tightly. The light glinted on her narrow gold wedding ring.

"What did you see, doctor? Tell us in your own words."

Dr. Wynekoop's eyes were on the operating table, on which she found Rheta dead, which was about two feet from her chair.

She swallowed. The intake of her breath could be heard in the hushed courtroom. The judge leaned forward.

FACE HIDDEN

She started once, twice and then:

"I—saw—Rheta — on the operating table—"

The tired head dropped forward, her face hidden beneath the nar-

REACH TRUCE IN WALKOUT

A "holiday" taken by employes of the various plants of the Aluminum Company of America in an effort to gain a wage agreement with the company ended today as officials of the Mellon-owned concern agreed to negotiate with the Aluminum Workers Union.

The company and union representatives signed an agreement to bargain at a meeting with the Regional Labor Board.

The union agreed to have its members go back to work immediately and the company consented to make any wage readjustment retroactive to March 1.

It was stipulated that the wage conferences are not to be prolonged unduly, and arrangements were made for the first meeting at the company offices in the Gulf building late today.

The plants were idle in the New Kensington yesterday and today. Union officials expected their followers to be back in the plants tomorrow.

TELLS OF DEATH PARTY IN SUIT

LONDON, March 2.—(AP.)—The defense wound up its case in the "Rasputin libel suit" today in a blaze of new sensations — including the revelation for the first time by a member of the British Parliament that he had been invited to join the party which poisoned, clubbed and shot to death Rasputin, the Russian Imperial Court's "mad monk."

Prince Felix

It remained for Commander Oliver Locker-Lampson to supply the dramatic climax to two days of testimony in the $2,000,000 libel suit of Princess Irena Youssoupoff against producers of the film, "Rasputin and the Empress."

Giving intimate details of the gruesome murder which took place in the cellar of the St. Petersburg palace, the witness—a member of Parliament for 25 years and distinguished for his services during the war—said he had been asked to join the "murder party" and had taken part in an unsuccessful scheme to save the Russian royal

JOB RULES SCRAPPED BY M'NAIR

Mayor Stops Pay of Two Employes Who Defy Ouster

Mayor McNair and his Public Safety Director scrapped civil service regulations today by stopping the pay of two city employes who wouldn't be fired.

The employes were furloughed. At the same time there was an announcement that the Fire Bureau is due for a shakeup March 15.

REPEATS METHOD

The Mayor seemed to think so well of the furloughing of Louis A. Schwartz, engineering inspector in the Bureau of Building Inspection, that he worked the same method to sever William W. McCracken, a city employe for more than 23 years, from the payroll.

Reports had it that McCracken is to be succeeded as budget accountant by the Mayor's chauffeur, Jesse Ullom.

Schwartz wouldn't resign at the request of Public Safety Director Ralph E. Smith, claiming protection under the civil service laws. Director Smith thereupon furloughed him indefinitely "for the good of the service," he said.

Mayor McNair refused to discuss the suspension of McCracken for a 30-day period, but the story tbout City Hall was this:

The Mayor sent McCracken a note notifying him he was fired. McCracken retorted he couldn't be fired just like that—that he was under civil service.

ORDERS SUSPENSION

So His Honor suspended the employe who went to work for the city not many years after McNair first arrived in Pittsburgh.

Fire Chief John Heinz, who succeeded Richard L. Smith as head of the fire bureau, announced he would use his influence to have District Fire Chief Saul Klein, of the North Side, supplant Frank G. Jones, who resigned as deputy fire chief at the same time Smith retired.

Heinz said there would be demotions and dismissals in the Fire Bureau involving district and battalion chiefs, captains and men in the ranks around March 15. He said:

"Some of those now in the service are too old to perform their duties efficiently. They will be asked to retire on pension and make way for younger, more active men."

RACKETS BARRED

Heinz added:

"Drinking and playing numbers will be strictly barred. I will not tolerate drinking or rackets. Any man haled before the trial board and found to

GIVE UP WAR BASES, SAYS ROOSEVELT

Would Have U. S. Quit Philippines With Independence

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt today asked Congress to revive the Hawes-Cutting Philippine independence law with an amendment for relinquishment of the military base when the islands become independent and provisions for "ultimate settlement" of the disposition of the naval base.

At the same time, the President asked Congress for authority to modify tariff rates in negotiating commercial agreements with other nations.

Thus, in two pointed messages read to the House, he thrust forward issues already certain of rousing opposition and possibly threatening prolongation of the session past the time wanted by the Democratic leadership.

SENATE IN RECESS

Senate reaction had to wait, that branch being in recess so it could not today receive the presidential request for power "to enter into executive commercial agreements with foreign nations; and in pursuance thereof within carefully guarded limits to modify existing duties and import restrictions in such a way as will benefit American agriculture and industry."

He mentioned no limit for the tariff concessions, but the administration bill put it at 50 per cent of the existing levels.

On the Philippine bill, the President asked that the Hawes-Cutting law—which recently expired—be revived for consideration by the Filipino people.

He would have it amended, however, to assure immediate relinquishment of American military bases upon the realization of independence and to provide for discussions about how the naval bases should be treated.

Mr. Roosevelt wrote:

"After the attainment of actual independence by the Filipinos, friendship and trust will live."

BILL LAPSED

The Hawes-Cutting legislation, passed a year ago by Congress, automatically lapsed early this

A Challenge to Liberty

THE "NEW DEAL" would be vastly more heartening if we were assured that the extension of governmental activity was primarily intended to regulate private enterprise to keep it moving along socially desirable lines.

Any general effort on the part of government to substitute bureaucracy for private initiative suggests a growing army of tax-eaters and partisans of the group in office.

In judging the proper changing balance between freedom and government control, the public should clearly visualize the momentous issues at stake.

Many of the changes are made in the name of liberalism, yet the founder of the Democratic party, Thomas Jefferson, contended that that government is best which governs least.

THOMAS N. CARVER, professor emeritus of Harvard University, points out that the rise of federal intervention in economic affairs means a growth of AUTHORITARIANISM, not of LIBERALISM.

In this struggle, Prof. Carver thinks that the recent battle for the freedom of the press was highly necessary—differing from Gen. Hugh S. Johnson's characterization of the campaign as one against a "synthetic dead cat."

"Liberals," Mr. Carver points out, in the Nation's Business, "have been, for a hundred and fifty years, struggling for greater freedom and less government control. Authoritarians have struggled for more government control.

"It may look, at present, as though the Authoritarians were in the saddle and Liberalism were either dead or on the defensive. If the Authoritarians are really in a position of dominance, we shall see a gradual extension of government control over industry in general, and probably also over education, the press and even religion.

"At least, there is no other government that is undertaking to manage the industries of its people without trying also to manage or control education, the press and religion."

THE ECONOMIST is not opposed to more government control where it appears necessary, but he insists that administration policies be correctly labeled, not misbranded, so that the American people can render an informed verdict at the ballot boxes.

In a period when it is popular for public officers to ask for blank check authority, it is timely for the American people to take an inventory of their liberties, and to determine which ones deserve to be stoutly defended.

There must be no unconscious drift into a new order!

CITY READY TO BATTLE FRESHET

25-Foot Stage at Point Depends On Downpour

On the volume of rain which set in today, and which was expected to continue tonight and tomorrow, hinged the probability of a flood in the Pittsburgh district.

Half an inch of rain fell in parts of the Ohio Valley. That amount was expected here and over the watersheds of the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers.

While this, coupled with melting snow, would cause a marked rise in the rivers, it would not necessarily mean a flood, Observer W. S. Brotzman said. He added:

"If we get three-quarters of an inch, which is more than has been recorded in the lower Ohio Valley, we likely will get a stage of 22 feet or so at the Point.

"The snow on the ground is equivalent to not more than three-quarters of an inch of rain. It would take an inch of rain to bring the rivers up to flood stage. It all depends on how much we get."

Meanwhile business interests along the three rivers were preparing for possible high water.

Many business houses in the lower Triangle were moving goods from basements. Pumps and equipment were being made ready for use if needed.

More than 100 men at the Improvement of the Poor Home in Duquesne way were barricading the building against the possibility of heavy ice floes should the water go over the banks.

The stage at the Point at 8 a. m. today was 10.2 feet and stationary, the same as yesterday. No change was anticipated in the next 24 hours.

Rivermen were hopeful that the river would rise sufficiently to carry off the ice gorges which jam the upper rivers. Rivers here continued frozen over today but the ice is comparatively thin. Damage to river craft was feared if a swift current develops when the ice goes out.

Meantime requests for flood control projects in this district remained in the hands of Washington authorities without action.

Squire Frees Teacher For Spanking Boy

NEW CASTLE, Pa., March 2.—Miss Virginia West, a teacher of Shenango Township Consolidated High School, last night was discharged by Justice of the Peace James Brice before whom she had been charged by Mrs. Emma Gardner, also of Shenango Township, with aggravated assault and battery.

Miss West admitted paddling Francis, 12, son of Mrs. Gardner, because he had stung a girl with a rubber band.

Dr. David Perry testified there were contusions on the boy's body, but said this did not indicate excessive punishment.

He said some bruises become "black and blue" more easily than others.

The teacher said she had used the paddle, about 18 inches long and half an inch thick for three years.

Miss Rose Martin, another teacher and owner of the paddle, was only a witness to the chastising. She likewise was discharged.

The squire ruled that a teacher has the same right as a parent to punish a child. He said no evidence of malice had been shown and no evidence the lad had been beaten excessively.

NEW PEACE BID MADE BY U. S.

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—President Roosevelt has made a new move in the interests of world peace, it was learned today.

A communication has been dispatched to the British government, reaffirming this government's desire to have the nations of the world sign a political non-aggression pact, pledging themselves not to send armed forces across their frontiers.

Both Secretary of State Hull and the White House declined to comment on the communication which was understood to have been sent in reply to a British memorandum on disarmament.

The American reply is believed to have been presented to Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British ambassador.

Arrival of Norman H. Davis, America's roving ambassador, in London today, was said to be merely a coincidence and not connected with the matter.

STOLPCE, Polish-Russian Frontier, March 2.—Bright daggers of flame from the muzzles of Bolshevik rifles stabbed the dusk. Dark figures rose, ran forward, threw themselves down and from each huddled form came the flash of firing.

The Red Army was closing in on a Polish border fort.

Suddenly from the low black fringe of fir trees over on the left, a squadron of Polish cavalry burst out. At full gallop they swept across the plain. Sabers gleamed in the moonlight, slashed, cut and the yells of 200 passionate riders told us that the Red attack had failed.

The maneuver was over. At a slow trot we trailed the

12TH VOTE CASE IN JURY'S HANDS

The twelfth election fraud case tried here in Federal Court for alleged frauds in the 1932 election was put in the hands of the jury this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Four of the six defendants who have been on trial are officials of the Eighth District, Third Ward election board. They are James Macri, judge; James A. Ventrone and James Collins, inspectors, and M. J. Ventrone, clerk. The two other defendants are Sam Mattes, Republican watcher, and John Stabile, Republican district chairman.

In the 11 cases already tried there have been 48 convictions and eight acquitals.

row brim of her black hat. One thin hand clenched her breast as though to still the pounding of the heart she and others had described as seriously affected.

"Describe how you found her."

The jury, fascinated, listened intently. A woman's stifled sob, a baliff's curt demand, were heard in the back of the court.

"I saw her—her body—covered with a blanket."

Her voice became calm, expressionless. Her sentences were punctuated with long pauses.

"Her head was mostly exposed—a few drops of blood were on the floor—she was lying in an apparently stiff position."

"See anything else?"

"Yes, there was a gun at her side."

Q.—Did you look at her face?

A.—Yes, but her back was toward me. I had to walk around to see her face.

Q.—But you saw her face?

And then she broke unashamed as she described how the peculiar color of the young wife's face told her, a yhpsician, that Rheta was dead.

Q.—And then what did you [illegible] doctor?

[illegible]d her replies.

[illegible]as I could—I was in [illegible]ndition—could hardly breathe—I started upstairs. I thought once I couldn't make it, but I told myself I must go on. I got up somehow. Got to the top of the stairs. Found a chair—sat down. Then called Catherine—

Her moving lips would not form words. Her thin body shook with repressed sobs.

Q.—What next?

A.—I just sat. But I was so weak I could hardly sit. I seemed hardly a part of life.

STORY RELATED

The defendant described the arrival of Dr. Catherine and her daughter, and Thomas Ahern, the undertaker, and the police who came in answer to a call by the undertaker. Then the police took down her statement. They began about 10 and finished about two hours later.

Q.—Did you hear any discussion about the rear door being open?

A.—I definitely heard the officers talking about it.

Q.—Do you know which ones they were?

A.—No, they were outside the room. I could hear their voices but couldn't see their faces.

Q.—Did you tell the policemen where you last saw the pistol?

A.—Yes, I told them it was in the drawer of the dask.

She had looked in the medicine cabient and saw that a number of towels had been disarranged, she said. That was after she had noticed the chloroform bottle on the table.

Q.—Did you sleep at all that night?

A.—No, I didn't sleep at all.

Duogherty then questioned her about the three days of ordeal which preceded her signing a statement admitting that she fired the shot into Rheta's body.

The story followed closely that told twice before from the stand, once by her son Walker, and again by Dr. Catherine, her daughter.

REGAINS POISE

By this time Dr. Wynekoop had regained her poise and was answering questions easily and without effort. She smiled faintly at a few of the questions.

Between answers she toyed with a small handkerchief in her hand, occasionally placing her fingers to her chin. Now and then she slumped down in her seat, her customary court posture, but straightened when she began to answer questions.

Pale and trembling, Dr. Wynekoop had been carried to the stand by three bailiffs. The chair was removed from the witness box, and the one upon which Dr. Alice had been sitting with the defendant in it, was substituted. Dr. Alice nervously told a court attache:

"I won't be able to stand to be sworn. What will I do?"

She was told she could take the oath while seated.

Dr. Wynekoop's face was an ashen gray. She wore the familiar black caracul coat and black felt hat, with black veil. White trimming on her black dress gave the only relief.

Her daughter, Dr. Catherine, hovered nearby as the defendant took her place. Seated in the press row near the railing was her son, Walker; near him was his wife, Marcia.

TEACHER IN COURT

Not far away was Miss Enid Hennesseq, the school teacher boarder in Dr. Wynekoop's home.

Every seat in the courtroom was taken and the aisles were packed. Outside in the halls long lines waited hopefully. Additional bailiffs were on duty to keep them orderly.

In the early part of her testimony Dr. Wynekoop told of her marriage to Dr. Frank Wynekoop, of the building of her home in 1904, of the birth of her four children, the oldest of whom, Frank Vincent, is dead.

Next she told of Earle's romance and marriage to Rheta Gardner, after they had met at a dance in Indianapolis.

Asked if Earle and Rheta got along well until the fall of 1933, Dr. Wynekoop said she sensed there was a difference in their attitudes, but that they were always friendly.

She described Rheta as having a reticent disposition, but that it was not until last fall that she became morbid and melancholic.

SEAWAY TREATY VOTE NEARS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—After fixing definite dates for final votes on the $570,000,000 naval construction bill and the St. Lawrence waterway treaty, the Senate today enjoyed a week-end recess.

The naval bill will be voted upon at 4 p. m. Tuesday after a two-hour period of limited debate. The waterway treaty will be voted on March 14 at 4 p. m., with debate limited at noon of March 13.

The naval bill carried provisions for constructing a Navy up to full treaty strength and for maintenance of a naval airplane force of 2,114 planes. The warships will cost $475,000,000 and the planes $95,000,000. It passed the House.

All prospects pointed to rejection of the St. Lawrence treaty, but administration leaders would not concede defeat.

STEEL WORKERS VOTE CHANGES

In seven more plants of the United States Steel Corporation, proposed changes in "company union" rules are favored by the majority of employes, it was announced yesterday following the tabulation of a vote by secret ballot.

The voting results announced yesterday were: Homestead Steel Works, Carnegie Steel Company, 4,298 for changes and 2,092 against; Farrell Works, Carnegie Steel, 727 for, 399 against; Youngstown, O., district works, Carnegie Steel, 2,952 for, 1,630 against. Combined vote of American Steel and Wire Company plants at Donora, Allentown, Farrell and Rankin was 2,737 for and 1,283 against.

According to company officials, the balloting was a routine procedure controlled by employes, but heads of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, have complained to the National Labor Board that the proposed changes are designed to strengthen the company union system and deprive the workers of their rights under the NRA.

"Loan organizations operated by fire chiefs and others also will be prohibited. This tends to place the men in fear of their superiors and to prevent the best service."

Meanwhile, Police Supt. Ben R. Marshall, whose anger burst forth yesterday at what he termed efforts of the administration to "wreck the police bureau," remained firm.

He had objected to ousting of more than a score of city detectives, many of them veterans, without consulting him. He declared he wasn't going to be a "puppet."

Today he said:

"I'm still here. And I haven't changed my ideas since yesterday."

Asked if there were any more changes, he snapped:

"You'd better see Mr. Smith. He's the man that's doing all the talking."

Democratic County Chairman David L. Lawrence denied that he had any hand in dictating the dismissal of city detectives or any other employes in the public safety department.

NATION'S CHIEF TO RULE NRA PERMANENT

Roosevelt to Address Huge Assembly of Code Authorities

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt will recognize NRA as a permanent force in the national life next Monday by investing his address to a huge assembly of code authorities with all the solemnity of a state occasion.

Quietly an array of officials exceeded only by that gathered for the opening of Congress has been summoned to flank the Chief Executive.

From the thus panoplied platform of Constitution Hall he will propound new ideas to more than 3,000 businessmen elected by their fellows to rule over code-controlled industries.

CABINET CALLED

The entire cabinet was called to attend, along with the chief government emergency directors, the leaders of Congress, Democrats, Republicans and independents as well, and the boards protecting the interests of minorities and special groups under NRA.

The boxes of the big hall have been set aside for cabinet wives and official families; women members of Congress have been given special seats. Minor officials began a scramble today because of the shortage of seats.

The President's speech will be partly in the nature of a report on the first year of his regime, but close associates confidently expect him to talk of future plans.

The open forum for public criticism of NRA is to all intents wound up. A couple of meetings were carried on today for late comers, but the complaint forum already has gathered enough information to confirm administration opinions on shortcomings of the present program.

PROGRAM OF REFORM

Out of it emerged more clearly the program of reform to be laid down by Hugh S. Johnson next week. It was clear that as No. 1 point, he will ask that the average working week for American labor be brought down to 36 hours with unreduced pay.

The 36-hour week program, although still resisted by many industries, will find some ready acceptances. The administration has been informed by several groups that they will do what is asked of them.

The 36 hours will not be an absolute rule. The automobile industry probably will return to the 35 with which it started, and others may join it. Some may find 32 hours possible and desirable.

The other points which NRA will hit hardest include measures to break down profiteering and unsanctioned price-fixing. Possibly, though this point is in doubt because of industrial animosity, a real effort will be made to clarify and strengthen the industrial law's guarantee to labor of the right to organize free of employer coercion.

Johnson to Receive Irish Service Medal

NEW YORK, March 2.—(AP.)—The Ulster-Irish Society of New York announced today that it will award its annual medal for notable service to the United States to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator.

The award will be made at a banquet to be held on March 17. The medal goes each year to a person of Ulster-Irish descent. Gen. Johnson's family, said the announcement, emigrated from Aghadowey, County Derry, Ireland, more than 100 years ago.

ARMY AIR NEED, PROFITEERING FACE PROBE

Breach Between Dern, House Group Leading To Wide Inquiry

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—A sweeping investigation of Army aviation and hundreds of millions of contracts was due to be authorized by the House because the rift between Secretary of War Dern and the House Military Affairs Committee widened.

Confident that the House will give the committee broad power with $10,000 to make the investigation Chairman McSwain (Dem.), of South Carolina, of the House Committee, hopes to call the investigation resolution up for passage today.

"If we are granted the power there will be no 'white wash' no matter who is hit."

That is what McSwain, who maintains the preliminary inquiry of the committee has shown the necessity for the broad inquiry, declared.

While a federal grand jury is investigating Army purchases, McSwain said the House inquiry was planned with a view of paving the way for legislation vitally affecting the military policy, especially that of the Army Air Corps.

PROFITEERING CHARGED

The proposed investigation was prompted by charges of profiteering in aircraft, failure of the Army to carry out the competitive bidding law and claims that the Army Air Corps is woefully unprepared for combat.

Despite the statement of Secretary of War Dern, attacking McSwain's bill for expansion of the air corps, the committee will frame aviation legislation, McSwain said. He continued:

"Secretary of War Dern has been in office a year, and he has repeatedly been invited to appear before our committee. He has not appeared.

"This is one committee which is going to carry out the constitutional duty of legislating in the interest of the national defense."

DEATH RATE PROBED

Under the McSwain resolution the House committee would have authority to call upon Department of Justice agents, employ accountants and others to investigate Army purchases, sale of surplus clothing and leasing of government property.

Inquiry into the death rate of the Army Air Corps was under way by a Military Affairs subcommittee.

Representative Rogers (Dem.), of New Hampshire, gave the aviation death rate as follows: 1923, 58 killed; 1924, 34; 1925, 38; 1926, 42; 1927, 43; 1928, 37; 1929, 61; 1930, 52; 1931, 26; 1932, 50; 1933, 46.

He said the committee wanted to learn whether defective equipment had any connection with the death rate.

Alice duPont Sued In Auto Accident

NORRISTOWN, March 2.—(AP.)—A joint suit for damages totalling $35,000 was filed in Montgomery County Court yesterday against Miss Alice duPont, of Wilmington, Del. Miss duPont, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felix duPont, is on an aerial jaunt through South America with her brother, Richard.

The suit, filed by Mrs. Wilma Pifug, of Hatfield, and her husband, is the result of an automobile collision between their car and that of Miss duPont on October 1, 1933.

SENATE PROBES AIR MAIL 'LEAK'

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(AP.)—Senators would like to know if an advance tip about the air mail "leaked" from Washington to Wall street.

There was much short selling of aviation stocks in January, before the government cancelled air mail contracts in one swoop.

The Senate air mail and stock market investigators expect to get on Monday a definite clue as to whether there was or was not a leak. The Banking Committee will receive from the stock exchange a list of individuals who sold aviation securities short just before the cancellations.

The committee meanwhile turned today to the gathering of more testimony about how specialists of the "big board" do business. The pending Rayburn-Fletcher bill to control exchanges would limit specialists' activities sharply.

Rail Labor Chief Urges 6-Hour Day

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(INS.)—Railroads have reduced wages in order to continue payment of high interest rates on bonds and other securities, A. F. Whitney, chairman of the railway labor executives committee, charged today before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee.

Whitney urged immediate enactment of the Black bill, imposing a six-hour day on railroad workers.

1,000 Men Go Out In 2 Mine Strikes

Union leaders and mine officials were conferring today on the walkout of more than 1,000 miners in two mines in the Pittsburgh district yesterday. Six hundred men struck at the Cadogan mine near Kittanning, demanding readjustment of their wage scale.

At the Lilly mine of the Valley Camp Coal Company near Brownsville 500 men walked out in protest against the discharge of two miners accused of violating the state mining safety code.

year by failure of the Philippine government to accept it.

It provided for independence within 12 or 14 years.

It provided that the United States would retain the option of keeping certain military and naval bases in the islands after independence.

Chairman McDuffie (Dem.), of Alabama, of the House Insular Committee, immediately introduced the Philippine bill, and said the committee would start hearings Monday.

He told newspapermen:

"Our hope is that we may get entirely out of the islands."

The measure also allows the Philippines until October of this year to hold their constitutional convention, McDuffie added.

In requesting the tariff powers, the President discussed at length his reasons.

WORLD TRADE OFF

First, he said, world trade has declined to approximately 70 per cent of its 1929 volume.

Second, other governments to an increasing extent are "winning their share of international trade by negotiating reciprocal trade agreements."

He asserted:

"If American agricultural and industrial interests are to retain their deserved place in this trade, the American government must be in a position to bargain for that place with other governments by rapid and decisive negotiation based upon a carefully considered program and to grant with discernment corresponding opportunities in the American market for foreign products supplementary to our own."

The tariff-bargaining experiment was proposed to Congress with assurance from the Democratic leaders of support, but with a bitter partisan debate in prospect on the ancient political issue.

SPEED URGED

Mr. Roosevelt said:

"I hope for early action. The many immediate situations in the field of international trade that today await our attention can thus be met effectively and with the least possible delay."

Convinced that this is now the time to seek a world-wide lowering of tariff walls such as he desires, Mr. Roosevelt already has entered into reciprocal tariff negotiations with several nations, principally in South America.

Once granted the authority he asked today, the President is ready to bargain with other nations, including the major powers.

Congressional leaders expressed confidence of enacting the legislation without undue delay and by the middle of May when adjournment is scheduled.

WEIRTON FEUD RULE AWAITED

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(AP.)—Return of Attorney General Cummings from Florida was being awaited by the Department of Justice today before taking action on the Weirton Steel Company case returned to the department by the National Labor Board yesterday.

Cummings is expected by Monday. In the meantime, Assistant Attorney General Harold M. Stephens, head of the anti-trust division, and his staff were studying the case.

The department also was awaiting information on nine cases from which the NRA removed the Blue Eagle yesterday, which were referred by the Recovery Administration to the Justice Department for possible legal action.

'First Lady' Cuts Cake At Camp Fire Girl Party

NEW YORK, March 2.—(AP.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt stood before an electric camp fire yesterday and cut a cake which 250,000 Camp Fire Girls all over the country accepted as the signal for a nationwide birthday party.

Margery Hunt, 7 years old, said:

"I baked it for you because I learned that angel food is your favorite cake. I hope you will cut it for the Camp Fire Girls."

Mrs. Roosevelt replied:

"I certainly will, and I'm glad to have a cake baked by such a little girl."

She handed Margery a notch and the little girl unabashed by Klieg lights, newsreel cameras, mothers, or the presence of the President's wife, calmly lighted the 22 candles on another cake, symbolizing the twenty-second anniversary of the Camp Fire Girls.

An elderly woman, who caused the Camp Fire Girls much consternation by "holding on" to Mrs. Roosevelt, in the receiving line, was discovered to be Mrs. James Roosevelt, the President's mother.

The Camp Fire celebration came in the middle of a busy day for Mrs. Roosevelt. In the morning she visited the Buckley School where her sons used to go. She wound up her day by sitting in on the formation of a New York committee of the Institute of Women's Professional Relations. Today she plans to visit her sons in Groton, Harvard and Boston and to be back in Washington Sunday.

Opera for Milk Fund Draws Big Audience

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, March 2.—A large and appreciative audience attended the premiere of Donizetti's opera, "Linda Di Chamourix," given for the benefit of the Free Milk Fund for Babies, Inc., at the Metropolitan Opera House yesterday afternoon.

The cast included Lily Pons, Gladys Swarthout, Richard Crooks, Giuseppe De Luca and Ezio Pinza. Tullio Serafin conducted.

The exact amount of money brought to the milk fund by the benefit is not yet known, but it is expected that it will be sufficient to increase the number of the fund's baby beneficiaries from 7,000 to 10,000. This increase has been the aim of Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, founder and chairman of the fund and sponsor of the benefit.

Mrs. Hearst, recovering from injuries received in a recent accident, was unable to be present at yesterday's matinee. Her sister, Mrs. Walter W. Irwin, acted as hostess in her stead.

Surprise additions to the distinguished audience were Miss Katharine Hepburn and Miss Mary Pickford.

The audience was unusually generous with applause, with Lily Pons, as Linda, and Gladys Swarthout, as Pioretto, singled out for particular attention.

Following the opera, Miss Pons and other leading members of the cast sent Mrs. Hearst a letter, expressing regret over the sponsor's absence.

BAN ON SPEED AT FATAL P. R. R. WRECK SCENE REVEALED

TRAINS LIMITED TO 25 MILES PER HOUR

Switch in Good Order, Official Tells Probers

A permanent speed restriction of 25 miles an hour existed at the point of the disastrous railroad wreck on the North Side that cost 10 lives, a federal-state investigation group was told today.

This was because of the degree of the curve in the tracks near the Merchant street viaduct where the crash of the Akron-Pittsburgh express of the Pennsylvania Railroad occurred Monday night, the investigators were told by D. E. Callahan, supervisor of tracks in and near Pittsburgh.

Some of the persons injured in the wreck had been quoted as saying the train was traveling at what seemed to them anywhere from "35 to 80 miles an hour" just before the smashup.

21 TRAINS PASSED

There was no accurate way of checking the speed of the train at the time of the wreck, experts said.

The switch at the D. L. Clark Company siding, which the locomotive at first was believed to have split, was never known to be out of order, the inquiry board was told.

P. I. Haley, movement director of the Eastern Division, consulting a traffic chart, said that 21 trains had passed over the same tracks and switch between 3:15 p. m. last Monday and the time of the wreck. The last to pass was a local passenger train, which arrived at the Federal Street Station at 9:06 p. m., less than half an hour before the disaster.

REPORT ON SWITCH

Harry Lutz, supervisor of maintenance, telegraph and signals, told of periodic inspections of switches and signals. The last written report on the Clark siding switch was dated February 16 and read.

"Switch in good condition; no repairs or adjustments necessary."

A report of Mike Mihalek, track foreman on the stretch where the wreck ocurred, was read by Callahan.

Edward B. Pry, superintendent of telegraph and signals of the Central region, extending from Altoona to Columbus O., explained minutely the operation of the switch.

SWITCH EXPLAINED

Before a switchman can throw it, Pry explained, he must call the tower and let the towermen know his intention. The towerman must release the electric locks. Mechanism on the switch do not permit the switch points to open more than three sixteenths inch. If they open more, the block is automatically closed, Pry asserted.

H. D. Lyon, one of three representatives of the Interstate Commerce Commission at the inquiry, asked Callahan about the switch:

"Has this particular type of switch been satisfactory?"

Callahan replied:

AMONG INVESTIGATORS

The investigators included besides Lyon, Robert G. Tonkin and H. E. Nason, for the Interstate Commerce Commission; Guy R. Johnson, for the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission; Chief Deputy Coroner James L. Davidson, representing the Coroner's office; H. T. Frushour, superintendent of the Eastern division of the railroad; R. C. Miller, Eastern Ohio division; C. E. Adams, Panhandle division, and various other railroad officials.

The hearing held in Frushour's office in the Pennsylvania Station, was to give the investigators a "mental picture" of what happened before and after the wreck, Grushour stated.

WAR FEARED BY DE VALERA

DUBLIN, March 2.—(AP.)—President Eamon de Valera, of the Irish Free State, saying he feared civil war, sought to reach an agreement with the opposition today.

He offered to establish a joint national force to preserve order—provided present forces proved inadequate—if the opposition would drop "this provocative tomfoolery of the blue shirts."

The offer was extended during a debate on the government's blue shirt ban which aroused heated exchanges in the Dail Eireann last night.

President de Valera asserted the same political strife which led to the war of 1922 existed today. He said war was inevitable unless steps were taken to stem the present trend of developments.

2 TECH CO-EDS HURT IN CRASH

Two Carnegie Tech co-eds were injured this morning in an automobile accident on the Boulevard of the Allies while driving to school.

The accident happened near Seneca street, when a bakery truck, driven by Robert Stone, 340 Pine street, Ambridge, skidded into the rear of their car.

One of the girls, Charlotte Duty, 20, of 55 North Sprague avenue, Bellevue, was taken to Mercy Hospital, where she is suffering from shock, head and face injuries. The other girl, Anna Ladd, 19, driver of the car, was treated for facial injuries and permitted to go to her home, 916 California avenue, Avalon.

Sinnot was promoted for outstanding examples of bravery.

EXPOSURE KILLS NOTED DOCTOR

CINCINNATI, March 2.—(AP.)—Wandering away from a sanitarium where he had gone to recuperate from a nervous breakdown, Dr. Roger S. Morris, head of the medical department of the College of Medicine of the University of Cincinnati, collapsed and died of exhaustion and exposure during the night.

He was acclaimed as the discoverer that pernicious anemia, which had baffled medical science, was a form of "hidden hunger" period, and as discoverer of "addisin," an extract of hog stomach juices which he quietly affirmed had achieved remarkable results.

Dr. Morris was 57. He suffered a nervous breakdown two months ago. He wandered away from the sanitarium early yesterday. Three youths found him hours later, prostrate beside railroad tracks some miles away.

HIGHBALL DEATH NEARS JURY

GREENWOOD, Miss., March 2.—(AP.)—Before another day, Dr. Sarah Ruth Dean, the comely 36-year-old defendant to charges of murdering Dr. John Preston Kennedy with a "poison highball," may learn her fate.

Two members of the prosecution counsel summed up yesterday their side of the evidence taken in the month-long trial. The woman physician is alleged to have given Dr. Kennedy, her associate, a poisoned whisky highball at their midnight "farewell" toast last July. She denied the charge.

Defense arguments began today, with District Attorney Arthur Jordan to close for the state, and the case likely to be made ready for the jury by tonight.

Sobs mingled with tears of the late surgeon's relatives as prosecution orators repeated his dying remarks about the "poisoned whisky highball" along with his last words to his mother, Mrs. J. H. Kennedy.

family from a violent end during the days of the Red Revolution.

Sensation followed sensation after Locker-Lampson mounted the witness stand, giving his testimony—as Sir William Jowitt, defense attorney, said:

"To do what you can to assist the ends of justice."

The most sensational of these statements was that he had been asked by Vladimir M. Purishkevitch—one of those who helped kill the monk—to join in the slaying.

The courtroom crowd leaned forward in breathless silence as Locker-Lampson unfolded his story. At least half of those who jammed their way into the room and overflowed into the corridors were women, many of them representing London's high society.

Prince Youssoupoff testified yesterday he finally poisoned, shot and beat Rasputin to death to protect Russia from his plots.

Sir William Jowitt, opening the defense case, ridiculed the Princess' charge that the moving picture linked her improperly with the sinister monk.

He contended the film did not refer to her. Besides, he insisted, it would be "fanciful" to assume that Natasha, the woman who played the part to which the Princess objects, either was seduced or was the mistress of Rasputin.

Sir William said the "character of the princess is such as to make it perfectly ridiculous."

While Prince Youssoupoff was concluding testimony concerning the slaying of the monk in the St. Petersburg Imperial Palace, the defense attorney suggested that a "possible view" of the suit is that an American woman lawyer, Miss Fanny Holtzman, persuaded the Princess to bring the action.

French Aviatrix Safe at Shanghai

SHANGHAI, March 2.—(AP.)—Maryse Hilz, French aviatrix, flying from Paris to Tokio, arrived from Swatow today.

Fears were aroused for her safety Wednesday when, after starting a flight to Shanghai from Hongkong, she returned to Swatow, 100 miles north of Amoy, Fukien Province, because of unfavorable weather. It was many hours before worried officials learned that Mlle. Hilz was safe.

BOGUS CHECKS JAIL 'PLAYBOY'

Harrison R. McCready, the playboy who squandered a fortune, went to jail today because he couldn't raise $11.

McCready had given three bad checks totaling that sum to Lou Joseph, former proprietor of the "Purple Derby" night club, the latter charged before Alderman John J. Verona. The playboy was charged with a misdemeanor.

Arrested at his home in the Embassy Apartments, Beverly road, Mt. Lebanon, McCready called up friends, acquaintances and made an unsuccessful effort to get in touch with his lawyer, who was in court.

He told them:

"I'm in a tight spot. I've wrote some phoney checks. Can you lend me some dough."

But the playboy, who was once a good spender proved a poor collector. He was jailed in default of $500 bond for a hearing Monday. A decision in his fight to supset a $150,000 trust fund for his former wife, Mrs. Margaret Long Welfer and 4-year-old daughter, Peggy, is expected soon. He contends he was drunk when he made the agreement.

Dartmouth Tribute Paid Fumes Victims

HANOVER, N. H., March 2.—(AP.)—Dartmouth's undergraduate body, 1,500 sober-faced youths, and the faculty paid tribute in memorial services yesterday for the nine students who died from carbon monoxide gas poisoning in a fraternity house last Sunday.

President Ernest M. Hopkins delivered the eulogy in Rollins Chapel.

ARREST WIDOW OF STAVISKY

International News Service.

PARIS, March 2.—Mme. Alexander Stavisky, widow of the master swindler of the Bayonne municipal pawnshop scandal which has shaken the French nation, was taken into custody today under mysterious circumstances.

Mme. Stavisky was held pending further action by French secret police investigating the mysterious disappearance and equally mystifying re-appearance of the stubs of 800 checks paid out by her late husband, supposedly to figures high in French government and politics.

Shortly afterward Mme. Stavisky was charged with complicity in the pawnshop swindle and was put in jail.

The name of the person who surrendered the stubs was kept a close secret, but it was believed to have been Mrs. Stavisky.

VET GETS DEATH IN KIDNAPING

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, March 2.—Found sane by a jury, William Tanner, 34, today was condemned to be hanged for a kidnaping.

The jury invoked California's new anti-kidnaping law.

Harry C. Brooks, 55, his companion in the abduction and torture robbery of Attorney Henry Bodkin, also was convicted by the jury that decreed death on the gallows.

Sentence will be pronounced formally Monday.

Tanner was a World War veteran, cited for bravery in the battle of the Argonne with the 42nd Division.

Child Slayer Dies In Sing Sing Chair

FOILED SUICIDE DIES IN CHAIR

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., March 2.—(AP.)—Harley Edwards, a wife killer, who "couldn't stand the thought of going to the electric chair," went there today at 12:05 a. m. Three minutes later he was dead.

He had tried to escape it by suicide, and almost succeeded. With pieces of lenses from his broken eyeglasses he slit both wrists. He had lost much blood when guards found him on the floor of his cell early yesterday morning. He pleaded:

"I want to die this way. "I can't stand the thought of going to the chair. Don't save me for that."

But they did save him. Doctors halted the blood flow. A prisoner was found who was willing to give a pint of blood for a transfusion. The wounded wrists were bandaged.

When midnight came the wife-killer, with the blood of another convict flowing through his veins with his own, walked steadily to the execution chamber.

They asked him, as the electrodes were applied, if he had anything to say. He did not reply.

$10 DEATH TRIO DENIES GUILT

INDIANAPOLIS, March 2.—(AP.)—Mrs. Neoma Saunders, Theodore Mathers and Masil Roe, all charged with murder in connection with the death of the Rev. Gaylord V. Saunders, former Wabash, Ind., minister, entered pleas of not guilty when arraigned today.

They will be tried March 27.

Mrs. Saunders, 35, is the widow of the former pastor who was found fatally wounded in his automobile parked on a North Side street here recently. Mathers and Roe are both 19-year-old boys.

Authorities say confessions have been obtained from the trio: Mrs. Saunders admitting she gave Mathers $10 to have her husband slain; Mathers admitting he fired the shot and Roe confessing he witnessed the shooting.

UNSAFE SWITCH MAY HAVE CAUSED FATAL P.R.R. WRECK

Another Victim's Body Sought In Wreckage

An unsafe arrangement of a switch was pointed out today by engineers as a possible cause of the wreck of the Pennsylvania Railroad train on the North Side Monday night, in which 10 persons were killed and 40 were injured.

The switch, as shown in the accompanying artist's sketch, was so constructed as to permit a train headed for Pittsburgh on the main line track to run directly off the main line onto tracks leading to the Clark plant's loading platform. It was over the tracks leading to the Clark plant that a part of the train rushed to destruction Monday.

It was possible for the train to split such a switch, known to engineers as the "head-on point" type, thus diverting a train or a part of it from the east bound main tracks to the tracks running up to the Clark plant.

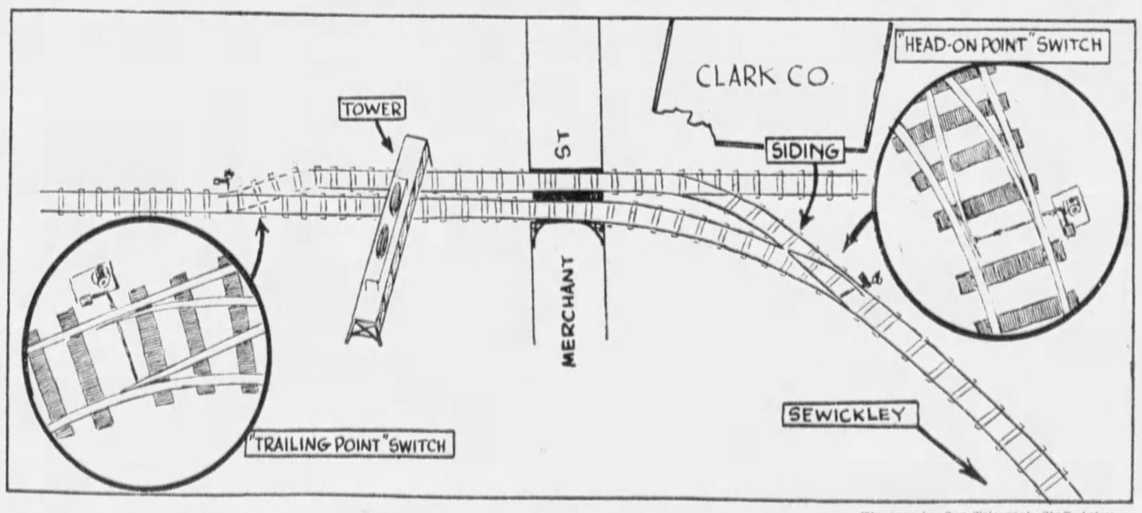

Diagram by Sun-Telegraph Staff Artist.

A more proper and recognized as safe arrangement of the tracks, some enginers say, would place a "trailing point" switch at a point between the Clark plant and the Federal street station. The "trailing point" switch arrangement, like the present "head-on point," would connect the main line with the Clark siding, but it would be impossible for a train running east towards the station to be thrown onto the Clark tracks. To switch the train headed toward the station to the Clark plant it would be necessary to run the train past the switch, then throw the switch and run onto the Clark siding in reverse.

Further search of the wreckage was being made today for the body of Samuel Moore, who was believed to have boarded the ill-fated train at Akron. No word has been received from him since Monday afternoon.

Victim of Wreck Had Boarded Wrong Train

The identity of a woman victim of the North Side train wreck was established today, and with the identification came disclosure that she was in the wreck because she caught the wrong train.

The body, the last of the 10 victims to be identified, is that of Mrs. Comella Silvey Simpson, 38, Negro, of 623 High street, Youngstown, O., according to Mrs. Simpson's sister-in-law Mrs. Beatrice Walker, Negro, of 508 Sixth street, Braddock.

Mrs. Simpson had intended to go to Youngstown, but boarded the wrong train at the Pennsylvania Railroad Station here. The conductor advised her to leave the train at Sewickley and return to Pittsburgh. She did so, and boarded the ill-fated train that was wrecked a few minutes later.

COUNCIL SOON TO CLOSE CITY BUDGET

An early closing of the 1934 city budget is expected as a result of Council's private sessions in Mayor McNair's conference room.

According to unofficial reports one of the things which has held up final action on the budget is inability to decide on a pay refund from the elected officials, including the members of Council themselves.

SALARY CUT OPPOSED

It was reported, also unofficially, that in the informal discussions which have occurred in the conference room, Council by a narrow margin expressed opposition to a 16 2-3 per cent salary cut. The rank and file of the city payroll still works under the 16 2-3 per cent cut it received from Council last year.

Councilmen who favored the reduction for the elected officials are reported as William A. Magee, Thomas J. Gallagher, Charles Anderson and William J. Soost.

Those against were said to be Robert Garland, P. J. McArdle, Walter R. Demmler, John J. Kane and John M. Huston. One of the opposition is said to have been converted to that opinion at the last moment.

MAY FORCE ISSUE

There are indications that the minority may force the isssue in open meeting soon.

Directors of city departments were summoned into the secret conference yesterday. It was said that about $400,000 of the economies suggested by Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, budget advisor to the Mayor, will be made effective.

The budget is approximately $1,800,000 out of balance, but Council is ready to figure as current revenue the meter tax of between $600,000 and $700,000, disregarding the legal battle with the utilities, which is almost certain to delay the collection of the tax beyond the present year.

BOND PLAN

Council has also been discussing the borrowing of $2,500,000 in 18-month bonds to fund the city deficit, $1,000,000 in 30-year bonds to cover the "floating debt" brought about by property damage awards in public improvements, and $1,000,000 in 20-year bonds for incinerators.

All these bond issues could be charged against Council's borrowing power, which has been substantially increased by a recent opinion of the City Solicitor that a large portion of the delinquent taxes can be added to the borrowing margin.

2 JOBS UPHELD BY JOHNSTON

Public Works Director Leslie M Johnston today indicated he had no trouble holding down two $8,000 jobs, one with a private company.

He said:

"It was understood with the Mayor when I took the job as director of public works that I would devote a part of my time to the Keystone Driller Company. I intend to give them half a day now and then and supervision by telephone."

He had no comment on his re-election as president of the company at a meeting of directors in Beaver Falls Wednesday. He was opposed for the post by a minority group of stockholders, who held he could not carry two jobs satisfactorily.

LABOR TO BACK KENNEDY

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, March 2.—The Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, with a membership of 370,000, will "go the limit" to aid Thomas Kennedy, of Hazleton, win the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant-Governor at the spring primary, John A. Phillips, president, said today. He said:

"Thomas Kennedy has always enjoyed the confidence of organized labor throughout his career. He is intensely a patriotic citizen who believes America can solve its own economic and foreign problems on a peaceful basis."

Disdaining to cite other specific candidates whom the federation will support, Phillips declared however, that his organization will aid "a labor man regardless of his party affiliations."

Johnston Fires 25 In Property Bureau

Public Works Director Leslie M Johnston has announced elimination of 25 positions in the Bureau of City Property. The action will result in an annual saving of $36,078, according to the Director. The positions are those of one engineer, two elevator operators, six cleaners, one building laborer, two watchmen, 10 comfort station attendants, two laborers and one caretaker.

Son Faces Hearing In Mother's Killing

MEADVILLE, Pa., March 2.—(AP.)—John Richards, 28, comes up for hearing tomorrow on charges of slaying his mother during a quarrel at a party near their home in Lincolnville.

Richards is accused of causing the death of his mother, Mrs. Mary Richards, 50, by beating her after she refused to return home with him.

More Utilities Plan Battle on Meter Tax

Concerns Ready to File Bills of Equity

Public utilities, aside from the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania, will file bills of equity within the next few days to restrain the city from collecting the $2 meter tax.

The Bell Telephone Company has already filed a bill through its counsel, C. F. C. Arensberg, seeking to have the meter tax declared in violation of the state and national constitutions.

OTHERS TO ACT

Other utilities, according to reliable sources, will file bills, and ask that their cases be heard at one time by the court.

Another indication of united action is seen in letters received yesterday from the utilities by Controller James P. Kerr. Similar in wording, the letters agreed to compile a list of meters in use in the city, with the understanding that it would not interfere with court action.

The deadline for submitting the meter lists was yesterday, according to the ordinance, but the city will take no action against the tardy utilities, according to City Solicitor Cornelius D. Scully.

SCULLY'S STAND

He said:

"In view of the pending litigation, there is no reason the city should take any steps now."

Lists have been promised by the Duquesne Light Company, the Equitable Gas Company, the Allegheny Steam Heating Company, the Peoples Gas Company, the South Pittsburgh Water Company and the Pennsylvania Water Company.

Two firms, the Pittsburgh Suburban Water Service Company and the Parmelee Taxicab System, have sent in their meter records.

STATE G. O. P. PEACE SOUGHT

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, March 2.—The olive branch was extended today to discordant elements in Pennsylvania's Republican party.

Coincident with a fresh move in the direction of achieving harmony came the naming of the members of the newly-established Philadelphia "war board" which revealed that Independent Republicans will have a predominating voice in the party's affairs here.

Of the 21 board members appointed by City Republican chairman James M. Hazlett only five are confirmed followers of National Committeeman William S. Vare. This was interpreted to signify that the party's leaders are bringing into the fold the anti-organization factions who have been muttering against the rule of Vare.

Another step to reconcile divergent elements was taken yesterday when Gen. Edward Martin, chairman of the State Republican Committee, conferred here with Mayor J. Hampton Moore on state and local questions.

SPUR CONGRESS BAN ON LOBBIES

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt gave the word to congressional leaders today to speed action on legislation to bar political lawyers from practicing before government departments.

The general outlines of comprehensive legislation to prohibit national committeemen and members of Congress from handling cases against the government was gone over by the President with members of Congress.

Secretary Morgenthau joined the conference and agreed with a provision to prevent Treasury field agents from collecting party funds.

The authors of proposed legislation who met at the White House left for Capitol Hill to call a general meeting of interested Congressmen to draft a bill. Said Senator Vandenburg (Rep.), of Michigan:

"This was just a pre-laundry meeting. We are going to put politics back on an amateur rating."

BLAST IN MINE KILLS FOUR

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., March 2.—(AP.)—Four persons are dead and four injured—victims of a terrific explosion of carbide gas in the air shaft of the Logan Coal Company's mine No. 2 near Beaverdale.

Two miners, standing at the rim of the shaft, were decapitated, the force of the blast tossing one over a nearby house and hurling the other into a creek 150 feet away.

The explosion occurred late yesterday as the men were trying to thaw out the frozen air shaft with carbide after salt had failed to dislodge ice which had formed there.

The dead: William Yahner, 50, a contractor, of near Ebensburg, hired to thaw out the shaft; Clyde Kelley, Yahner's employe, also of near Ebensburg; Andrew Fornodel, 45, and John Bearish, 47, miners, both of Beaverdale.

The injured: Frank Corle, 14; James Yeager, 30; George Masler, 32, and Elmer Williams, 36, assistant mine superintendent, all of Beaverdale. All were badly burned.

M'Nair Vetoes Fund For Vet Monument

Mayor McNair has vetoed an ordinance by which the city would furnish $400 worth of concrete for the base of a monument to the Second Division, A. E. F., to be erected in South Park with Civil Works Administration labor.

The Mayor said he vetoed the measure because the project is outside the city and so, in his opinion, it is illegal for the city to pay for it.

AIDE REVERSES M'NAIR POLICY

A policy reversing that inaugurated by Mayor McNair in the award of city insurance has been announced in the city Department of Supplies.

The city supply contracts on which bids are equal will be let to bidders who are paid up on city taxes, Director of Supplies W. R. Dunlap said yesterday.

This announcement followed a conference with Mayor McNair. In giving city insurance contracts, the Mayor has taken the stand that those firms promising to bring in the most delinquent taxes should be favored.

The purpose of this policy with insurance, the Mayor has stated, is to bring in delinquent taxes.

In Dunlap's department, however, paid-up citizens will get the preference—but only where bids are equal, the Director emphasized.

M'NAIR HERALDS GOVERNOR BOOM

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., March 2.—(AP.)—If the people want him, says Pittsburgh's Mayor, William N. McNair, he will run for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

Speaking before the West End Citizens Association last night, McNair said petitions soon will be circulated in his behalf.

Expressing belief that it is Western Pennsylvania's turn to supply a Governor, the Mayor asserted one United States Senator should come from the east and one from the west.

George H. Earle III, of Philadelphia, the Democratic State Committee's choice as gubernatorial candidate, McNair said, "is a Republican posing as a Democrat because he thinks he can get something out of it."

McNair then turned to his favorite topic, the single tax.

'De Lawd's' Cane Missing—But Show Goes On

DAYTON, O., March 2.—(AP.)—The staff of "De Lawd" was missing last night.

An Irish thorn cane with 115 prongs, which Richard B. Harrison, veteran actor, had used in 1,461 performances of "The Green Pastures," disappeared yesterday. A performance was delayed 10 minutes while players searched for it.

"De Lawd" finally dug from a trunk an ebony cane which Marc Connelly, author of the play, gave him on the opening night, February 26, 1930.

A souvenir hunter is believed to have the missing one.

Frank Will Discuss Vote Rule Changes

Changes in voting requirements, effective with the next primary election, will be discussed by Jacob Frank, chairman of the Registration Commission, over WCAE tomorrow night at 6:30.

Frank will be interviewed by the Sun-Telegraph Globe-Trotter. The new requirements will affect all voters in Allegheny County.

COUNTY HIRES ACE DETECTIVE

Walter C. Monaghan, ace city detective dismissed by Public Safety Director Ralph Smith in Wednesday's police shakeup, was appointed a special investigator in the County Detective Bureau by District Attorney Andrew T. Park today.

He was immediately sworn in by Judge Heber Dithrich. Judge Dithrich complimented Park on the appointment by saying:

"What is the city's loss is the county's gain."

Monaghan will replace Bernard F. Kunning, of McKees Rocks, a Miles Bryan appointee.

Park said that in view of Monaghan's record he would not be given a regular district, but would be assigned to the bureau as a special investigator.

M'NAIR LOSES COURT PETITION

The plea of a Republican lawyer before a Republican judge in behalf of a Republican petitioner has outweighed a petition of Democratic Mayor McNair.

The judge, W. Heber Dithrich, yesterday appointed Joseph J. Krappweis, Republican, of 14 St. Paul street, judge of elections for the Ninth District of the Seventeenth Ward. Krappweis' petition was presented by Attorney Robert Averbach, Republican.

Mayor McNair, in his capacity as attorney, had filed a petition for W. A. Redlinger, Democrat, for that post, vacated by the death of John Bechtold, Democrat. But Krappweis was appointed.

After filing the petition, Mayor McNair, to save time he said, allowed another Democratic attorney to attend the hearing.

Judge Dithrich also appointed Homer Iseman as constable in Aspinwall to replace Casper G. Gang, resigned.

ADMITS HOLDUP TO SAVE BRIDE OF BROTHER

International News Service.

NEW YORK, March 2.—The Millen brothers—Merton and Irving—suspects in many holdups and slayings in New England, broke their silence today when Irving told police of his part in the Needham Trust Company robbery at Needham, Mass.

He cried:

"I want to save Norma."

Then he gasped out his admissions.

Norma Brighton Millen, beautiful 19-year-old wife of Merton, and daughter of a clergyman, agreed to tell the Massachusetts authorities all she knows.

While Merton tried to quiet his brother, Irving blurted out to detectives:

"She should not be dragged into this because she is innocent. She never knew what we were plotting."

REFUSES TO BE STILLLD

Refusing to be stilled by Merton, Irving told detectives of mowing down with machine gun bullets one of the policemen killed in the Needham bank robbery.

Irving insisted that his brother did not slay the second officer because he was at the wheel of the car.

Either he or Abraham Faber, third of the trio, shot this policeman, Irving said.

The brothers are held without bail for a further court hearing March 5.

PENS LOVE NOTE

Merton, meanwhile, in a dramatic letter poured out his heart to his bride.

The letter, written from his cell, was mailed by Detective Thomas O'Brien, the man Millen is accused of shooting at during a battle which preceeded his arrest in a hotel Sunday. It Follows:

"My darling:

"This is the first opportunity I've had to write you since they separated us last Sunday afternoon.

"Darling kittens, grit your teeth, keep smiling. Show your best side I know you will stick by me to the end.

"I am sorry there isn't something I can do for you. You don't know how much I miss you, dear.

"Oh, how I wish I could be with you tonight. But I'll see you soon back in Boston.

"With all my love,

"Your darling,

"MERT."

"P. S. 'Brudge' (Irving), sends you his sympathy and regards."

RUSHMORE PLAN GIVEN AID BY HISTORIANS

Among distinguished American historians and other members of university faculties enlisted in the project to aid the Mount Rushmore National Memorial Commission select an inscription for the heroic monument it is having built in South Dakota is Dr. David Saville Muzzey, professor of history at Columbia University and author of the "Life of Thomas Jefferson" and other works.

Inaugurated on Washington's birthday, the plan to assist the Rushmore Memorial Commission obtain a suitable inscription for the monument comprehends a national competition in which men, women and children of the country will join in submitting texts.

Borglum is planning to engrave the inscription selected by the commission on one of the dominant peaks of the Black Hills in letters 13 feet high.

On one side of the mountain he has started colossal figures of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt.

The inscription will be lettered on the opposite side.

It will deal with outstanding episodes in the birth and development of the nation, being limited to 600 words.

There are nine of these episodes. Among them are the writing of the Declaration of Independence; the drafting of the Constitution; the purchase of Louisiana, and the ceding of the Floridas to the United States.

Others are the rise of the republic of Texas and its entry to the Union as a state; the Mexican War and the acquisition of California; the settlement of the Oregon boundary dispute, and the building of the Panama Canal.

The plan to aid the memorial commission contemplates the forming of a national and local committees to pass on the text submitted in the competition.

Historians, painters, writers and educators will be included in the personnel of these committees.

Details of the undertaking are being published daily in the Hearst newspapers.

ELIZABETH MAN WILLS $16,200

Hezikiah G. Gamble, of Elizabeth, bequeathed an estate valued at $16,200 to two brothers and five nieces and nephews in his will filed for probate today. P. T. Gamble, of Avalon, a brother, was left $2,000 and a house in North Braddock, and O. P. Gamble, of Elizabeth, another brother, $5,000 and the residue after the division stipulated in the will.

Nieces and nephews bequeathed $2,000 each are Frank C. Gamble, Pittsburgh; May B. Tansy, Avalon, and Earl H. Gamble, Glen E. Gamble and Albert H. Gamble, all of Elizabeth.

BUTLER MAYOR DIES SUDDENLY

BUTLER, Pa., March 2.—(AP)—Mayor George Bob Wick, 55, one of the leading political figures in Butler County, died suddenly last night after several days' illness.

Ill with a cold, Mayor Wick was believed to be recovering, but his condition quickly took a turn for the worse.

He served a term as Mayor from 1926 through 1929 and was re-elected last November, taking office for is second term January 1, 1934. His wife and one daughter survive.

Mrs. Doubleday Sues Divorced Mate

NEW YORK, March 2.—(INS)—Mrs. Rhoda T. Doubleday, who recently filed suit for $1,500,000 against Harold F. McCormick, millionaire Harvester Company executive, for breach of promise, has filed another suit here against her divorced husband, Felix Doubleday.

Through an assignee, she sought to obtain payment of a $9,000 judgment by attaching Doubleday's income from his grandmother's estate. The $9,000 is claimed as due under a separation agreement.

...gus Policeman ...eads Bandit Gang

CAMDEN, N. J., March 2.—(INS.)—Four masked gunmen, one masquerading in a policeman's uniform, early today invaded the private residence of William W. Keyser and robbed Keyser, his wife and four guests of money and jewelry valued at $580.

Answering the summons of the bell, Keyser found a uniformed patrolman on the steps and noticed three shadowy figures lurking in the background. Before he could slam the door, the masked bandits crashed into the house.

ANOTHER VIEW OF THE MIGHTY SCULPTURED WASHINGTON

DESERTER HIT IN FIRST VETO

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(AP)—Exercising his veto power for the first time, President Roosevelt has returned to Congress without his approval a bill which would have given Beryl M. McHam, an Army deserter of Sapulpa, Okla., all the benefits of an honorably discharged soldier.

The President transmitted with his brief message a report from Secretary Dern recommending disapproval on the grounds that McHam, who was cited for bravery in action in France, had deserted in 1922 after he had been allowed to re-enlist to wipe out a dishonorable discharge.

The Senate Military Committee report recommending passage of the bill said McHam served with distinction with Company C in both the 16th and 8th Infantry regiments, was wounded by shrapnel and severely burned with gas, and was cited for bravery.

McHam was one of 15 survivors of a company of 250 men and was permitted to re-enlist March 6, 1922, so he could terminate his Army career with a clear record. He deserted September 1 of that year.

HUSBAND LOSES DIVORCE SUIT

Judge W. Heber Dithrich has handed down an opinion refusing Joseph Henry Pickford, of 722 Air Brake avenue, Wilmerding, a divorce from Tillie Pickford, stating the libellant had not made out a case of desertion.

The testimony showed that Mrs. Pickford, who is living in Gary, Ind., with one of her children, had nothing but a tacit agreement to live separate and apart and to that extent was sustained by the court. Pickford, it was averred, when he went to Wilmerding, said he would be back. The wife contested the action. Pickford alleged desertion in his action. The couple was married November 4, 1896, and have four children.

forehead again. There was no clue to her reason for humiliating him before us.

"When I told father about it he thought it might have been to show us that this man whom we accepted as an equal was to her no more than something to put her foot on—that it was a way of indicating that none of us, either, amounted to much more than that in her opinion."

THE LATE Charles A. Lindbergh, father of the flier, and a Congressman from Minnesota, wrote a book entitled "Your Country at War," while the big war was going on sixteen years ago. Agents of the national government raided the plant in Washington where the book was printed, destroyed the plates, seized all available copies.

Congressman Lindbergh asked the question:

"Why is your country at war?"

And answered it:

"Because of the domination of special privilege."

That was considered unpatriotic.

The book is republished now with no objection by the government. The former law partner of the senior Lindbergh points out that the book outlined and foretold, as necessary, a plan much like NRA. It will be called a mild book now. The extreme radicalism of one day is the semi-conservatism of another.

Chalfant to Hold Taxpayers' Meet

A public meeting of real estate taxpayers will be held in the Chalfant Borough Building tonight under auspices of the Property Owners' Association of Chalfant. Speakers will be Attorney Harry Shapera and George Ludlow, of the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners' and Taxpayers' League.

POOR BOX THIEF SENTENCED

Admitting he had looted the poor box of St. Ambrose's Church, Spring Hill, Joseph Ellert, 27, of 800 Federal street, was fined $50 or 90 days in the workhouse today by Magistrate J. William McGowan in North Side Police Court.

Ellert was arrested yesterday after Victor Yunker, of 1127 Haslage street, church custodian, set a trap for him by placing marked coins in the poor box. According to police, the coins were in Ellert's possession when he was seized.

Yunker testified the box had been robbed consistently for the past two weeks. In sentencing the prisoner, Magistrate McGowan said he was guilty of one of the lowest kinds of thievery.

BOY SCOUTS AID NEEDY HERE

In compliance with a request of President Roosevelt, 6,000 Boy Scouts will conduct a house-to-house canvass tomorrow in Allegheny and Beaver counties to collect articles for the needy.

Each troop has been assigned a particular area and will collect furniture, bedding and clothing. Housewives not visited by a scout are asked to notify scout headquarters in the Investment Building if they have such articles to spare.

'Miss Lithuania'

BIRUTE LAUCHISKIS

Miss Lauchiskis, "Miss Lithuania," in Pittsburgh today for the twentieth anniversary celebration of the founding of the Chicago Lithuanian Daily News.

'Miss Lithuania' on Way To Anniversary Fete

Miss Birute Lauchiskis, 18, selected as Miss Lithuania last week by the Chicago Lithuanian Daily News in a contest conducted by that paper, was to arrive in Pittsburgh tonight to take part in a celebration to be held in the Lithuanian Cultural Society's hall, Orr street, Sunday night.

She will act as queen of the festivities in observance of the twentieth anniversary of the paper's founding. First issued in 1914, it has the largest circulation of any Lithuanian publication in this country.

P. Grigaitis, editor of the News, will be the principal speaker at the celebration.

Miss Lauchiskis was to be met at the station by a committee of Lithuanians who have arranged a number of receptions in her honor. She will attend them accompanied by Mrs. Maria Jurgelonis, assistant manager of the newspaper.

Miss Lauchiskis will be interviewed on the air over stations KDKA and WJAS by the Sun-Telegraph Globe Trotter, at 12:15 p. m. tomorrow.

DR. LINHART CITES PATRIOTIC VALUE OF CONTEST

Rushmore Plan Also Praised as Being Educational

By DR. S. B. LINHART

President of the Pennsylvania Society of the Sons of American Revolution and professor of ethics and history of religion at the University of Pittsburgh.

A higher and fonder appreciation of American citizenship is sorely needed today.

We need more patriotism and pride in the nation that is ours and in our forefathers who fought for it. We should all be proud of our heritage.

The Mount Rushmore National Memorial project sponsored by the Sun-Telegraph is very fine, because it is a magnificent work in education as well as an excellent patriotic movement.

The Sons of American Revolution always have been active in developing an interest in American history, not only in the schools but among the citizens.

The contest to let the people write the inscriptions for the monument is the best way I know to get them to appreciate the value of American citizenship and to realize what it cost.

Our trouble today is to get the people over their indifference toward the government and to prevent Communism and its dangers to our liberties.

We should have a permanent memorial like the one in the Black Hills in South Dakota as it will pass from one generation to another and the words carved on the rock will not be of passing interest.

College students, especially those majoring in history, should be well prepared to write this comprehensive story of our national development.

A movement of this kind appealing to the patriotism should attract wide interest throughout the United States—it should appeal to every person with a spark of national pride.

Settlement Cast In Play's Premiere

Mrs. Sarah C. Pettit's new play, "The Guest," will be given its premiere Tuesday evening in the Therese L. Kaufmann Auditorium, 1835 Center avenue. The play is being produced by the Irene Kaufmann Settlement Players.

The cast includes Philip Moses, Ruth Kalson, Rose Chawenson, Myer Schwartz, Ben L. Singer, Ralph McCorkle, Mae Whalen, Nathan Leff, Ethel Joseph, Marcella Nedlin, Mildred Romack, Leonard Cohen and Squl Casarsky. The play will be repeated Wednesday night with several changes in the cast.

75 MINUS AUTO CARDS FINED

The crusade against motorists operating without 1934 drivers' licenses was continued by the State Highway Patrol here today.

Seventy-five drivers, arrested yesterday, were fined $10 each. The patrolmen reported 150 motorists were permitted to go home for their cards, which they said they had forgotten. Failure to report with them today was to result in $10 fines.

Awarded $6,532 In Wife's Death

Elmer Roy Davis yesterday in Federal Court was awarded a verdict for $6,532.75 damages against the Indian Coach Company. At a trial before Judge R. M. Gibson it was testified that Mrs. Ella Davis, wife of the plaintiff, was fatally injured August 14, 1932, when a bus of the defendant company struck an automobile in which Davis and his wife were passengers.

The accident occurred on the William Penn Highway, near Lewistown, Pa.

IT'S A NEW MARCH AND

NEW CLOTHES

ARE THE ORDER OF THE DAY

Times are brighter . . . and men's clothes, which reflect the times, are brighter, too. Men have neglected themselves during the past few years, in the interest of their families, but now it is men's turn, and thousands of men are properly determined to have some new clothes . . . and the right kind of clothes.

HORNEBILTS WITH TWO TROUSERS $28

STEELCRAFTS WITH TWO TROUSERS $37

are exactly the kind of clothes that forward-looking men have in mind. They are Horne quality through and through, and they have the good taste and style distinction which have made the phrase "Horne dressed is well dressed."

See them tomorrow in their comprehensive assortment of new spring fabrics, colorings, and models—particularly colors. Bright colors, gay colors are the distinguishing note of the new suits. You'll know them by their color!

OF THOSE POPULAR

Lastex KNIT TIES

$1.00

They were a sensation when we introduced them to Pittsburgh just a month ago. Not only were they new, but something distinctly practical in knit ties. "Lastex" ties have the beauty and feel of fine crochet. They have a permanent resiliency, practically eliminating wrinkling; they provide a "living" neckband that will never bind.

7 CHURCHMEN QUIT POSTS

Resignation of six trustees of the Third United Presbyterian Church, include the board president, G. B. Ryland, has occurred since the Rev. Dr. William M. Woodfin resigned as pastor last November, it was learned today.

Besides the trustees, Frank S. Cousley, president of the Allegheny County Sabbath School Association, resigned two weeks ago as superintendent of the congregation's Sunday school.

The trustees who resigned, besides Mr. Ryland, included John Floyd, E. N. Calhoun, Dr. T. C. Hazelett, O. C. Hurst and C. C. Doll. The latter two resigned last week.

The resignations have been submitted at various times since the first of the year. The congregation will act on election of successors at the next annual meeting in April. Press Dowler has been elected president of the board.

Snow Blindness Held Sunburn On Eyes

BALTIMORE, March 2. (AP)—Snow blindness, a common affliction these wintry days, is really a case of sunburn on the eyes, specialists at Johns Hopkins said today.

Ultra-violet rays, reflected from the snow, burn the eyes. Snow blindness is more severe than water burns, caused by sunlight reflected from water.

Snow blindness, which may be suffered even in hazy weather, is usually only a temporary affliction. The best precaution against it is a pair of glasses with colored lenses.

School Dramatists To Present Play

The Dramatic English Class of South Hills High School will present a one-act play in the school auditorium this evening as part of a social program. The cast includes Anne Shinn, Jean Aiken, Margaret Nichols and John Davis.

MASTER SAVED BY DOOMED DOG

SUDBURY, Ontario, March 2.—His hair singed from a fire that destroyed his cabin, his feet frozen from a 16-mile hike in 45-below zero weather, Albert Davis was more interested today in his dog than his own plight.

His cabin, in which he lived alone, burned down and he left in such haste that his boots, mitts, coat and hat were consumed.

He said his police dog, Nipper, awakened him in time to save his life. He added:

"Last summer the dog bit a woman and a magistrate told me to shoot him. If he had bitten a man I would have, but I wouldn't shoot him for biting a woman. It's a good thing I didn't."

Arriving at the hospital he told attendants:

"Take that wheel chair away. I got here on my own feet. I guess I can get upstairs on them."

Czechs to Observe Masaryk Birthday

Czechoslovak Circles of Pittsburgh will observe the eighty-fourth birthday of President Masaryk of Czechoslovakia with a dinner in the Downtown Y. M. C. A. at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday.

Speakers include Dr. Thomas Baker, president of Carnegie Tech; Dr. John Ray Ewers, of East End Christian Church, and Dr. Karel Brejska, Czechoslovakian consul.

German Journalist Professor to Speak

Herbert Stahl, German newspaperman, and Dr. Robert Valeur, Columbia University professor, will speak at a meeting of the Foreign Policy Association in the Schenley Hotel tonight. In a discussion on "France and Germany as Neighbors," Dr. Valeur will give the French point of view, and Herr Stahl will present the German attitude.

Ousted Commissioner Denies Accusations

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., March 2.—(INS)—Records of the Civil Service Commission in the hearing on the ousting of Martin McLaughlin (Dem.) as street commissioner, today carried a general denial by McLaughlin of charges of "inefficient service, incompetency, neglect of duty and malfeasance in office."

Commissioner McLaughlin had been ousted early last month by Mayor O. Earl Greenawalt (Rep.), after years of service.

DRIVE TO BAN BEARDS JAILS RUSS CHIEF

LENINGRAD, U. S. S. R., March 2.—(AP.)—Comrade Ivan Vosko, the sanitary inspector of one of Leningrad's downtown districts, had met with signal failure today in his one-man campaign to exterminate beards from proletarian workingmen.

Emulating Peter the Great, who, more than 200 years ago, forced his nobles to shave off their facial adornments as a mark of their civilization, Vosko spread consternation throughout the city and caused much distress by laying violent hands on protruding beards of the Dvorniki—the House of Porters—in his quarter.

DRAGGED TO BARBER

During the last week he literally dragged scores of protesting elderly men to the barber shops where he personally supervised the removal of those beards.

He threatened them with the loss of their jobs and eviction from their living quarters as penalty if they resisted the onslaughts of the razor. One old Dvornik pleaded:

"Mercy, comrade. I am 70. I have had this beard 47 years. Children will throw stones at me if you take it off."

But the zealot Vosko answered:

"We now have whitewashed the housefronts of the Nevsky Prospect. That signifies you now live in a world of culture. But still you wear a dirty beard. "Off it comes or out you go! Get rid of this disorder immediately."

OUSTED FROM JOB

In several cases he gave the bearded ones no chance to resign their jobs, but held them in the barber's chair with the aid of an assistant, while the proud beards and moustaches were whacked off.

One old man who lost a brush aged 20 years complained that his neighbors no longer recognized him, and that the dogs barked at his shame when he returned to his home.

When the news of Vosko's reign of terror reached high quarters, however, he was summarily dismissed from his job and thrown into jail.

Once again, as for two centuries past, Leningrad is safe for beards.

Roosevelt to Aid College Inaugural

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(INS.)—President Roosevelt will attend the inauguration of Dr. Joseph M. M. Gray as chancellor of the American University in Washington on Saturday in Continental Memorial Hall, it was made known at the White House today.

Honorary L. L. D. degrees will be conferred upon the President, Bishop McDowell, and Dr. Dodds, of Princeton, by the university. It was believed that President Roosevelt may speak briefly.

Philadelphia Shows Gain in Building

PHILADELPHIA, March 1.—(AP.)—Building permits for February show the first increase over the corresponding month of the previous year since 1931. Permits were issued for 249 operations at an estimated cost of $1,159,900. The total for February, 1933, was $408,270.

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

Does a pimply face embarrass you? Get a package of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights, if you are like thousands of others.

Help cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

Thousands who take Olive Tablets are never cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition, pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound; known by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Bronchial Irritations Need Creosote

For many years our best doctors have prescribed creosote in some form for coughs, colds and bronchitis, knowing how dangerous it is to let them hang on.

Creomulsion with creosote and six other highly important medicinal elements, quickly and effectively stops coughs and colds that otherwise might lead to serious trouble.

Creomulsion is powerful in the treatment of colds and coughs, yet it is absolutely harmless and is pleasant and easy to take.

Your own druggist guarantees Creomulsion by refunding your money if you are not relieved after taking Creomulsion as directed. Beware the cough or cold that hangs on. Always keep Creomulsion on hand for instant use.

POLISH, SOVIET BORDER TROOPS FRIENDLY

squadron back to headquarters.

"Ah, ha!" laughed the Polish cavalry captain. "Let those Russians try it. We will cut them into meat balls!"

GOOD LESSON

That was four years ago on the Polish-Russian border. Just a little diversion for the troops, a sham battle, but a good lesson for a foreign observer of the dangerously strained relations which then existed between the two great Slavic nations.

Today in Stolpce, headquarters of a regiment of Polish border guards, in their big, boxlike barracks, the regimental band is practising a strange new piece of music. It is the Internationale, fighting song of the Reds of all the world, and the national anthem of the Soviet Union.

"You see," said Col. Zygmunt Bezeg, our host in Stolpce, and commander of the regiment, "we have to be prepared for courtesy calls from Red army officers."

This tells the story of what the Nazi threat has helped to do to promote peace on the Russian-Polish frontier, once the most dangerously explosive frontier in Europe, today one of the most tranquil.

Through a bleak stretch of land we drove along the border to Klosowo. Half a mile away on either side began that great North Polish forest that stretches on through Russia with few breaks to the Arctic Circle. Black stumps peppered the snow and First Lieut. Michal Balinski, of the general staff, explained that this ground had been cleared of trees to enable the Polish army to observe Red attack.

But that was before Hitler.

"Our relations now with the Red army," observed Lieut. Balinski, "are most gentlemanly."

Our staff Ford dived and bucked. It whirled around stumps. It nearly somersaulted when we detoured a log cart. At intervals tall observation towers stood up beside the road. They were empty.

At Klosowo, company headquarters, we climbed one. It stood beside the railroad tracks that stretched back of us to Warsaw, to Berlin, Paris of us to Minsk, Moscow and all the East.

RED BORDER GUARD

With us stood the captain in command of the Polish border guard. There straight ahead were the headquarters of the Red border guard, the famous G. P. U. troops, which, elite of all the fighting forces of the Soviet Union, are detailed to watch the frontier.

Their blockhouse was green. Over it, in the bitterly cold wind, fluttered the Red flag. Standing before it was a single Russian sentry. He was still as a stone. Back of his hooded, sheepskin coat protruded the long keen blade of a bayonet.

Away to the left and to the right, as far as the eye could see, stretched a rusty streak of barbed wire. The Polish-Russian frontier is 900 miles long, and along its whole length except where natural barriers are present, runs this barbed wire entanglement. It was installed years before Hitler came to power. Today it is doubtful whether the Polish army would go to the trouble and expense of putting up such a barrier against their new friends.

For the Russian-Polish friendship is a solid affair. It was born of Russia's and Poland's fear of the New Germany. It is true that Poland and the Soviet Union signed a non-aggression pact in July, 1932, but no spirit of mutual confidence between the two powers existed until the shadow of Nazi Germany fell eastward.

Nowhere were the results of Hitler's coming to power more dramatic than here in the East. Before Hitler there existed between the Reichswehr of Republican Germany and the Red army the closest co-operation. German officers were sent to the Red army to offer technical instruction and to train themselves in the use of arms forbidden in Germany by the Versailles Treaty. With the Red army the Reichswehr officers could practice air bombing, pursuit flying, the use of tanks and of heavy guns.

CHANGED BY HITLER

Hitler came to power on a program of crushing Communism. Immediately the basis of Soviet-German friendship--mutual confidence--was destroyed. The relations between the Red army and the Reichswehr ceased to exist. All German officers were withdrawn from the Soviet Union. A series of conflicts arose between Moscow and Berlin. Poland and the Soviet Union both looked at the Hitler regime, and declined to bury their differences.

We looked over toward the Red guard blockhouse. The Red captain was standing on the porch and observing us through field glasses.

Turning to our Polish captain, smartly tailored, portly, very military, I asked, "What are the local signs of your new friendship with the Russians, here on the border?"

His taut cheeks, reddened in the frosty wind that whirled down from the Russian Arctic, crinkled into a smile.

"Why, the Red officers now offer us their hands. They shake hands with us. Never did that before."

"And what sort of contact do you have with them?"

"Oh, we have many conferences, about all sorts of business connected with the border. Formerly we used to meet between the barbed wire. Now we go over into their headquarters, or they come to ours."

"And what happens when you meet?"

The captain chuckled: "Most agreeable. The Russians serve quantities of caviar. We drink a lot of Vodka and crack many jokes."

Today the Russians are only nervous over the possibility that the Poles might take their new truce with Hitler too seriously. The Russians remember that Alfred Rosenberg is still in charge of the "foreign office" of Hitler's party. The famous Rosenberg plan was for Germany to expand eastwards, to take the Soviet Ukraine and make it a dependency of Berlin.

POLAND'S ATTITUDE

But the Poles refuse to take the Russian apprehension seriously.

"Do you think," a Polish diplomat insisted, "that we would be such fools as to let a German army march through Poland on its way to fight the Russians? What do you think they would do to Poland when they started to march back? Obviously, if Germany took the Ukraine she would take Poland, too. We are not such fools."

In headquarters barracks in Stolpce we walked down a long corridor. Groups of youthful soldiers stood around tables. At each table a blindfolded soldier worked, taking apart and setting up a machine gun. Each soldier has to be able on the darkest night to dismount and reassemble his machine gun by sense of touch alone.

On the wall of the corridor were blackboards and on the blackboards were "wall newspapers." Headlined in this day's issue was an editorial, "We will treat Germany the way Germany treats us." No more, no less.

Meanwhile, on the last Soviet day of revolution, the chief of the Polish air force, Gen. Raysky, appeared on the Red Square of Moscow in full uniform and in sight of half a million cheering Bolsheviks, gave his hand to the Soviet chief of the general staff, Gen. Tuchachevsky, the man who led the Red attack on Warsaw during the Russo-Polish War.

"They shake hands with us now."

It is dangerous to prophesy, but in this investigation of the chances of peace or war in Europe it may safely be declared that this Russo-Polish border harbors no conflict today. Peace has this asset on her side.

SCHOOL HEADS RAP OUTSIDE INFLUENCE

International News Service.

CLEVELAND, O., March 2.—The NRA big business conservative educators, the Daughters of the American Revolution and the American Legion were subjected to a bitter cross-fire today as the Progressive Education Association convention became a seething melting pot of admittedly radical opinions.

Fears, too, were expressed that freedom of the press, freedom of speech and freedom of religious thought would be curtailed and a five-point plan for the social-economic education of adults as well as children to save "our democratic institutions" was advanced. The latter proposal, submitted by Dr. Harold Rugg, noted Columbia University professor, was:

PROPOSED PROGRAM

1—Establishment of a central planning agency for social-economic education.

2—Setting up a central publications and information service.

3—Establishment of regional short-term institutes for the training of teachers and leaders.

4—Development of press and radio educational services.

5—A system for measurement of results and appraisal of methods.

Dr. Rugg claimed his plan had been indorsed by 40 national organizations with a membership of more than 15,000,000 people. It must be undertaken "energetically and at once," he said, "if our democratic institutions are to withstand the terrific impact of current national and international problems."

The progressive association met as the annual convention of the Department of Superintendence of the National Education Association ended.

'NOISY' PRESSURES

Dr. Howard K. Beale, Washington leader and a speaker at the P. E. A., branded so-called patriotic organizations, ancestor worshipers like the Daughters of the American Revolution and military organizations like "the American Legion" as the noisiest outside pressures seeking to control the schools. He charged:

"Many of these organizations have made suppression of freedom in schools their chief purpose. They seek to use the schools for their own propaganda and have forced modification of textbooks and secured banishment of others."

"Perhaps the most dangerous control of schools is that exercised by business. Businessmen dominate most school boards. This power of business is used to see that ideas are taught which gives the next generation the same uncritical awe of financial success, however unscrupulous, that this generation has had. Business' chief interest in the schools is indoctrination of pupils and teachers with concepts that will silence criticism."

HEARST SCHOOL STAND LAUDED

Universal Service.

CLEVELAND, March 2.—William Randolph Hearst and his newspapers were commended yesterday for their helpful support of public education by leading educators here attending the National Education Association convention. School men from all parts of the country agreed that the Hearst newspapers have been vital forces in maintaining public schools in the face of economic shortage which has resulted in nearly 2,000 schools closing their doors.

Dr. Joseph Rosier, president of the West Virginia State Teachers College and former president of the National Education Association, said:

"The whole teaching profession is indebted to Mr. Hearst and his papers for their courageous and loyal encouragement of public education at a time when we have all needed encouragement."

It was Dr. Rosier who last year invited Mr. Hearst to address the association's convention in Chicago.

RECIPES FOR SPRING HELD HEALTH AID

One way of getting that rejuvenated feeling is to give our foods a spring-time touch. After all if what we wear is important, what we eat also affects our moods and fancies. So "when spring is in the air again" contribute your special bit to the budding season, by making sure your menues are in accord with the time.

In doing this Prudence Penny will help you not only through her column, but by personal suggestions. You, in turn, help her by sending in your favorite recipes. Address them to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Those she uses will net you either a $5 return in the form of first prize or one of ten $1 prizes. The little trouble sending in your recipes will entail you will be well worth the awards. No recipes, due to the number judged, will be returned.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MRS. MARGARET ACTON,
Second and Liberty Sts., California.
FINNAN-HADDIE A LA DELMONICO

Wash the fish thoroughly and soak half an hour in cold water. Skin side up. Then cover with boiling water and simmer until tender. When cooked drain and add to sauce.

Sauce A La Delmonico

One-quarter cup fat.
One tablespoonful flour.
One-half teaspoonful salt.
Speck cayenne pepper.
Speck nutmeg.
One cup milk.
Two egg yolks.
One tablespoonful lemon juice.

Melt fat, add flour and salt and a few grains of cayenne pepper and add a slight grating of nutmeg. Pour the milk on gradually. Add the huddie and when heated add the egg yolks and lemon juice.

Ten $1 Prize Winners

MRS. JAMES WELSH,
1314 Highman street,
APRICOT SAUCE.

One cup powdered sugar.
One-fourth cup butter.
One-half cup apricot pulp.
One-half pint whipped cream.
One teaspoonful vanilla.

Cream sugar and butter with teaspoonful of vanilla. Add apricot pulp which has been put through a sieve. Fold in the stiffly beaten whipped cream. Serve on any pudding. Can use canned apricots or dried ones which have been boiled or stewed.

MRS. J. P. PHIFER,
923 Koss avenue, Wilkinsburg.
FLORIDA HARDTACK

Three eggs.
One cup sugar.
One cup walnuts chopped fine.
One cup dates chopped fine.
One scant cup sifted flour.
One teaspoon baking powder.

Beat eggs and sugar together. Add dates and nuts, then stir in dry ingredients. Bake in square cake pan 40 minutes. Cut in squares. Roll in powdered sugar.

JOHN S HOLT,
1000 Wallace avenue, Wilkinsburg.
ALL VEGETABLE SALAD

One-half pound cabbage.
One bunch celery.
One medium sweet pepper.
Three fairly good sized carrots.
Two medium sized fresh or canned tomatoes.
Lettuce.

MRS. JAMES BRUBAKER,
Coraopolis.
EGG TIMBALES WITH ASPARAGUS.

Beat six eggs, adding one teaspoon salt, a few grains of pepper, one-half teaspoon onion juice and one-half cup rich milk. Turn into buttered timbale cups. Set in a pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven until firm in center. Turn out on hot platter and surround with buttered asparagus tips.

Egg timbales are delicious when served with old-fashioned sauce.

MRS. J. B. DETRUF,
718 St. Clair ave., Jeannette.
WHITE FRESH COCOANUT CAKE

Two cups sugar.
One-half cup shortening.
One cup water.
Three cups flour.
Three teaspoons baking powder.
Four egg whites.
One teaspoon vanilla.

Cream shortening, add sugar gradually, cream well. Sift flour once before measuring. Sift flour, baking powder together four times. Add flour alternating with water. Beat well, then add vanilla and well beaten egg whites. Bake in two layers, 30 minutes, at 350 degrees Farenheit. Cover with boiled icing and freshly grated cocoanut.

MRS. SARAH BROMLEY
111 Overbrook Boulevard
LENTEN DISH

One can of kidney beans.
One large onion.
One green pepper.
One cup of celery.
One-half cup of cracker crumbs.

Cut the onion, pepper, and celery into small pieces and brown in butter. Put half the beans in a baking dish. Over this place the mixture of onion, pepper and celery. Add the remainder of beans and cover with cracker crumbs. Dot with butter. Bake until brown.

MRS. MARGARET DONAHUE,
R. D. 4, Box 125, Butler.
HOME-PREPARED CEREAL.

Place thinly-sliced whole-wheat bread in baking pans and put in oven to dry thoroughly and to brown. Grind in food chopper or crush with a rolling pin. Return to the baking pan, in which some butter has been melted. Sprinkle lightly with sugar, stir and put back in the oven to dry thoroughly.

Glass containers are ideal to keep this food indefinitely.

MRS. EUGENE E. ENNIS,
2426 Spring street,
BUTTERSCOTCH BROWNIES

Two-thirds cup shortening.
Two and two-thirds cup brown sugar.
Three tablespoons water.
One cup broken nut meats.
Two eggs, well beaten.
Two cups flour.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
One teaspoon vanilla.

Melt shortening and mix in sugar and water, add well beaten eggs. Sift flour, baking powder, and add to the shortening mixture. Add vanilla and one cup broken nut meats. Pour into well greased pan 12½ inches by 8½ inches and bake 40 minutes in a 325 degree Fahrenheit oven. When done remove them cut into squares and allow to cool in the pan.

MRS. IRENE YOGEL,
410 Chartiers street, Carnegie.
SPINACH BALLS.

Two lbs. spinach.
One-eighth teaspoon pepper.
One cup bread crumbs.
One and one-half teaspoon salt.
One egg.

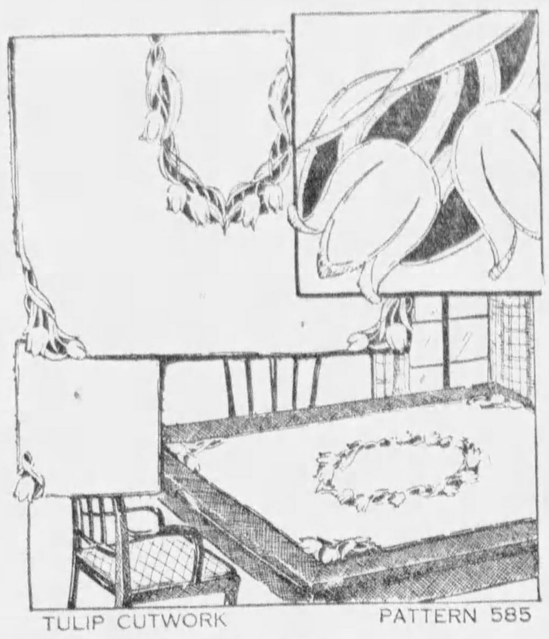
Snip stems from spinach and wash thoroughly. Place in covered saucepan with just enough boiling water to keep from burning. Cook five minutes or until just tender. Drain thoroughly, mix with bread crumbs, beaten egg and seasoning. Roll in finely sifted crumbs and cook in deep oil at 370 degrees Fahrenheit. Serves six.

MRS. E. I. RUMBAUGH,
617 Fourth street, Lock No. 4,
Charleroi.
LIVER GELATIN.

Two pounds liver.
Two teaspoons salt.
One-half teaspoon pepper.
One-fourth cup diced carrots.
One-fourth cup chopped celery.
One-half cup cold water.
One and one-half cups broth (in which liver was cooked).
Three tablespoons gelatin.
Cayenne.

Boil liver until tender. Grind, using coarse knife on food chopper. Heat broth to boiling. Follow directions for combining gelatin and liquid. Add liver, carrots, celery and seasoning. Pour into mold, chill until firm. Serve sliced on leaf of lettuce.

LAURA WHEELER DESIGNS



TULIP CUTWORK PATTERN 585

Cutwork Makes Choice Linens

To set a beautiful table is the ambition of every housewife. Here is a pattern of cutwork—that embroidery that is conceded to be among the most handsome forms of needlework—that gives her the opportunity not alone of enhancing her table linens but making delightful scarfs or smaller pieces for any room in the house. Simple to do, this tulip pattern—graceful and effective—has an added advantage. Unlike other cutwork, there are no bars in this design. Through this, the work is simplified and at the same time the contrast of the plain open sections sets off the design.

Pattern 585 comes to you with four 6x12 inch motifs, four 4½x6 inch motifs and six 2¼ inch corners for napkins, complete directions for doing cutwork and suggestions and yardage requirements for a variety of linens.

Send 10 cents for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

COLDS Go Overnight

When You Take The Right Thing!

A cold doesn't have to run its course and expose you to serious complications. A cold can be routed overnight if you go about it the right way. First of all, a cold being an internal infection, calls for internal treatment. Secondly, a cold calls for a COLD remedy and not for a "cure-all".

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is internal and direct—and it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is taking chances with a cold. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any druggist, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and beware of dealers who offer substitutes.

EXPERT BACKS 'OLDER WOMEN' IN BUSINESS

NEW YORK, March 2.—(AP.)—Even though all employers traditionally are supposed to want young and beautiful secretaries, said Mrs. Esther E. Brooke, many actually prefer older women.

Mrs. Brooke, a widely known personnel director, said there are many jobs for the woman "who has definitely left 40 behind and who can't very well deny it." She explained:

"There are two classes of older women. One type is the woman who has had lots of experience and should capitalize on it. This woman should be in a small office where her experience fits her for responsibility.

PREFERRED BY SOME

"A man with a small office, who has to be out a great deal of the time, prefers an older woman whom he can leave in charge, and who can open and close the place and assume responsibility.

"The second type is the woman of mature years who has been catapulted into business and who has potential assets but absolutely no preparation. We either have to find a job for her or make one."

As examples, Mrs. Brooke cited the cases of a well-educated, well-bred older woman who now is a successful insurance broker, another who established a taxicab business in her suburban community, and another who capitalized on her talent for giving parties by becoming a caterer.

URGES TRAINING

For college girls seeking employment, Mrs. Brooks urged some elementary business training. She said:

"There is an overwhelming group of college girls who want to go into business but have no training. They end either by selling behind a counter, if they can do it, or take secretarial courses.

"Employers prefer college girls when they have some business training. That's why it is so sad to see girls leave college without it and flounder around afterward."

TECH TO OPEN LABORATORY

Formal opening of a new chemical engineering laboratory at Carnegie Tech will be preceded by a dinner in Carnegie Inn at 6 p. m. tomorrow. Dr. Webster N. Jones, director of the engineering college, will be toastmaster, and speakers will include Dr Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Tech, and Dr. J. H. James.

A. E. Marshall, president of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers, will give an address on "Glass—An Engineering Material" in Engineering Hall after the dinner.

During the inspection of the laboratory, students will demonstrate the new equipment for distillation, absorption and drying, and small units for filtration, grinding and screening.

HARDWARE MEN GIVE SUPPORT TO SALES TAX

Enactment of national manufacturers' sales tax legislation as a substitution for the income tax was urged by the Pennsylvania and Atlantic Seaboard Hardware Association, Inc., in resolutions adopted today at the closing session of the annual convention in the William Penn Hotel. Copies of the resolution will be sent to Congress.

The hardware men also protested vigorously the practice of some manufacturers selling direct to the CWA consumers.

President Frank P. Fifer, of Philadelphia, said the delegates agreed that the enactment of the federal sales tax was fundamental to the establishment of an efficient and adequate plan for national recovery.

Membership in the association numbers approximately 1,500 and embraces the states of Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey and the District of Columbia. The resolution was introduced by J. E. McCullough, chairman of the resolutions committee.

A recommendation that the convention return to Pittsburgh next year also was approved.

BANKER GUILTY OF FORGERY

O. W. Brose, of 712 Charles avenue, Carnegie, former assistant secretary-treasurer of the closed Pennsylvania Bank and Trust Company, Lawrenceville, was found guilty of forgery in Criminal Court today.

The state charged that Brose forged a $9,455 note to cover a shortage in his accounts a year previous to the closing of the bank. George W. Woods, a handwriting expert, testified that the note, made out to Brose and indorsed by a "Robert Moreth," was in Brose's handwriting. The forgery was covered by the juggling of the bank's records whereby Brose credited his sister's account with $6,590, the state alleged.

Sentence was deferred by Judge George V. Moore pending an appeal by Brose for a new trial.

3 BOY COASTERS INJURED

Two 15-year-old Whitaker youths were in the Homestead Hospital today with injuries received in a coasting accident at Whitaker road and Eighth street, Whitaker, last night. The sled on which the boys, Samuel Ostrovitch, of 118 Cedar street, and Andrew Middleton, of 144 Riverview avenue, were riding overturned when it skidded in a trolley track.

Middleton suffered a fractured leg and Ostrovitch lacerations of the head and back.

George Milanovich, 13, injured when his sled struck another sled near his home, Hancock street, North Braddock, last night, was in the Braddock General Hospital today, suffering a possible fracture of the skull, received in the accident.

Jury Clears Barber In Death of Man

Regis Cappelli, 29, a barber, of 5453 Second avenue, today stood absolved in the death of Joseph Woholdo, 36, of 3653 Second avenue, who died February 11, in Montefiore Hospital from a wound in the chest.

At the Coroner's inquest yesterday, Cappelli testified Woholdo came into the barber shop slightly intoxicated and began to tussle with him. Woholdo slipped and fell on the shears Cappelli held, the latter testified. The Coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

Two Firemen Hurt At Building Blaze

Two firemen were injured slightly and damage estimated at $2,000 resulted from flames in the two-story brick building of the North Side Barber Supply Company, 927 Western avenue, late yesterday.

Capt. Robert A. Martin and Hoseman John O'Malley, cut on the hands, were treated at the scene. The blaze, originating in the basement, reached the second floor.

Ends Life in Store On Last Day of Job

Frank Ley, 59, of 4238 Perrysville avenue, who, according to police, fired a bullet into his head yesterday, his last day as manager of a grocery at 2318 East street, died last night in Allegheny General Hospital.

Ley was found in the store by a driver who heard a shot. He had been worried by financial difficulties and the transfer of the store to another manager, police said.

President's Ball Here Nets $7,090

J. C. Blair, executive secretary of the President's Ball, held in the Hotel William Penn January 31, reported the affair netted $7090. The money will be turned over to the Warm Springs Foundation at Warm Springs, Ga., for use in the campaign against infantile paralysis.

Jaywalkers Spared By Phila. Council

Single Persons Entitled To Exemptions on Tax

Credits Given Heads Of Families for Dependents

This is the fifth of a series of articles explaining the proper procedure in making out income tax returns.

Many persons, although unmarried, are entitled to a personal exemption of $2,500 as the head of a family for income tax purposes. In addition they may be entitled to credits of $400 for each dependent.

A taxpayer who supports in one household one or more individuals who are closely connected with him by blood relationship, relationship by marriage, or by adoption, and whose right to exercise family control and provide for these dependents is based upon some moral or legal obligation is classed as the head of a family.

As an example, a widower who supports his aged mother and a child under 18 years old is entitled to a personal exemption of $2,500 and credits of $400 for each dependent. This allows him a total deduction of $3,300 from his net income for tax purposes.

The $400 credit, however, does not apply to a husband or wife, even though one may be totally dependent on the other.

If the individual supported is an adult incapable of self support, the dependent must be financially dependent. If the dependent has an income, the credit cannot be claimed even though the taxpayer maintains a common home and furnishes the chief support.

Only one person in a family is entitled to claim the personal exemption as its head and to take the credit for dependents. If two brothers support their mother, only one can claim to be the head of the family.

The Internal Revenue Bureau frequently receives returns in which several members of a family claim the exemption as its head. Such cases may lead to trouble for the taxpayers.

It must be remembered that a single person whose income exceeded $1,000 last year must file a return, even though he is the head of a family and the personal exemption and credits for dependents were greater than his income and make it unnecessary for him to pay a tax.

SALES LEVY UP IN WEST VA.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 2.—(AP.)—Gov. Kump meets today with the House Finance Committee to explain his new alternative programs for raising revenue through a consumers' sales tax.

One plan, the Governor announced yesterday after withholding his revenue bills for revision, calls for a sales tax with exemptions for essentials such as foodstuffs, but with levies on luxuries.

The other would provide for a straight sales tax without exemption and without any special luxury tax.

Each program is designed to raise $10,000,000, half of which would be used for school operation.

The Governor accepted an invitation to meet with the finance committee in executive session after a resolution requesting his appearance before the committee had been defeated on the floor of the House.

Kump's original program provided for taxes upon cigarets, tobacco, amusements to meet relief needs, a consumers tax, "exempting basic human food articles," and recapture from utilities and large businesses of decreases in amounts paid under the tax limitation amendment.

MEYER CITES LOOPHOLES IN INCOME TAX

A vast majority of the people of the United States pay no income tax whatever and another considerable percentage evade the payment of that tax through investment in tax-free securities or other subterfuges or loopholes, John D. Meyer, assistant state attorney general and former United States Attorney, told members of the Pitcairn Kiwanis Club at their weekly meeting in the McGinnis Presbyterian Church last night. He said:

"The manufacturers' sales tax is easy to collect and difficult to evade. If in the whole United States there are only 26 people whose incomes equaled or exceeded a million dollars during the calendar year of 1932, as was recently announced by the Treasury Department, no considerable amount of tax can be realized from income taxation."

The sales tax comes nearest to the ideal tax of any system yet devised, Mr. Meyer declared. He continued:

"It follows the natural, human, psychological lines of thought, of interest, of desire and of behavior.

"The income tax levies placed upon corporations and individuals today penalizes success. The human viewpoint is that income belongs to the person receiving it. The income tax is a taking from one by the government The sales tax is a giving to the government.

"We want something, we ask the price, the price includes a tax. If our desire and purchasing power are great enough, we do not hesitate. The sale is made. The tax is paid and there is no omni present interest and desire to evade."

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Many of the globe trotters believe that nothing gladdens the heart like the patter of children's feet across the kitchen floor.

Quite a few requests have come in for information on how to acquire homeless children, especially the wards of the Juvenile Court.

All inquiries relative to these children should be made to Grace L. Stoakes, 521 Courthouse. Miss Stoakes is the chief probation officer.

Yesterday we had Ernest Heinrichs on the radio to tell globe trotters about the Johnstown Flood. The awful catastrophe occurred 45 years ago. At the time he was a reporter for a Pittsburgh paper and was one of the first on the scene after the tragedy.

After his talk Mabel Grubbs called from Swissvale to say that she has an ironing board that was caught by her grandfather as it was floating by on the flood waters.

In the lobby of the building yesterday was a stack of bundles addresed to me. Behind the counter of the lobby desk glowered several individuals who wanted to know what new devilment I had been up to, and what's the idea of cluttering up the place where they have to work?

I explained that those bundles contained discarded silk or rayon stockings and underwear to go to the Veterans' Hospital at Aspinwall for vets to make hooked rugs.

That made it okay. In fact better than a simple okay. They will welcome down in the lobby of the building any such discarded clothing as mentioned above for final removal to Aspinwall.

Incidentally the veterans there will soon get a radio. James Dyer writes that if I send out to his home in Brushton I can have one.

I have an idea that the auditor is beginning to wonder why the gasoline bills are starting to climb, but as long as he hasn't said anything yet I'll see that a Sun-Teelgraph truck or car will pick it up.

Ross Custen—All I knew about monoxide poison I wrote here. If in your investigation you discover something more I would like to have it. Suggest that you contact the United States Bureau of Mines on Forbes street. I'll bet they could get you all the information you need for your school thesis.

Y.M. & W.H.A. Aides Celebrate Festival

The ancient Jewish festival of Purim was celebrated by 120 workers in the $60,000 Goodwill campaign of the Y. M. & W. H. A. in Kaufmann's yesterday. Speakers were Rabbi Benjamin A Lichter, Edgar Kaufmann and Harry J. Applestein, president of the association.

Ohio Trojans All Puffed Up Over Radio Honors

Troy, O., last week designated as the average radio community, has gracefully accepted the honor, and through its Mayor, John R. Marshall, pledges co-operation in any and all plans to help improve radio programs and to commend those which need no improvement.

This assurance was transmitted to me yesterday in a letter from the Mayor, who explains that the diversity of industries in the town, together with its predominant percentage of native Americans, are factors which make it the average town.

"And," adds Mayor Marshall, "like the ancient Trojans, the citizens of this modern Troy also have launched a thousand ships—exactly a thousand, and they are airplanes, produced by a Troy plant, one of the most up-to-date airplane factories in the world."

AND SO WHAT?

As if anybody gives a darn, a distinct trend toward the banishment of studio applause is under way.

Amos 'n' Andy won't permit anyone inside their studio.

The Goldbergs have had less than 50 visitors in a year, and prohibit demonstrations so as to preserve dramatic illusions.

Crime Clues, the producers of which permit audiences, will not allow applause until the announcer says, "We're off the air."

Harry Horlick's Gypsies, to whom studio audiences listen, specify that there shall be no applause.

Jessica Dragonette's excellent broadcast is another where audiences are seen but not heard.

BUZZARD BEWARE

Al Williams' night-flying talks over NBC-KDKA have brought him countless letters from youthful airplane enthusiasts.

After a recent story of Al's about colliding in the air with a buzzard, an 8-year-old fan sent the famous flier a model plane with a painstakingly whittled shotgun mounted on it—and a note "In case you get into trouble with another of those turkey-buzzards."

Nancy Martin's songs and patter, to her own accompaniment, over KDKA every evening recall that I once urged Dick Koch, WCAE announcer, to do the same sort of program.

Dick, a student of Werrenrath's, sings better than most on the air, and plays piano with a pleasant touch.

NBC, Chicago, has wired KDKA for information about Vilma Rafael, the local soda dispenser who sang over the network with Bernie Tuesday night.

Radio News Broadcasts Resumed

NEW YORK, March 2.—(INS.)—Inaugurating a new news broadcasting service in which newspaper publishers, the country's leading news-gathering agencies and radio interests are co-operating, the press-radio bureau yesterday began operations, summarizing the news of the world for two daily broadcasts over three country-wide broadcasting chains and about 30 individual radio stations.

Organized under a recent agreement between the publishers, news agencies and radio corporations, the bureau receives daily the complete news report of the International News Service, Associated Press and United Press.

From these, the most important news is "boiled down" to brief, summarizing bulletins for morning and evening broadcasts.

Cream of the morning news is summarized for broadcasting after 9:30 a. m.

Most important of the afternoon's news is likewise summarized for broadcasting after 9:30 p. m.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Foster Good Health Habits

Recently I wrote about failure of elimination in adults. It was pointed out that this chronic disability is usually the result of neglect in early life. I want to tell you how to correct this fault when it appears in childhood.

Dr. Copeland

Every child should have a free movement once or twice a day. When two years of age he should be able to wait on himself. Unfortunately, many children neglect this habit and fail to ask for the necessary attention. The mother should instruct the child in his duties.

This is best accomplished by observing what time of day the urge appears and adopt this hour as the regular program. Do not keep the child in the bathroom longer than 10 minutes. If there is no response after several efforts, it is permissible to use a glycerin suppository. This will stimulate the movement and perhaps mark the beginning of regular action.

Of course, suppositories should not be used continuously. When the suppository is used make sure it is fully inserted and entirely dissolved. After its insertion, the buttocks should be pressed together for two or three minutes.

I am frequently asked at what time the child's movement is best adjusted to his welfare. It usually occurs in children, as well as in adults, shortly after breakfast. For this reason this is the best time of the day to choose for the function. The second visit to the bathroom may occur at any time of the day, but is most likely to be after the evening meal. The child should be given attention immediately after supper, or just before going to bed.

Encourage the child to drink three to four glasses of water a day. Meals should be served at regular hours and the diet should contain a liberal amount of laxative foods. Give raw fruits at least once a day and include among the cooked fruits such articles as prunes, apricots and rhubarb.

Never give a child castor oil or other positive cathartics unless advised to do so by the doctor. If the child has had no action for two days a small enema may be given. Persistent constipation requires medical attention, because it may be the result of some intestinal disturbance.

Bear in mind that early attention to the habit formation will prevent constipation and other associated disorders. I cannot over-emphasize the importance of establishing this important function at an early age. Do not consider it a trivial matter and trust entirely to nature. Attention of the proper sort will remedy this disorder.

Answers to Health Queries

A Reader. Q.—What should a girl of 18, 5 feet 7 inches tall weigh?

A.—She should weight about 134 pounds. This is about the average weight for one of this age and height as determined by examination of a large number of persons. A few pounds above or below the average is a matter of little or no significance.

CONTEST TO DECIDE COUNTY'S BEST SPELLER

POLITICS

Stokes Fails to Make Bargain With Harris

By MARK SHIELDS

Congressmen Edward Lowber Stokes, one of the numerous Republicans who would like to become a candidate for Governor, apparently is endeavoring to force the hands of a few other aspirants, while at the same time he seeks some sort of agreement among a group outside the inner councils of the organization which might be useful for a united revolt.

Mr. Shields

Mr. Stokes, a Philadelphian, has invited a group of eastern leaders to meet him for luncheon in his home town Monday. He also has invited Senator Frank J. Harris, whom he describes as "one of the most popular men in Allegheny County," and who has said, without any formal announcement, that he would like to be a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination. Senator Harris will be unable to attend, though he will be in Philadelphia Tuesday.

When Mr. Stokes was in Pittsburgh he and Senator Harris conferred, but both reported that nothing had occurred approaching an agreement that one should support the other. Now, it is apparent, Mr. Stokes is making another gesture. While the Philadelphian is silent, it is assumed that his proposition will be that he become a candidate for Governor, with Senator Harris the candidate for Lieutenant Governor, the two to run on a ticket.

An agreement of this nature would hardly suit Senator Harris. Even were he disposed to run for Lieutenant Governor, there is no reason in political intelligence why he should take a position secondary to Mr. Stokes. Of the two men, Senator Harris is by far the better known in Pennsylvania. If the Senator could be satisfied with second place on a ticket it probably would have to be with some man other than the Philadelphia Congressman.

Harris Still Hopeful Of Pinchot Support

Senator Harris has not abandoned the hope that he might be approved by the Pinchot forces, and become their candidate for Governor on the same slate which carries the name of Mr. Pinchot as a candidate for the Senate.

When Mrs. Pinchot was here last week she held a long conference with the Senator. It is understood that she was somewhat attracted by his presentation of his candidacy, though stating that there were some drawbacks. However, it is understood that other elements in the Pinchot circle, not in Pittsburgh, are not disposed to accept him, preferring Attorney General William A. Schnader.

Except for the impending Philadelphia conference, this would be a lot of space to devote to gubernatorial candidates in the Republican party. At the moment the public is not much interested in them.

Former Congressman Thomas W. Phillips, of Butler, is the only formally announced candidate, not having waited for "indorsements" from regulars or independents.

Voters Not Being Inspired By Leadership

But the myriad other candidates, in a year when the crusading spirit is the fundamental appeal to the voters, are exhibiting every attribute of the old days when back-room approval decided elections. It is not conducive to arousing the electorate in enthusiasm for the unterrified leadership which is being sought. And this criticism applies to "independents," with the exception of Mr. Phillips, quite as much as it does to regulars.

It is this hesitancy, this failure to stride out into the open, which has so depressed the candidacy of Lieut. Gov. Edward C. Shannon, perhaps to a point where it cannot be resuscitated. Gen. Shannon was boosted by soldiers, who were zealous in behalf of their commander. But politicians did not react. The general would make no announcement.

Unable to pledge to those with whom they talked that they had an actual candidate, a man who would surely run, and would not eventually muster himself out, thus leaving those who declared for him high and dry, the soldier enthusiasts found their boom petering out.

McNair's Candidacy Should Help Guffey

Mayor William N. McNair's speech last night in Johnstown, "amplifying" his state-wide platform, is interpreted as a declaration of determination to be a real candidate. His secretary, Theodore L. Moritz, said yesterday that the Mayor's name positively would appear on the Democratic ballot as a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination.

All of which should help the Democratic state organization ticket picked by Joseph F. Guffey and David L. Lawrence. It puts another candidate in the field, now assuring at least four and perhaps five. Numbers always aid an organization to win.

John McSparran, Secretary of Agriculture in the Pinchot cabinet, has announced he will seek nomination as champion of the drys.

Judge Charles D. Copeland, of Westmoreland County, is an anti-organization candidate on a full slate. And Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell, of Philadelphia, bitter foe of Guffey, says he is in the fight to the end, taking a double-barreled shot at Copeland and George H. Earle, the Guffey gubernatorial candidate.

Earle, he says, is a Republican, and Judge Copeland's "alliance with Andrew Mellon is so notorious as to eliminate him." And only two weeks ago the two jurists were in amiable conference trying to work out a program.

CHICKIE'S DAUGHTER

By Elenore Meherin

Synopsis

Pippin, pretty daughter of Chickie, and Kathie McPike laughingly appeal to Kathie's foster-brother, Kevin Malone, to take them to their first dance. Kevin promises. Then, teased by the two girls because he is eight years older than they, he seizes Pippin and kisses her. Pippin goes home to her mother to secure permission to go to the dance, astonished and thrilled at the first real kiss she had ever known. Given permission, Pippin attends the dance with Kevin and has a glorious time. Chickie thinks her daughter has gone into the strange land of adolescence too soon. Kevin sails to Europe and his first letter thrills Pippin. Pippin meets a handsome young ensign, Bill Lodge, at a ship dance.

Now Go On

CHAPTER VII

All a-shine and wanting to hum for the happiness, Pippin came softly up the stairs at 1:30 that night of the ship's dance.

David emerged from his study.

"Hello, girl. Have a sweet time?"

"Thrilling. Don't you ever go to bed, dad?"

"Once in a while."

He stared at her. He came over and put his hands on her shoulders and gave a queer, catchy laugh. Just like this, pale and with a radiance—a deep, startling beauty in her eyes, Chickie looked the night he met her first. He remembered how it touched along his nerves when she said with that fervor on her young, sweet mouth:

"I MUST succeed! It means more to me than to any other girl in the hospital. You cannot know—but it does, really."

He could weep, thinking of it.

Said Pippin, shaken: "David, what's the matter? You look strange."

He brushed a hand across his eyes and grinned . . . "I was thinking of another girl, and another night. Was the new man good?"

"Oh, David, can you ask? Is a man good?" She pulled his head down for a gay, laughing kiss. "They're all good! Far too good for the lily maid's good, if you're asking me, Big Boy!"

She went to her room, and, kicking off her slippers, sat a long while watching the light on Point Monita. Suddenly she stole to her bureau, and, with a soft laugh, took a picture from its hiding place. She gazed into Kevin's face, then shut her eyes quickly and kissed him.

"Oh, strong and beautiful—never one good enough. Only YOU!

But she went out with Ensign Lodge. She had a happy time. He said: "Pippin" lingeringly with a soft drawl. She loved it.

He looked down with adoring eyes and murmured: "You're the prettiest girl in the world." She like that, too, and the boxes of gardenias and orchids that came every day.

They talked endlessly, thinking themselves profound and philosophic. Pippin loved words and was audacious with them. But usually boys were stupid . . . like George Clark. You could say all sorts of brilliant things; George would give a dumb look and let the bright balloons float to a vacuum.

Appreciates Flowers

But Bill was quick. He was deep. Toss a gay word to him and back it came with new buoyance. Delightful game.

One afternoon Chickie loaned them her car. They drove up Twin Peaks. Here on the top of the world they saw the slate blue hills of San Francisco flowing down to meet the water. Tall spires of St. Ignatius crystallized a sense of exaltation which the view imparted.

Said the boy, slumping behind the wheel and letting his arm rest behind Pippin's shoulder:

"I'll never be happier than now. This is the best week of my life."

Pippin inhaled the exotic perume of gardenias.

"It's been good for me, too, Bill. I don't know whether you're rich or just frightfully extravagant, but it's simply delicious getting flowers every day. You know I've never been rushed before."

"Am I really the first man in your life, Pippin?"

"Give me a chance, darling. I'm young. Some day I'll have a 'past.'"

"You're teasing me, Pippin. You think I'm silly and too serious. But I'm 21. If I'm se-

EDITOR ACCUSED BY DETECTIVE

Charged with defamation of character, Edward T. Leech, editor of the Pittsburgh Press, today was arrested on a warrant sworn out by City Detective John Dean. He was released on $1,000 bond.

The charge resulted from publication of stories concerning the recent robbery of the Winer Style Shop, Fifth avenue and Stevenson street. Dean charged that news stories allegedly referred to his acceptance of $200 from William Winer, to assure return of the stolen goods. Mr. Leech said today:

"The Press does not and has not charged Detective Dean with any criminal act, but it has printed stories about the investigation of this peculiar case and it has demanded editorially that the circumstances surrounding it be cleared up. Perhaps this suit will furnish an opportunity to do so."

Guild at Duquesne To Hear Educator

"Catholic Philosophy and War" was to be the subject of an address by the Rev. Dr. Michael J. Brannigan, vice president of Duquesne University, at a meeting of the Women's Guild of the university at 3 p. m. today. Mrs. W. C. Eichenlaub, president of the Guild, was to preside.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

NEW YORK, March 2.

The first person to really question us on the worth of our 59-cent dollar is Panama. We are supposed to pay 'em 250 thousand a year for killing all their mosquitoes, and putting an irrigating ditch from one ocean to the other through their property.

Will Rogers

They say we are to pay in gold. Be a good joke on 'em if we just pick up our canal and come home.

Japan coronated the new Emperor of Manchuria. They would have had the coronation earlier, but they didn't have any armored car to haul him to the festivities in.

Washington got liquor yesterday. Must have been a big novelty—about like a baby being continued on milk. Yours, WILL.

EMMA GOLDMAN PLATFORM BAN PROTESTED

To Speak in Hotel Here; Denied Hall Given Aimee McPherson

Emma Goldman is coming to Pittsburgh—and already the social forces are clashing.

Aimee Semple McPherson is coming, too—but there is no fuss over a platform for her use.

Controversy over Miss Goldman, scheduled to lecture here March 13, arose over the matter of a hall. It seemed easy enough. The sponsors of her lecture applied to the board of directors of Carnegie Institute for the use of the music hall. Their application was denied.

SCHOOL HALL REFUSED

Then they asked the Board of Public Education, they say, for the Schenley High School auditorium, and were denied again. So they canvassed the theaters, and meanwhile reserved the grand ballroom att he Hotel Schenley, where, it has finally been decided, Emma Goldman will be heard.

Sponsors for the woman who 15 years ago was deported from the United States point out:

"Aimee McPherson didn't have any trouble."

The evangelist will appear at Carnegie Music Hall March 20, opposing Charles Lee Smith, of New York, president of the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism, in a debate on the topic, "There is No God."

OFFICIALS SILENT

The anarchist leader, who has been granted a 90-day permit to enter this country, will speak on "The Menace of Reaction," dealing with the "threat of fascism."

Samuel Harden Church, president of Carnegie Institute, last night declined to comment on the Goldman matter.

Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent of public schools, also declined to comment beyond the point of declaring that his advice, "where controversial issues are involved," is to keep the schools out of it.

'THIRD FIDDLE' HUTTON FREED

LOS ANGELES, March 2.—(AP.)—David Hutton won't have to play "third fiddle" to Aimee Semple McPherson any more. A divorce has ended all that.

He got it late yesterday. He settled his hefty form into a witness chair and in his best baritone told Judge Leon Yankwich his troubles.

The bitterest pill he swallowed in the two years and six months of married life, it seemed, was Sister Aimee's pronouncement that his ability to run her Angelus Temple was about equal to that of a switchboard operator. The Judge observed:

"You might have expected in marrying a woman of your wife's fame that you would be expected to play second fiddle."

Hutton replied:

"Yes, but I wasn't even second fiddle—it was less than that."

THREE INJURED IN STREET CAR COLLISION

Slippery Rails Blamed For Rear-End Crash At North Braddock

Three persons, including a mother and daughter, were recovering today from injuries suffered late yesterday when two street cars crashed at McConnell boulevard and Braddock avenue, North Braddock.

The injured are Mrs. Helen Olshesky, 50, of Boyd Hill, Wilmerding; her daughter, Miss Mary Olshesky, 24, same address, and a motorman, Joseph Plumbo, 42 ,of 358 Ashby street, Hays.

All received treatment at the Braddock General Hospital for slight injuries and were discharged. Plumbo received cuts on the hands, Mrs. Olshesky a slight concussion of the head and her daughter suffered shock and fright, the hospital reports.

The car operated by Plumbo, according to North Braddock police, crashed into another car which had stopped on the eastbound track for a red light.

Police and the railway company's traffic department said slippery rails made it impossible for Plumbo to stop.

The force of the crash shattered the cab windows of Plumbo's car, jammed its front door and shook loose the floor boards, according to police. It was in this car that Mrs. Olshesky and her daughter were riding together with about seven other passengers, police say.

Junk Dealer Ill, Poison Reported

Alvy Stewart, 40, of 1109 Island avenue, Stowe Township, a junk dealer, was in the Ohio Valley Hospital at McKees Rocks today after swallowing poison at his home last night, according to a hospital report.

Pu-Yi Takes Job In Armored Car And May Need It

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Pu-Yi went to his Manchu coronation in an American bullet-proof pleasure car.

Things must be getting better over here if we can spare one.

The populace gave him three rousing bong wongs and a hoop fat.

This is the third time Pu-Yi has been crowned and he is in for more trouble than a pig on the tracks.

Japan is for him. Russia is against him. That puts Pu-Yi in the middle with both doors locked.

Being a king nowadays is like joining the army. The first thing they ask you is the name of your nearest living relative.

Suing for Divorce

MRS. EDNA E. FISHER . . . SUING IN JEFFERSON COUNTY

Mrs. Fisher, mother of three, in Jefferson County suing for divorce from Frederick W. Fisher, Gabel Apartments, Ellsworth avenue, through the law firm of Charles J. Margiotti. They were married in 1916, lived at Punxsutawney until two years ago, parted in Pittsburgh last November, Mrs. Fisher sets forth in her law suit.

CAR RIDERS ASK HEARING

Continuing their battle to have service extended to Sixth street instead of Ninth street during rush hours, a committee representing districts served by the 95, 86 and 88 car lines has requested City Council to grant a hearing Monday, Alderman Frank T. Halloran, chairman, announced today.

The group conferred with Thomas Fitzgerald, Pittsburgh Railways Company vice president and general manager, yesterday but failed to reach an agreement.

Presenting petitions for relief signed by 10,000 persons, the committee, represented by Attorney Louis Dadowski, Jr., counsel for the Arsenal Board of Trade, charged that the short routing is an intolerable inconvenience.

Fitzgerald explained that the company short-routed the cars to avoid a traffic jam which would seriously interrupt the regularity of the service.

CWA WILL PAY BACK WAGES

CWA workers on a city sewer project who had three payless weeks as a result of the city's failure to stop the job when the appropriation ran out, were to be paid today, according to the Civil Works office.

Eric H. Biddle, state administrator, yesterday approved an allotment of further funds that will supply the men with their back wages. Checks had been made out and were held pending Harrisburg's approval of their distribution.

Salaries amounting to more than $25,000 due about 1,500 workers were tied up by the city's oversight, according to CWA officials. Many worked for three weeks and received no remunereation. The project was recently discontinued.

DRIVER KILLED, GIRL INJURED

Regis Gorman, 29, of 807 Fifth avenue, McKeesport, a chauffeur, was killed and Louise Katouch, 24, of Sutersville, a passenger in his machine, was seriously injured when their automobile skidded over an embankment in the Lincoln highway, near McKeesport, early today, according to a coroner's report.

Gorman was dead when the overturned automobile was discovered by a passing motorist. The girl was taken to the McKeesport Hospital with a probable fractured nose and internal injuries.

Gorman was employed by the Carl H. Borntraeger family, of 217 South Homewood avenue.

CHAMPION WILL VIE FOR STATE HONORS

Elimination 'Bees' In Districts Here Proposed

Allegheny County is to have an old-fashioned spelling bee as part of a state-wide contest to be held by the Department of Public Instruction in Harrisburg, it was announced today.

Dr. C. E. Dickey, county superintendent of schools, has granted the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph permission to sponsor the county contest.

Dr. Dickey has charge of the local contest in which a representative and an alternate will be chosen to compete in the state finals in Harrisburg, April 4.

CENTENNIAL FETE

The contest is to be a part of the public school centennial celebration commemorating the founding of the public school system in Pennsylvania in 1834.

Participants eligible to compete must be adults not now in school or college as students or teachers.

Each county will pick a "bee" winner, who will compete in the final event at Harrisburg, in the Forum of State Education Building.

Dr. Dickey will arrange for the conducting of the Allegheny County contest and will select the list of words to be used in the "spell-downs."

PRELIMINARIES LIKELY

Usual rules of old-time spelling bees are to be used. In picking the county winner, sectional or district preliminaries with a final county elimination will likely be held.

Many of the words used in the "bee" will be published in the Sun-Telegraph.

Throughout Pennsylvania spelling experts are already polishing up on such "jawbreakers" as "Popocatepetl" and "zygophyllaceous," an Associated Press dispatch said.

To the one who stands up under the barrage of word terrors will go the title of state champion.

EXPERTS FOUND

Dr. Leo L. Driver, chief of the rural school division in the state, has charge of the state contest. He declared that interest is already high, saying:

"The superintendent in Fulton County called me on the phone and told me he had the winners picked already. The superintendent in Bucks County said he has a fellow who can spell anything."

More details of the contest will be published tomorrow in the Sun-Telegraph.

Ribalow, Editor Of 'Hadoar,' Speaks

Menachem Ribalow, editor of "Hadoar," speaking in Beth Shalom auditorium last night, declared that the ancient Hebrew language is again becoming a living language throughout the world. He spoke at the closing session of the Purim festivities. He said in part:

"Works of American, English and German authors are rapidly being translated into the Hebrew. Prominent among them are Sinclair Lewis, Upton Sinclair, Edgar Allen Poe, Shaw, Wells and Lionel Feuchtwanger."

Man Ends Life With Gas, Blast Burns Wife, Son

Gas used by Sanford C. Tewzer, 55, to commit suicide, exploded after his death and caused a fire that burned his wife and stepson and damaged his Natrona Heights home, according to a Coroner's report.

Mrs. Viola Tewzer, 45, and her son by a former marriage, Raymond Campsie, 25, returned to the home, 1211 Princeton avenue, late last night. Campsie was smoking a cigaret. As he entered a terrific explosion occurred, blowing the side walls from the two-story frame building.

Mrs. Tewzer and her son, severely burned, were taken to the Allegheny Valley Hospital, Tarentum.

Volunteer firemen found Tewzer dead in a bed on the second floor of the home, after extinguishing the fire.

A hose from an open gas jet was near his mouth.

Deputy Coroner Robert D. Newman declared Tewzer ended his life by taking gas and the hose slipped from his mouth, letting the gas fill the house.

Firemen estimated the damage to the house at $4,000.

JUDGE LENCHER PAYS TRIBUTE TO 'NEW DEAL'

The President's new deal was praised last night by Judge Benjamin Lencher, of County Court at a dinner meeting of the North Side Chamber of Commerce in Boggs & Buhl.

The Judge asserted President Roosevelt should be commended for pleading with industrial leaders to co-operate with him in a plan to help themselves.

Referring to the "good old days" in 1929, when 4,000,000 people were out of work, the jurist said:

"There might have been a time when Eugene Grace (Bethlehem Steel Corporation president) was entitled to a $2,000,000-a-year bonus, but certainly not at a time when men were walking the streets starving."

Sharing the speaking program with Judge Lencher was President of Council Robert Garland and Ralph E. Smith, Public Safety Director. Frank E. Tencate, president of the chamber, was toastmaster.

Hospital Technician Loses Purse and Pay

Dorothy Yearsley, 25, of 5871 Ellsworth avenue, a technician at Allegheny General Hospital, reported to police last night loss of her purse containing a $50 pay check and $2. She was walking on Fifth avenue near Sixth avenue when she dropped the purse, she said.

Dr. Eddy to Lecture On 'Three Dictators'

Dr. Sherwood Eddy will speak on "Three Dictators: Dollfuss, Hitler, Stalin" in the Rodef Shalom Temple, Fifth avenue, at 8:15 p. m. today. The sisterhood and the Men's Society of the Temple are sponsoring the lecture.

Wills Urges Change In Social Systems

That present economic and social systems have outlived their usefulness was asserted by A. L. Wills, superintendent of the Juvenile Court Detention Home, last night at a meeting of the Pen and Hammer Club in Y. M. & W. H. A.

Useless laws and outgrown concepts must be modified, he said, if crime is to be abated in this modern age. He also advanced the theory that delinquents could be molded into useful citizens if they were placed in foster homes with proper environment.

BURGESS FAILS TO GET PAY

Emsworth's newly-elected Burgess, Thomas Lawry, is still an unsalaried employe of the borough today, despite his efforts to obtain a salary for himself at last night's meeting of Council.

Lawry listened for two hours while Council passed ordinances fixing salaries of other borough employes last night.

He then stood up and said:

"I want a salary."

Councilman Philip Marcel said:

"The Burgess has never received a salary before."

The discussion was closed when Chairman of Council J. C. Shaffer said the matter would be turned over to the Finance Committee.

The Burgess then asked Council to reinstate Patrolman George Wright, discharged two weeks ago as an act of economy.

Council voted five to two against the reinstatement.

Druggists Enjoined From Substituting

Federal Judge Nelson McVicar yesterday granted injunctions against 12 retail druggists in the Pittsburgh district, enjoining them from substituting other preparations for argyrol in filling prescriptions. The defendants consented to the decrees as did 18 others on February 23, in suits brought by the A. C. Barnes Company. No chain stores were involved.

HOME BANK AID GIVEN 1,700 IN DISTRICT

In three and a half months 1,700 loans aggregating $5,300,000 have been made by the Pittsburgh district branch of the Home Owners Loan Corporation, according to an announcement today.

This district comprises 21 counties. The Philadelphia district had only 200 more than Pittsburgh, the report shows. In the entire state more than 5,000 loans have been made to home owners of Pennsylvania, totaling around 13 million dollars, all advanced by the federal government.

Since August 1, applications have been filed in the state by 43,334 home owners asking for refinancing of property with a total mortgage indebtedness of $136,506,216, J. H. Mays, of Philadelphia, head of the Pennsylvania agency of the loan corporation, stated.

NEVER WAS SATISFIED WITH HER LAUNDRY SOAP

(AN ACTUAL EXPERIENCE FROM REAL LIFE)

Discovers Oxydol's Richer Suds

last even till her wash is done

READ MRS. URBAN'S LETTER

Mrs. Adele Urban Waukegan, Ill.

"I never have been satisfied with any soap, until I used Oxydol. It will keep its rich suds until you are through with the last garment, and when you have to do your wash by hand you certainly appreciate that!"

MRS. URBAN is another woman whose ideas about fast washing and white clothes have been completely changed, as her letter shows, by this new laundry soap discovery.

Why don't you try it? No matter what soap is your present favorite, try this latest scientific discovery.

OXYDOL is made by the same people who make famous Ivory. It's the latest, improved laundry soap invention of Procter & Gamble experts. And does these things no other soap can do or has ever done.

Cuts washing time 25% to 40% in tub or machine, thus saves hours of labor.

Gets clothes 4 to 5 shades WHITER, by Tintometer test, than other soaps. Whiter in ONE washing than ANY other soap can get them in TWO to FOUR washings!

Yet it cannot fade or injure either color or fabric. Special elements are so blended in it as to protect colors against fading. Even cotton prints and children's dainty frocks are safe. And it's so kind to hands that you're amazed at its power to clean clothes!

It works without back-breaking rubbing. For it works by dissolving dirt. OXYDOL SOAKS dirt out in 15 minutes. So you never have to scrub and boil clothes clean.

Thick 3-inch Suds in Any Water

The new, improved OXYDOL will make thick "soft water suds" in any water, hard or soft. Without added "softener" or washing preparations. This is why.

It is specially fitted to water conditions in each district where it's sold.

Water in this district, for example, has been tested for "hardness" by expert chemists.

And the OXYDOL you get here already contains just the right amount of softener to fit it.

You can see the results in the suds. OXYDOL multiplies 500 TIMES in suds! Which means at least twice as much "soap action" as from old-style soaps.

We knew it had to be better to win women from older ways. So we made it better, and now we urge you to try the new, improved OXYDOL in your own home. We promise you'll save hours of labor. You'll get clothes 4 to 5 shades whiter, without scrubbing or boiling.

You'll have no more fading colors; no "soap streaks" after ironing; no soap-bitten, red hands. And OXYDOL is economical. By actual test, a regular 25c package will do the work of 8 to 10 cakes of bar soap or 2 to 3 times as much flakes!

Accept FREE Trial

Send your name and address to Procter & Gamble, Dept. 48-4, Box 1801, Cincinnati, Ohio, and we'll see you get a regular 10c package (enough for 2 full washings) absolutely free. Or to avoid delay—get OXYDOL today from your own grocer.

Patricia Pitt

The tide of travelers is beginning to turn homeward. Among the first of the sun seekers to come back to town are the George Warren Blisses, who are just back in their Shady avenue home after a trip along the West coast of Florida.

They returned a week too early, however, Mrs. Bliss said, because they drove back in a blizzard. They stopped in Washington a short time before coming on to Pittsburgh.

During their southern visit, they stayed for some time at the Sarasota Hotel, in Sarasota, Fla. While there, they visited Alice and Cora Wells, who have taken a house in Sarasota until May.

C. L. Flaccuses Still Sojourning in Florida

The Charles L. Flaccuses, son-in-law and daughter of the Blisses, are still at the Nautilus Hotel in Miami Beach. The middle of this month they will drive to New York to meet their daughter, Jane, who is in school at Westover, and then they will all drive back here for the spring vacation.

Jane has already had one brief vacation—during the heavy snowfall, 10-foot drifts of snow kept both students and teachers away from the school buildings for several days.

Pittsburghers Visit At Palm Springs, Cal.

The Arthur L. Humphreys, of Edgewood, who are escaping winter at the Desert Inn, Palm Springs, Cal., have as their guests the R. M. Heinrichses, of Pittsburgh.

Mr. Humphrey, with a group of Desert Inn vacationists, went by airplane from Palm Springs to Boulder Dam Sunday. In the party was William A. Irvin.

Mary Roberts Rinehart, the novelist, of Washington, formerly of old Allegheny and Sewickley, has been spending the past several months at the Desert Inn.

Jury of Award Judges Soiree Charette Sketches

Members of the Jury of Award to judge sketches submitted for the invitation to the Soiree Charette of 1934 had luncheon yesterday in the Architectural Club following judgment. In the picture at the top of the page are three Junior Leaguers enjoying the amusing drawings.

The first soiree charette of 1934 will be given Friday night, April 6, in the Architectural Club and repeated the following night with the Junior League as sponsor for both evenings.

Proceeds will be divided among the architects who help to "put on" the evening. In this depression of little building, architects haven't been overburdened with work.

Nancy Hamilton to Be In New York Revue Cast

Here's a bit of news about Nancy Hamilton, popular daughter of the Charles Hamiltons, of Sewickley. She'll be one of the players in "New Faces," a revue to be presented in the New York Fulton Theater next week.

Nancy wrote one of the skits, moreover. She distinguished herself in Pittsburgh in her part in "The Blue Bird," given a few years ago by the Pittsburgh Junior League.

Bridal Couple Return From Honeymoon

Mr. and Mrs. William G. Kury are at home in Sterrett place, Crafton, after a honeymoon in the New York lake district, Canada and New England.

Before her marriage on February 14, Mrs. Kury was Miss Mary B. Elk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Elk, of Elliott. The ceremony took place in the Lorenz Avenue Evangelical Church at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The Rev. Claud E. Servey was the officiant.

The bride was attended by Miss Ruth Hoover, of Elliott, and Foster J. Hartman, of Brentwood and Conneaut Lake, served as best men. There was a dinner and reception after the wedding.

Uncle and Aunt Attendants at Nuptials

Mrs. Harry W. Loresch, Jr., was Miss Martha Peterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Peterson, of Delaware avenue, Oakmont, before her marriage to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Loresch, of Highland terrace, Aspinwall.

Mrs. Loresch

The ceremony took place February 15 in Wellsboro, Pa., with the Rev. E. Becker Brownell, pastor of the Methodist Church there, officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Merz, of Wellsboro, uncle and aunt of the bride, were the attendants. After a honeymoon in Florida Mr. and Mrs. Loresch, Jr., will be at home here about April 15.

The bride attended Mansfield State Teachers' College and the bridegroom is a student at the University of Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Jonathan S. Green Hostess to Epoch Club

Mrs. Jonathan S. Green, of St. James street, entertained the Epoch Club yesterday morning, when a biographical program was given. In her talk on "Pre-Raphaelite Friends," Mrs. Philip N. Harrison discussed principally the life of Burne-Jones, but included William Morris, Rosetti, Ruskin (to whom she referred as "the god-uncle of the group") and several others.

Mrs. Norman W. Storer completed the program with a review of Mary Hunter Austin's "Earth Horizon."

Aid for Needy Requested in Appeal

The Association for the Improvement of the Poor, through its president, Daniel M. Clemson, and the president of its Women's Auxiliary, Mrs. James H. Reed, is appealing to the residents of Allegheny County for contributions of newspapers, magazines, clothing and furniture.

Hundreds of men and women present themselves every day at the three restaurants kept open by the association from 6 a. m. until 11 p. m. No one is turned away. Every night hundreds of men ask for lodging.

Discouraging loafing, the association requires every man asking for food and lodging to do some sort of work.

Although the association thoroughly investigates every case, it first provides relief for the unfortunate individual or family.

'4 Million' Join Rich '400' in Southland

MIAMI, Fla.—Time was when only the poor little rich boys and girls came to play on Florida's gilded sands.

But President Roosevelt's New Deal seems to have brought about a new national psychology.

The new American creed is—play while the sun shines.

And so not only the glittering Four Hundred, but most of O. Henry's Four Million have hit the southward trail this year.

Station yourself on the causeway that connects Miami and Miami Beach and watch the crowds go by. You'll see chauffeured Rolls Royces and glittering Hispanos, bearing the Who's Who of American society.

But you'll also see thousands of dusty flivvers, bearing license tags from every state in the Union, filled with vacationists from the ranks of America's great working-again classes.

Florida business men are rubbing their eyes these days as they watch the throngs that pack the streets, the stores, the movies of a rejuvenated Miami.

Not only the fashionable hotels are packed with winter visitors escaping northern snows but every rooming house, tourist home and private residence is jammed with vacationing northerners.

A nation filled with renewed hope is taking time out to play.

Question—When is pottery like china in every way, and still not china?

Answer—When it's in the bases of these new lamps which we've been ogling. Here is pottery which has been admitted to the "four hundred!" Pottery which has been groomed and shined and finished off to such an extent that it gives the appearance of being a piece of finest china. In urn shapes, these, yellow, white and green. Some with celanese shades to match and contrasting piping . . . some with paper parchment shades in the new fluted effect and a great satin bow at the side. $3.98.

Nothing in the world so hip-less as a little boy. No wonder they have trouble keeping their trousers snubbed up at the waist (remember sundry fair youths' dragged-down-knees from same?).

Soooo . . . while we know that young boys won't thank us for the information . . . mothers doubtless will when we say that pants with lastex sides have made their appearance to a waiting world; Of sturdy tweed or herringbone stripes . . . grays, tans, browns . . . bar-tacked throughout, lined, with worsted cuffs below the knee . . . plus-four style . . . and enough pockets for all that "leather, marbles, strings and stones . . . sugar sticks and candy." A separate waistband to give better wear . . . you wise ones realize the importance of this kernel of knowledge. Sizes 6 to 18 . . . and for $1.98.

Dogs . . . squirrels . . . horses . . . well, we WILL admit we haven't seen pink elephants, but almost everything else . . . made into the cleverest clips and pins—of WOOD! Of course, you've seen wooden things of this kind before . . . but not wearing little crystal scenes on them (NOT REAL English crystals, of course, but good-looking enough, anyway.)

We particularly liked the hunting scene on the big wooden pin. And see old Dobbin's head peering at you from another! 55c and $1.00.

How many of you have a man who when taking off his shoes all but takes off his sock, toes, and heels as well! They WON'T untie their shoes half the time . . . but give them lastex laces and cease worrying over potential holes-to-mend!

These live up to their name . . . "give" enough that you can step out of and into a shoe without untying, easily. Yet they tie it tightly enough. A quarter well spent (25c). Black and brown.

They've just opened an adorable corner done up in gay yellows and greens . . . they've just received some swanky new Spring bonnets for you to see . . . and they've just decided that they'll play fairy godmother to you in this way we've mentioned . . . just why, well, 'cause they're like that! And you who have worn hats made and know the feeling will recognize this as a very large-sized slice of hattery (and it's not "mad" either!).

Designed to Please a Little Girl

Pattern 1501

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

Every little girl will adore this frock, as it has so much young charm. And it has style, too, just as much as a grown person's dress. For a little party frock it is most attractive made of swiss, dimity, voile or batiste and trimmed around the fluttery ruffle edge with lace. The same pattern can be used to make a gingham dress or one of a cotton print suitable for play and school. But then you should leave the lace off and edge it with self material, either in a ruffle, a facing or a binding. The skirt pleats lend delightful animation and give ample room for strenuous play.

Pattern 1501 is available in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 takes 2¼ yards 36-inch fabric and 3⅛ yards edging. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

THE NEW SPRING, 1934, EDITION OF THE PATTERN BOOK features all the best Spring styles for adults and children. Send for your copy of this interesting, helpful book and be chic this spring. PRICE OF BOOK 15 CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER 25 CENTS.

FAWCETT AGAIN RUMORED ALIVE

International News Service.

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 2.—The British legation here today considered another unofficial report from the Brazilian jungles that Col. H. P. Fawcett and his son, Jack, are alive.

This latest report concerning the noted British explorer, missing since he penetrated the jungles on an expedition in 1928, differed from others in asserting that Jack Fawcett had married the daughter of an Indian chief, and that she had borne him two children, each with blond hair and blue eyes.

The report is printed by a Rio de Janeiro newspaper in a dispatch from its Sao Paulo correspondent quoting a Brazilian contractor who declared he had become fast friends with Indian tribes in the jungles.

The Brazilian said he had seen many tree trunks in which Col. Fawcett's initials had been carved, and that Indians had told him a white man, speaking a language unknown to them, had carved the initials recently.

EMPEROR DONS AMERICAN CLOTHES

HSINKING (Changhun), Manchukuo, March 2.—(AP.)—The Emperor Kang Teh, disdaining his dragon robes, donned an American sack suit and puffed on American cigarets today as he began his reign over 34,000,000 Manchukuans.

The man who was plain "Mr. Henry Pu-Yi" until his elevation yesterday to the ebony throne, was obviously exhausted this evening by that ceremonial and the busy hours that followed.

CHINESE FARE

Using chop-sticks with no apparent appetite, he toyed with Chinese chow mein, shark's fins, rare fungi called "Buddha's ears," dove's eggs, octopus tentacles, lily roots and bamboo shoots.

The food was prepared by trusted Manchu cooks, who served him when he was the Boy Emperor of China 22 years ago, but even they were watched by others in the official family of the imperial palace.

It was reminiscent of the strange scene yesterday, which found 50,000 Manchukuan soldiers in town to protect Kang Teh during the enthronement—and these 50,000 watched closely by Japanese troops.

RISES BEFORE DAWN

The Emperor, rising before dawn today, chanted a prayer to Buddha at sunrise. He bathed and breakfasted lightly of rice, pickles, sweet cakes and weak tea. He hates big banquets, friends said, and occasionally he switches from native dishes to such American fare as ham and eggs, flapjacks, baked beans and apple pie.

Clad in the sack suit, with a green fountain pen protruding from a breast pocket, the emperor walked about the palace grounds in superb weather.

He interrupted the short walk to play with his pet mastiff. He loves animals.

Thereafter, returning to his tiny office, Kang Teh examined a great heap of gifts and read Japanese, Chinese and English newspapers describing the enthronement.

Doctor Attends Injured Mother, Dying Father

MILWAUKEE, March 2.—AP.)—When Mrs. Libby Levin suffered a fracture of an ankle in a fall yesterday she was taken to Mount Sinai Hospital where, in the operating room, she met her son, Dr. A. J. Levin, who practices there.

At home Mrs. Levin's husband, Rubin, was so distressed by her misfortune that he suffered a heart attack.

He too was taken to Mount Sinai. He died during the night with his son's fingers on his wrist to feel the failing pulse.

READ IN TOILS, ROBBED CLAIRE

LOS ANGELES, March 2.—(AP.)—Alfred C. Read, Jr., is serving a 30-day jail term today for stealing $11 from Claire Windsor, actress.

Read was convicted December 7.

Miss Windsor testified Read took the money, consisting of marked bills, from a purse she left on a chair in her home when Read visited there last October 14.

Read insisted the actress, recently involved in an alienation of affection suit brought by Read's former wife, had given him the money. He went to jail yesterday.

WHAT TO COOK, HOW, TOLD BY PRUDENCE

NEAPOLITAN MACARONI MOLD

This dish will go down in family history as The Beehive—children will clamor for it by that name and grown-ups will be amused by it. Strips of boiled macaroni coiled end to end inside a round mold make the hive; the center is filled with an Italian meat-sauce mixture of chopped meat, grated cheese and tomato. It's a fine way to use up leftovers in a most unusual luncheon or supper dish.

Step by step the macaroni mold is built as follows: Count out about 60 long sticks of macaroni and add it to 2 quarts of rapidly boiling salted water, being careful not to break the pieces. Cook until tender, drain and rinse with hot water. Reserve the best long sticks and cut in small pieces enough macaroni to make 1½ cups. Melt 2 tablespoons fat, add 2 tablespoons chopped onion and 1 cup chopped beef, veal or poultry, raw or cooked. Stir and cook 1 minute. Add ½ cup grated cheese, ½ cup solid canned tomato drained from juice, the 1½ cups cut-up macaroni and 1 egg slightly beaten. Season with 1 teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon table sauce. Mix thoroughly.

Grease a round one-quart mold or baking dish and line bottom with the long pieces of macaroni, beehive fashion. Add a little of the mixture and continue coiling the macaroni around sides of mold, filling with the mixture until mold is full. Bake 20 minutes in a hot oven, 400 degrees F. Turn out on a platter and sprinkle with 3 tablespoons melted butter. Surround with alternate piles of but-

Salmon Among Most Valuable of Fish Foods

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Former Health Commissioner of New York City. United States Senator from New York.

"Protein poor diets are poor economy."

So said a famous food scientist recently. He warns against diet lacking in protein because of the severe damage that occurs to the body as a result.

Proteins are the muscle and cell-building material essential to the making of strong and straight bodies. These are necessary to make up for the wear and tear of the tissues.

Fish is one of our best sources of protein. Salmon is among the most valuable of fish foods. This has been known for centuries. Salmon was considered an important food in the days of the Roman empire. At one time, England and Scotland supplied Central Europe with salmon. Our early colonists of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries depended greatly upon salmon as an important food.

Large schools of fresh salmon are found along the Pacific and Atlantic coasts. There are many species. They vary in color of flesh from light pink to deep pink. Many believe the Columbia River salmon to be the finest. They are large and beautiful fish. Fresh salmon is on the market from early spring until late in the fall.

Salmon contains large quantities of fat and iron. It is rich in iodine. As I have said, it is an excellent source of protein. It contains vitamins. Recent experiments have proven it of great value in the prevention of pellagra.

CONTAINS IODINE

Pellagra is a skin affliction caused by a lack of certain vitamins in the diet. The disease is characterized by a skin rash. It occurs in individuals who live on cereals and sweets. It can be cured by including more important foods in the diet. The iodine found in salmon also makes it an important food in the diet of individuals suffering from goiter.

Salmon is marketed fresh, frozen or canned. Canned salmon is probably one of the best foods known to man. The canning industry is one of the largest. The product is used throughout the United States and large quantities are shipped to foreign countries.

VALUE RECOGNIZED

It is only within recent years that the real value of the salmon has been recognized. Every effort is now made to protect that fish against extinction. In consequence, restrictions are placed on the salmon catch. Millions of salmon eggs are artificially hatched each year. This prevents the danger of the total destruction of this important fish.

When planning a meatless dinner, use salmon as your main dish. It is an excellent substitute for meat and supplies the body with all the important elements found in meat. Either fresh or canned salmon may be used. It may be baked, broiled, boiled, creamed or served in a salmon loaf.

Salmon appeals to the eye because of its lovely color and to the palate because of its tempting flavor. It is nutritious and wholesome. It deserves popularity in the diet of everyone.

Mushrooms Kill 11 Vegetable Pickers

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Cal., March 2.—(AP.)—The deaths of 11 Filipino vegetable pickers were attributed to poisonous mushrooms today, as physicians sought to save the lives of 15 others who had partaken of the deadly fungi at an impromptu feast.

Six of the Filipinos died Wednesday and five more died yesterday.

BEAUTY MEET ARRANGED HERE

The annual tri-state beauticians' convention and spring trade show will open for a three-day session in the Edlis Building, Boulevard of the Allies, at 9 a. m. Monday. More than 5,000 are expected to attend the lectures and demonstrations which will be given every afternoon and evening.

Manufacturers will exhibit the latest developments in beauty shop equipment, and Condes, internationally known coiffure creator, will appear as guest artist.

The convention will close with a hair style creation show and a dance in the Hotel William Penn Wednesday night.

BONUS BONDS SOLD BY PA.

HARRISBURG, March 2.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania has sold 30 million dollars worth of soldiers' bonus bonds to the City Company of New York for $100.659 per $100.

The state will pay 3.19 per cent annually for the money, compared with 3.73 per cent for the last issue of relief bonds.

The City Company's bid was for 3¼ per cent bonds. The only other bid, submitted by Drexel and Company, of Philadelphia, was $102.069 for 3½ per cent bonds.

The voters authorized a 50 million dollar bonus bond issue at the November 7 election. The remaining 20 million dollars worth of bonds will be sold as the funds are needed.

Adjt. Gen. David J. Davis expects to begin bonus payments about March 15.

All veterans who gave Pennsylvania addresses at the time they entered the World War, Spanish-American or Philippine conflicts and Boxer Rebellion are entitled to compensation.

Davis estimates about 400,000 are eligible. Already he has received more than 200,000 applications.

Clergy to Attend Meet in Boston

The Rev. Dr. Sanford W. Corcoran, superintendent of the Methodist Episcopal Church Union, and the Rev. Dr. Albert G. Curry, director of the Pittsburgh Goodwill Industries, will represent the latter organization at the annual institute of the National Association of Goodwill Industries in Boston, Mass., on March 4. Dr. Curry will read a paper.

Peace League Plans Downtown Parade

The Pittsburgh League Against War and Fascism will hold protest parade through the downtown district tomorrow afternoon to be followed by a demonstration on the North Side. The group will form at Fifth avenue and Dinwiddie street at 1 p. m.

There IS a Difference

IN SUGAR

Pure Cane Sugar, as refined in this country, has established a definite standard of quality by which America's sugar values are measured and judged.

How can you KNOW you are getting this standard excellence in the sugar you buy?

The surest way is to demand an identified cane sugar. Then you know—

tered string beans and sliced tomatoes.

Below are listed more of the recipes receiving "honorable mention" in the Prudence Penny Contest.

BAKED HAM—1 10 or 12-pound ham, 1½ pounds brown sugar, 1 pint sherry wine (cooking sherry), 1 cup vinegar (not too strong), 1 cup molasses, cloves (whole).

Scrub and cleanse ham; soak in cold water over night; in morning place in a large kettle and cover with cold water; bring slowly to a boiling point and gradually add the molasses, allowing 18 minutes for each pound. When ham is done remove from stove and allow it to become cold in the water in which is was cooked.

Now remove the ham from water; skin and stick cloves (about 1½ dozen) over the ham. Rub brown sugar into the ham; put in roasting pan and pour over sherry and vinegar. Baste continually and allow it to warm through and brown nicely. This should take about ½ hour. Serve with a garnish of glazed sweet potatoes. Caramel from ham is served in a gravy tureen. Remove all greases from caramel. Submitted by Florence McFarland.

APPLE BRAN SCALLOP—6 tart apples, pared and cut in ¼-inch slices; ¾ tsp. cinnamon, 1 cup sugar, juice of 2 lemons, 4 tbsp. butter, 1½ cups whole bran.

Arrange apples in greased baking dish. Combine cinnamon with ¾ cup sugar and sprinkle over apples. Add lemon juice. Cover tightly and bake in hot oven (25 degrees F.) 20 to 25 minutes, or until apples are tender. Cream butter, add remaining sugar, and cream together until blended. Work in whole bran evenly. Sprinkle bran mixture over apples and return to oven. Bake uncovered 15 minutes longer, or until topping is crusty. Serve hot or cold with cream, if desired. Serves 6. DENTAL CHAIR COMFORT FOUND

CHICAGO, March 2.—(AP.)—A dental chair which its inventor believes the patient will climb into without dread was demonstrated in connection with the Chicago Dental Society's annual convention, in session today.

Dr. Elmer S. Best, of Minneapolis, said its development was due to experiments which revealed to him that music had powers also to charm away that mental shrinking with which most people regard their session in dentists' chairs.

Over a period of months, Dr. Best said, he conducted a series of tests which convinced him that people listening to music were oblivious of the grinding of the drill on their teeth.

Applying his idea, he has worked out a plan whereby a wire connection brings music from a cabinet through the dental chair's headpiece to amplifiers which press against the patient's mastoid bones. The patient absorbs the music through the bones and the contrivance can be tuned so low that the music is inaudible in the room.

He said children become so completely interested in the music that frequently they have forgotten their teeth were being worked upon. Adults, the inventor claims, come through a session of dental drilling relaxed and rested.

Absence Makes the Heart Grow Fonder—Sometimes

Absence makes the heart grow fonder, as the wise-cracker says, OF THE OTHER GIRL.

Yet "absence makes the heart grow fonder" is one of those unique groups of words which has outlived the author. For I was surprised when I saw in the Sun-Telegraph in the short paragraphs at the foot of the editorial page that this bit of wisdom had been said by one Thomas Haynes Bayly. Now, Thomas may have been one of the satellites of his time, but I'll wager you know nothing about him. Neither do I.

We are told old sayings mostly are true. They have grown up out of experience. We must swallow them wholesale. And quote them whenever they fit. And thereby we may be looked upon as erudite. Yet in this one, there is that grain of salt upon which even the wise choke.

In stories absence may be a plant with many roots, which flourishes in flowers and fruit. But in real life it is an ugly sapling which is liable to cause all emotion to wither and die. Can a girl go away indefinitely and leave a man no matter how ardent he is? Can she return to gather up this love affair of hers at the exact point of departure?

Everytime, or at least nine times out of 10, it can't be done. Peculiar little circumstances have stepped in to spoil the perfect dream. And all too often the most pernicious circumstance is another girl.

I am not sure that the wisest of the modern love era does not sit right on the job until the man of her choice is landed, and then that she does not keep on sitting until "death" does the work of separating.

If I were a girl and had my eyes glued on a certain young fellow whom I longed to have as my very own, I would sing a paean of gratitude when I saw in the society columns, or gathered up from the newsstand at the corner that my rival had gone to visit friends in the Far West.

It is much less courageous than battling with a rival on the same grounds. But it is much more sure. And after all, surety is what many women are looking for.

LOST BOY FRIEND

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am a young girl and have worked for a living ever since I was 18. I have been fed up on much reading and nearly all theory. For I have had little actual practice where real men are.

A few months ago I met a law student and he and I liked each other from the first. He took me to dances and the movies. And we had a good time. We have become very fond of each other, at least I have of him; but I am afraid to let him see that I care. So I assumed an indifferent air several weeks ago, and let him think his coming to see me was unimportant. And one evening when he asked me to go somewhere, I said I was busy; and wasn't.

He hasn't been back since. What shall I do? I have been brought up on the idea that a man always is more anxious when he has to seek. I also have been told absence makes the heart grow fonder.

But I hear the law student is now taking out a girl we both know, and whom he has told me he didn't think much of.

What shall I do, as I care a great deal for him?

MISS THEORY.

Men are smarter than the average girl gives them credit for. Maybe the young law student saw through your maneuvers and resented them. Or he may have found out you did not have another date, and thought it your way of dismissing him. After all, a girl has no other nice way to show a young fellow she doesn't want him, other than "not being at home" when he wants to see her.

INVITE HIM BACK

A law student usually is a serious-minded fellow, and he hasn't time to waste upon unreciprocal girls. And belonging to the gender that likes relaxation, he may even go out with someone whom he does not care especially about, when he can't get the one he wants. In time, though, he may find out this other girl has more good qualities than he has imagined, and learn to care for her.

So, Miss Theory, go to the telephone and call up your law student and invite him to see you. And even if he backpedals at first, try again. His pride may be roused, you know. Don't let him spoil his own life or yours by your own false actions . . . . And when he asks you to go out the next time, jump at the chance. And don't be trying out any of your theoretical antics on him.

Remember only reasoning minds go into law. Also recall the lawyers whom you have read about and known personally, and look at such men's wives . . . . That will be of benefit to you. Abraham Lincoln was a lawyer. Reams have been written upon the fact he married the wrong woman. Calvin Coolidge was a lawyer. We all know he married the right woman.

Fay King Has a Thought Regarding the Villain of Real Life

By FAY KING

In the old "meller-drama" days actors took a curtain call by crossing the stage singly.

The hero, heroine, ingenue, juvenile, character actors and soubrette were rewarded by hearty applause.

When the villainess crossed, cheers were mingled with hisses, for many would not hiss a woman however well she played her wicked role.

But when the villain came, pausing to twirl his mustache, with a gloating sneer, and spanked his riding boots with a whip, the unanimous hissing was like steam from a great volcano. He loved it!

Sometimes I think those who play the villain in real life welcome the criticism, condemnation, and "rise" they get out of their public, as much as the stage "villain."

It is the "success" they must have expected!

A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Avis Drops Out of Chase of Bridal Couple

If I ever got Avis Arlen out of my house, I said to myself viciously, it would take a miracle or a cataclysm to get her back in it again.

I never have seen a woman with so inordinate an appetite for masculine attention as has this girl. She prefers, of course, to annex the most personable and eligible man in her immediate circle, but, failing that, she will run the gamut of the other men in the group, omitting neither decrepit age nor immature youth, if nothing else masculine is around.

In the present instance, Bill and Hank from preparatory school, were the only unattached males in her ken. Characteristically, therefore, she had singled out Bill, the older of Mary's two brothers, as the target for the attentions prompted by her vanity.

Unfortunately for her purpose, however, her egotism had led her to forget a little episode in the preveding summer when Bill, in the throes of a boy's first "calf love," had had eyes for no one but Marion. It was Hank whose schoolboyish fancy had been attracted by the seductive wiles which Avis had deliberately used in an endeavor to fascinate Bill.

OTHER BOY DISAPPROVES

She had mixed her memories, and her man, and reaped the result of her error in a rebuff as humiliating as it evidently was unexpected.

"Aw, that's no fun, goin' in a separate car," Bill said, with all the effect of a growl, "I want to go with—with the rest of them."

He finished the sentence lamely, with his eyes fixed in somewhat sheepish fashion upon Lillian Underwood's lovely young daughter. He could not have said more plainly, "I want to go with Marion," if he had shouted the words.

That Avis realized the mistake she had made I knew when she spoke again, in what was patently a desperate effort to secure a drive alone with the young man. Almost any girl, save one with the colossal self-conceit of Avis Arlen, would have recognized her defeat and accepted it more or less gracefully. But not Avis!

"Did I say Bill?" she asked, with a little air of naivete which was quite creditably fetching. "So stupid of me! I always mix things up so! I meant to say Hank. You think it's more fun to go in the small car, don't you?"

AVIS STAYS BEHIND

But Carolyn evidently had been carrying out the injunction laid upon her earlier in the day. That she had been "taking Hank in hand" was most patent, when he sent a glance at her that matched the one Bill had cast at Marion, and muttered, "No, I don't think that at all. I want to go all together."

But Avis already had switched her mental engines.

"Please count me out," she said sweetly. "Anybody who knows me will tell you I'm a pussy-cat; I detest getting rumpled. And I'm sure it's a wild goose chase, anyway. They've been too clever for you. You'll never catch them now."

"Suit yourself," Carolyn said carelessly. "As for me, I'm going."

But Marion, with the inhibition of hospitality upon her, lagged back.

"Are you sure you won't come, Avis?" she asked. "We'll try not to crowd you."

"That's awfully sweet of you," Avis cooed in return, "but I really don't care to go."

Bob, in the driver's seat, with Carol next to him, spoke impatiently.

"Never mind the etiquette book, Pats," he said. "Pile in! Come on, Bill! Room for one more in the front seat. Hank can crowd into the rumble with Pats and Ron."

My smile at this ingenious planning of Bob's was tempered with pity for Hank and Bill. With the mischievous cruelty of the young, Bob had arranged it so that neither of the preparatory school boys sat next to the girl of his boyish dreams.

But Mary's young brothers "kept face," and piled into the car with the others, to all appearances as jolly as the rest. As Bob sent the car out of the gate, I heard Edith Fairfax's voice behind me.

"What a heavenly night for a drive! What say, Dicky-bird? Can't we get up a party, too, for chasing the bridal couple, or going to see the ocean by moonlight—anything that will get us out?"

Contract Bridge :-:

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Disaster

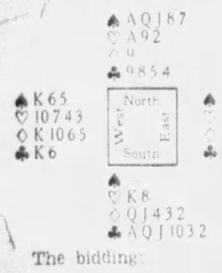
At times in match point Duplicate play, even the very best players achieve some amazingly ludicrous results. Although it is very rare in rubber Bridge that an expert is set more than 500 or 900 points, occasionally in Duplicate some of our leading lights are set anywhere from 1400 to 4500.

In these columns in the past I have told of some of these occurrences. In particular I recall one hand where one expert pair went down 2700, and on the same hand another star combination, playing in the opposite direction, was set 4500.

The reasons for these occasional large sets should be apparent. A bottom score on a board in match-point play is the same bottom whether the margin be 10 points or 10,000. Therefore, if a team sees that it is in a bad contract and a set of one trick will result in a cold bottom, it is more than worthwhile to make a desperate effort to fulfill the contract, even though failure will result in a four or five-trick set. Let us try to account for the large penalty incurred by North and South on today's hand.

North, dealer.

North and South vulnerable.



The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣ (1)	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
3 N T (2)	Dbl (3)	Redbl (4)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—Good distribution but not strong enough for a Force.

2—North does not wish to pass after his partner's very strong bidding. Not knowing what the exact distribution of the South hand is, he prefers to play for the nine-trick game in notrump rather than the eleven-trick game in clubs.

3—It is hard to account for this double by East except simply by the fact that he is a "sporting" player. However, the amazingly good result obtained would seem to justify East's bid.

4 South welcomes East's Double with open arms. Before the Double he did not know since the hand was being played in a match-point tournament whether to be content to play the hand at three notrump or to try for a game or Slam in clubs, with the additional honor count. It does not occur to him that three notrump can be defeated, and therefore he relies upon East's Double as evidence to score an unquestioned top without any further bidding worries. He knows that the hands do not fit, but does not see how his partner can fail to take nine or more tricks at notrump.

East opened his fourth-best heart, which Declarer won with the Ace in his own hand. After the club finesse lost and the heart King was removed from Dummy, Declarer could see that he had but eight tricks and practically no chance of making the ninth. He saw one ray of hope, however, and even though it seemed like a million-to-one shot, decided to play for it. He quite correctly decided that three no-trump redoubled, down one trick, would be a bottom score anyway.

At trick 4 Declarer returned to his own hand with the 8 of clubs and boldly played the Knave of spades from his own hand, hoping that the East player held the King and, having a brain storm, would pass it. Obviously, however, this play never came off. West won the trick with the spade King and then East cashed two heart tricks. Declarer boldly discarded diamonds from Dummy, hoping that the opponents would, because of his very boldness, keep away from the diamond suit. This also never occurred, and, after the two heart tricks, East and West ran four diamond tricks, defeating the contract four tricks redoubled and vulnerable, for 2,800 points.

As North explained afterwards, "you cannot get worse than a bottom on any one board."

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beekman

Second Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

I am to be married next month. As I am divorced I would like to know what to wear. I would like to wear all white and a veil. Is that wrong? It will be just a small wedding, just a few friends. Could I have a small church wedding?

BRIDE-TO-BE

The wedding attire that you would like to wear I fear you cannot, because the bride-for-a-second time should not wear a white wedding dress or the bridal veil or orange blossoms. And if you do wear this attire you will, undoubtedly, and quite justifiably, be criticised. Instead wear a frock of some charming and becoming shade and [illegible] hat. By a private wedding I [illegible] if this is permissible in your denomination.

Walter Winchell + ON BROADWAY +

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

Among other things that burn me up and knock me colder than the temperature at a winter resort in the South is this . . . The Washington National Museum was curious to know how many feathers a sparrow had . . . So they equipped several girls with tweezers—and sent the girls out to pull the feathers one at a time . . . The feathers were later counted and it is now definitely known that the majority of sparrows have as many as 2,500 feathers! . . . Nice people . . . A man who suffered, he says, from false accusations some time ago—is screaming his head off now—because after he maliciously abused and condemned another—the victim snapped back publicly with a document about him which he now alleges was "all a lie!" . . . You'd think that a man who knows how wretched it feels to be the victim of such lies (if they are lies) wouldn't tell them about others . . . You'd think, too, that such a man would be the last to accuse anybody—whether the allegations were true or not—considering, as he now hysterically cries, that he himself had been the victim of perjury . . . And so—I referred him to any dictionary—where he might find sympathy.

The other night at the broadcasting studios—after the Dartmouth students perished from gas fumes—one father of a student phoned . . . "Would you be so kind to tell me the names of the casualties?" he inquired . . . We read the list slowly . . . When we came to the name of one of the boys—the man gasped and groaned . . . It was a burden I hope I never carry again . . . Heifetz, the renowned violinist, was going on the air on a special program that same night . . . As he ankled into the big studio with his fiddle box in one paw—a page boy stopped him . . . "Musicians take the door to the right," said the page . . . "But I am the attraction here tonight," said the famous fiddler. "I am Heifetz." . . . "I don't care if you are Rubinoff!" said the boy and he didn't! . . . I like that girl all the more now . . . I mean the one in the chorus of that night club revusical—who went up to the manager and frankly said: "Look, now, I'm leaving the show tomorrow night. I'm going to be married. I only met him a week ago—and he seems like a nice fellow. But I'm not sure. I'm going to take a chance. If I don't like it three months from now—may I have my job back?" . . . The manager smiled a little, and then told her it would be waiting for her if she wanted it . . . Of course, she mustn't get too plump. She has the shapeliest set of stilts on Broadway.

A story I saw in only one gazette and not in any other here struck me in the right rib . . . Congressman Cannon, a Democrat of Wisconsin, it appears, is going to stop all those phoney titles of colonel and general for celebrities. . . He hopes his bill against the thing goes thru . . . He revealed that Gene Tunney had to win the world's championship to rate a phoney military title—and the Congressman thought it was pretty queer that Gene had to be a champ to get it—considering how long he spent in the Marine Corps . . . Rep. Cannon also argued about other celebs with titles given them by publicity seekers, who liked having their photos taken with the movie stars, et al . . . "But what really got under my skin," added the statesman, "was a rumor that even Ben Bernie was to become a general!" . . . Haw!!!

Someone, I think, should get in touch with James Thornton at once and explain it to him . . . The veteran headliner, who is as nimble with the funny crack as ever, was engaged for one performance at a night club one recent Sunday night . . . And the favorite of several generations ran off with the honors again . . . His comments clicking big, the laughter coming in bunches . . . Apparently he didn't realize he was booked for only one night, for he said to Frisco the other day: "I'm feeling awful, Joe—gee whiz—you'd think from the way I went that night—they would have kept me the whole three days!" . . . It is a new show business to Thornton—who has played everything—big and small time—two shows a day and five—full weeks and split weeks . . . It appears that that Thornton was under the impression that his act had been "canned" after the first show—an old and ugly stunt of managers . . . I hope someone shows this to Jim.

The recent tale here about Kathleen Norris, the novelist, has an amusing ending . . . Mrs. Norris, as we related, happened to be in an Italian village, and saw an old lady weeping. She learned the woman's husband had run off with everything . . . Mrs. Norris gave her a lot of new Italian money and went on . . . Three years later while visiting the same place, she saw the natives dancing in the streets. Upon inquiring why—she was told that three years before a "Saint had come from heaven and she gave poor people money!" . . . The novelist enjoys telling that story to her friends and we do, too . . . But we learn this . . . Mrs. Norris had studied Italian a long time and was proud of her ability in this direction . . . Imagine her pride taking a tumble when she asked one peasant how they all knew that the lady was a saint . . . "Oh," was the reply, "we knew it because she spoke in a language that nobody ever heard before—so we knew she must have come from above!" . . . David Murray says the only reason he goes to the movies is to keep his friends from telling him about them . . . I like that one about Wilzon Mizner, who had a shopkeeper pal—and they both enjoyed kidding each other. One day a panhandler walked into the shop and asked for a handout . . . "Ask him," said the shopkeeper, "he's the boss" . . . The bum told Mizner a long story . . . Mizner put on his hat and started walking out. At the door he turned to the real owner and said: "Okay, give him a dollar from the till."

Golly! the things girls will do! . . . I have heard of the extremes to which people will go—to get on the stage, but this is too sad . . . Rita Roy, described as Tony Canzoneri's girl, was a dancer at the Paradise until recently . . . She urged an agent friend to get her in the movies. "I'll do anything," she said, "to become an actress!" . . . Finally, he got her a bit in a movie short in the Brooklyn studios . . . And the role she drew called for her to serve as a target for a grapefruit . . . Thrown with great force right in her face . . . Miss Roy didn't mind, she said. She'd take the job. But, poor thing. Her pretty kisser is a sight . . . Because the lights or the sound track failed to work—and so she had to be socked with the grapefruit six times.

Greek Drama Presented At Carnegie

Euripides moved into Carnegie Tech Little Theater last night with his "Medea," one of the great Greek tragedies. The direction by Chester Wallace, the eurythmic chorus trained by Miss Cecil Kitcat, and a production dignified and accurate made it a memorable evening.

There will be a matinee of the tragedy today at 3:30, and five more night performances.

Dorothy Neumann and Janet Feather alternate in the title role; John Dawson and William Beal as Jason; Regis Joyce and David Preston as Creon; Delisle Crawford and Barry Mulligan as Aegeus; Audrey Kelley and Jean Speller as the nurse; Franklin Webb and Carl Dozer as attendants. James McNaughton plays an organ accompaniment.

Laurel and Hardy Comedy Feature in Fulton

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Slapstick comedy riots through "Sons of the Desert," Laurel and Hardy feature-length farce on the Fulton screen, with Stan and Oliver in their best long production. It outshines their previous ventures in the feature field perhaps because it has a well-knit comedy plot, which, though thin and trifling, is logical in its sequences and result, and as a consequence laughs are frequent and hearty. The rough-house slipstick, which must have cost a lot in broken dishes, may not amuse admirers of a more subtle art, but it gets the guffaws of a lot of folks, so that's that. One can easily forget it in the farcical comedy of the situations.

This "Sons of the Desert" has nothing to do with sheiks and their life on the sandy wastes. It records the adventures of our funny friends as members of a lodge at a convention of the organization—before and after. First there is the matter of fixing it with the wives—and one wife says "nix." She would be the wife of Oliver Hardy, of course. But the boys fix it with a doctor to declare that Ollie must go to Honolulu for his health, with Stan to go along as company. So they go to the convention and have a whale of a time.

It's the getting back that hurts. The boat the are supposed to be on has been wrecked, and our lodge brothers arrive home 36 hours in advance of the time a relief ship is due. And the wives are primed, having seen news reel pictures of their husbands in the convention parade.

To tell more would be to spoil your fun, but the ending isn't as obvious as you might imagine—except for the dishes thrown.

Charlie Chase is seen as a whoopee-maker at the convention, and the wives are played by Mae Busch and Dorothy Christy.

The bill includes Hearst Metrotone News, Ernest Truex, in a comedy about an expectant father, and some tiny talent in a pictured broadcast from "Station TOT."

Stan's Wife Trouble Holds Back Work on Film

HOLLYWOOD, March 2.—The big super extra-special production of the Victor Herbert operetta, "Babes in Toyland," which Hal Roach, famous comedy producer, planned to put into work right away, has been temporarily suspended. The main reason for the suspension of activities is, believe it or not, alimony!

Y'see "Babes in Toyland" was to have co-starred the comedy team of Stan Laurel and Oliver (Babe) Hardy, along with several big star names which Roach was going to borrow from other studios.

Well, so Laurel and his wife are having hectic marital and money battles and the comedian recently decided that he'd rather go back to England than pay out all the alimony which he was hooked for if he stayed in Hollywood. So, now, production has been called off until Laurel either changes his mind of his own accord, or until Roach can persuade him to return to the fold!

We nearly had a convulsion the other night at a party when we overheard the following conversation between a famous writer and a movie star who was asking advice about how to improve her acting, etc. The writer gave her some pointers and ended with:

"There are certain books you should read to help you—you should read Zola."

"O. K.," answered the star, "I will—who wrote it?"

Hollywood is having a laff today over what may become a legal tussle—all of which was quite innocently caused by George Stone, young character actor, who pulls down a nice fat weekly salary as a free-lance player. The other day Georgie was over on a set at the Monogram Studio, just visiting a friend, and started "kibitzing" around and wound up by walking through a scene. The scene is in the picture—and now Stone's agent is trying to collect a day's pay from the producer!

And, by the way, Stone is working at Warners in a picture called "The Return of the Terror," and he got over-enthusiastic while doing a crazy adagio dance and accidentally kicked himself in the shins, cutting such a bad gash that it necessitated emergency hospital treatment!

The other night at a buffet-supper, Johnny Weissmuller was seated with the bride of a famous star. The girl suddenly held her arm toward Johnny and asked him how he liked her new bracelet, a gift from her husband. Johnny (thinking of Lupe Velez's great gobs of rubies and diamonds) took one glance at the inch-wide jeweled knick-knack and, without a smile, answered:

"I live with 20 of those!"

Lee Tracy, up to his neck in work at the moment at Universal, where he is making "I'll Tell the World," is going to be paged by Paramount any minute for a fat role. They want him for the part of the reporter in Tiffany Thayer's new story, "One Woman"—soon to go into production.

Mr. Smith Dies at Fifty

MR. JAMES SMITH, an average citizen, died yesterday at his home of double pneumonia. May we present you with a few reactions? . . .

THE WIDOW: I can't believe he's gone. I just can't believe it. Last week, he was just as healthy and strong as he ever was. And now he's gone. I just can't believe it.

We lived together for 20 years—Jimmy and I. Yes, we had our little fights and our little arguments just like any other married couple. But he was a good man, that's what he was. Stubborn in many ways, and mean when he wanted to be. But a good man for all that.

And now he's gone. I just can't believe it . . .

A NEIGHBOR: Oh, she's carrying on all right. What did you think she'd be doing—laughing? She'll cry until he's a week in his grave, and then watch her. I know my neighbors. She'll be married again before a year has run out. . .

AN OFFICE WORKER: Too bad about Smith, wasn't it? Happened just like a flash, they tell me. Well, that's the way it goes. Here today and gone tomorrow. Yes, sir.

But I'm really sorry about it. I really am. Smith was a swell guy when you got to know him. Funny in a lot of ways, but a good guy with a buck when he had it. I'm going to his funeral if it's the last thing I do. I owe him that much respect and I'm mighty sorry he's gone.

Say, by the way, has the boss put anybody in his place yet? I think I'll have to try for it. Carries five bucks more a week, you know . . .

A RELATIVE: Sure I gotta be a pallbearer. I gotta go out and rent one of those suits. Extra expense—and all for what? Just because his wife thinks I oughta be a pallbearer. You'd think Jimmy Smith and I had been friends instead of relatives. Oh, well . . .

A REPORTER: Who? James Smith? Well, suppose he is dead, lady? What about it? A lotta people die every day, lady, and if we gave 'em all stories in the paper, there'd be no space left for Babe Ruth and Hitler. Sorry, lady . . .

A DOG: Something funny going on here. They won't let me out of the kitchen, and there are too many people around to suit me. I don't like the way things look.

I hope nothing's happened to the big boy. It's almost a week since he tossed me an extra dog biscuit. He never misses a night, either, even though his wife yells at him for being extravagant. He's an okay feller, all right. 'I wish I could say as much for the missus.

I think I'll bark for him, just for luck. Ouch! That big mug over there took a kick at me, and told me to be quiet. Say, what's going on here anyhow? I don't like the way things look . . .

AN OLD FRIEND: So Jimmy Smith is dead! Well, well, well! I don't think you ever met him, Mollie, but he and I went to school together. Public school, I mean. That was almost 40 years ago, and it seems like yesterday.

We were the same age, Jimmy and I. You know what I mean, Mollie? It kind of gives me a chill to think that we were the same age, and that he's dead now. I'm only 50, and that's not old. But he was 50, too. And he's dead.

I get goose pimples when I think about it. I mean, 50 is awful young to die. You know what I mean, Mollie? . . .

A SECOND COUSIN: Your deal, Joe. By the way, did you hear that Jimmy Smith was dead? What? Oh, you remember Jimmy Smith. He's sort of a cousin of mine. Don't you remember the time we all played pinochle at my house and he got a 500 spade hand? Sure, that's the feller. He's dead.

Your deal, Joe . . .

COMMONS OUST UNEMPLOYED

LONDON, March 2.—(AP.)—The "hunger march" of 2,000 men and women from all parts of the country to protest against an unemployment bill in Parliament degenerated today into minor manifestations against the government generally.

In one of the noisiest disturbances since the marchers began arriving last week, 13 were ejected from the House of Commons last night.

They scattered themselves through the galleries and interrupted debate on a new Anglo-Russian trade agreement by shouts of "down with the slave government" and "down with the national starvation government."

Those forcefully ejected from the balconies were liberated and rejoined the scattered delegations today.

Young women among the marchers were handled tenderly by the police. One girl so attracted a sensitive policeman that he politely asked her destination and whether he could help her hail a bus.

An estate valued at $150,000 was bequeathed to his three children by Alexander Gilfillan, of Upper St. Clair Township, in his will filed for probate today.

Gilfillan was one of the best known members of the Allegheny County Bar Association and a brother-in-law of Chief Justice Robert S. Frazer, of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court.

After providing a $1,000 trust fund for upkeep of the family burial plot in Bethel Cemetery, the will left the remainder of the estate to the children, John, Margaret B., and Alexander B. Gilfillan, all of whom were named executors.

PUP STILL HELD BY 'DOGNAPERS'

CHICAGO, March 2.—(AP.)—The mystery of the snatching of Kid Boots Ace, 13-pound champion Boston bull terrier, grows deeper.

The owner, Louis Rudginsky, left for his home in Winthrop, Mass., last night, discouraged and "all in," and still willing to pay—something.

Shortly after his departure, a friend here reported to police he had received a telephone call from New York stating that the animal was being shipped to Mrs. Rudginsky in Winthrop and that she had been notified. Mrs. Rudginsky said early this morning that she had received no such word.

The animal was carted off in his traveling suitcase just after he was declared winner in a dog show here last Sunday night.

Rudginsky reported demands over telephone for the ransom, and as a final effort to establish contact with the dognapers before his departure, placed an advertisement in a newspaper.

Officer Found Shot On British Warship

VALETTA, Isle of Malta, March 2.—(AP.)—Lieut. Com. H. Thornton Jones of the British battleship Royal Sovereign, was found shot to death in his cabin today.

Pending an inquiry by naval officers, no details of the affair were revealed.

Molnar's 'Devil' Staged By Dracomtra

"The Devil" came to Mt. Lebanon last night, brought by the Dracomtra Players to the Washington School. It was "The Devil" of Ferenc Molnar, impersonated for the occasion by W. H. Bergheimer, Jr. He gave a performance that was suave and sinister; he had a most Mephistophelian make-up; his voice, which is rich in quality and well modulated, put the epigrams of the Hungarian Shaw effectively across the footlights.

Next to the excellent performance of Bergheimer, the Olga of Mignonne Kunz and the Elsa of Georgene Nichols were noteworthy. John A. Metz, Jr., as the banker, and Richard E. Disney as the artist were satisfactory. Others in the large and well-directed cast were Thelma Gay, Edwina L. Grove, Peggy Brenholtz, Mary Watkins, Peggy Dennis, Betty Huey, Marjorie Baer, Maurice Roland, Howard Lenhart, Milton McMillan and Nolan Duino.

Direction by Dr. Ward Ewalt succeeded in bringing out the inner meaning of the satire, which portrays the Devil as something within men and women, impelling them to follow their evil bent.

King Boris Runs Fast Express In Berlin

BERLIN, March 2.—(AP.)—King Boris of Bulgaria could not resist his abiding passion for railway trains yesterday when being shown over a locomotive plant.

As soon as he was introduced to the latest pattern of fast express locomotives, he gaily jumped on the foot plate, took hold of the levers and piloted the huge engine backward and forward for an hour and a half along the plant's trial course.

HEINZ

This actually happened!

At a recent luncheon 1495 well-to-do club-women were served Heinz Cream of Mushroom Soup. 1491 said, "The best cream of mushroom soup we've ever tasted." Four said "Sorry! we don't like mushrooms." Because the taste is the test, Heinz Soups are made your way—the home made way—to be sure you'll like them.

THOUSANDS of expert home-cooks prefer

HEINZ CREAM of MUSHROOM SOUP

All 16 of Heinz soups have the kind of flavor and quality that stop good housewives making soup at home. Even kitchen experts who used to scoff at canned foods, save labor and money by serving Heinz soups—because they find that Heinz soups actually taste better!

This is a fact. There is no catch in it. No kitchen trickery or magic formula is used to make these soups appeal to lovers of home-cooked food. On the contrary the success-story of Heinz soups is a plain and simple one. Old-fashioned home recipes that have stood the test of time in many kitchens; sound, homey ingredients; thorough, unhurried cooking in small batches—these beget for our soups the lively approval of particular people.

No bother to the housewife, Heinz soups come to your kitchen ready to eat, ready to heat and enjoy. Nothing to add. No blending or stirring to do. They are whole soups, finished, complete like yours.

And because we go the whole way and give you each soup fully made we can make sure of their good quality and flavor. When each batch of each soup is made we test and taste a sample to be certain that it is just right. We know our soups are as good as we say they are, and so we can sell them to you with this unique straightforward guarantee:

He Overlooked HEINZ OVEN-BAKED BEANS!

Napoleon said, "An army marches on its stomach." He had the right idea. But he might have done better to feed his armies baked beans.

Oven-baked beans had an aroma that welcomed our forefathers hiking home from Indian-fighting. Oven-baked beans were mealy and savory and sweet, and it was comforting to munch them.

Well now, Heinz has perpetuated the ancestral practice of oven-baking beans. Heinz secures only "choice hand-picked" beans, sorts from these the most perfect ones, soaks them long, bakes them slow in hot dry ovens, and cooks into them rich savory sauces.

So today you can enjoy this food at its best. But please look for the name—

How to Welcome A PRINCE

If the Prince of Wales should drop in you might serve Heinz Tomato Ketchup. He and it are globe trotters, well-known and well-liked the world around. Probably have knocked into each other in Port Said, Capetown, Buenos Aires. Our idea is that it is always good sense to have Heinz Ketchup on the table, because, it being the largest selling ketchup in the world, the chances are better than even that this beckoning red, red bottle will be a familiar, well-loved sight to all who come to dine at your home.

SUCCESS NOTE:

We spent years in developing our own tomato seed and our farmers use this pedigreed seed or tomato plants we grow especially for them to use. We prepare the tomatoes and set them to slow simmering the day they are picked—for freshness. We blend in spices which we know are pure and fine because we go clear round the world to select them in person. We seal the Ketchup while still hot, to keep its flavor fresh. . . That's the way we make the largest selling ketchup in the world.

STOCKS BRACE IN CAUTIOUS TRADING

NEW YORK, March 2.—(AP)—Financial markets, though dull and cautious today, displayed a firmer undertone.

The old-time leaders, including the rails and industrials, drew followings in stock dealings while the recently feverish specialties retired to the inactive section.

Wheat provided some assistance, rallying about 1 cent a bushel. Other grains were better. Cotton improved, but silver eased. Bonds showed a disposition to recover. International dollar rates were still narrow.

Notwithstanding Secretary Morgenthau's announcement that the administration wished to continue its present monetary policy at least for the remainder of the fiscal year, some market commentators were of the opinion that further dollar devaluation should be tried in the near future. The reason given was that the wholesale price level has halted in its uptrend and that new impetus must be provided if the recovery program is to be maintained.

The move for federal control of stock exchanges seemingly had lost some of its influence on equities. The belief was growing that the present bills would be amended in such a way that excessive liquidation of securities will be obtained. It was expected that some compromise would be reached on adequate margin requirements.

Freight car loadings for the week ended February 24, while 25,525 under the total of the previous week, were really a little more than seasonal, according to carrier analysts. The aggregate for the week, which included a holiday, was 573,571, which was 111,056 over the 1933 week and 37,873 above the corresponding period in 1932.

The Annalist, while recording business advances during the past week, pointed out that there were "certain elements of artificiality" in the figures "which need to be taken into account before jumping to the conclusion that business activity is in the early stages of a sustained rise."

BIG TREASURY ISSUE COMING

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Bond experts are anticipating a March 15 Treasury offering of more than $1,000,000,000 in "new money" in addition to issues to meet the $460,099,000 in ¾ per cent certificates.

While Treasury officials today declined comment on the new financing, except the statement of Secretary Morgenthau that an announcement would be made between Monday and Wednesday, the belief in the market prevailed that from three to five notes at a rate not in excess of 3⅛ per cent would be offered.

In addition to receipts from public debt operations the Treasury anticipated about $19,000,000 in income tax receipts March 15, the first quarterly collection on incomes of the 1933 fiscal year.

The Internal Revenue Bureau continued to be swamped by applications from taxpayers for postponement of their due payments. Under the law of a proper showing of inability to pay income taxes payment may be postponed from sixty days to a maximum of eighteen months.

WHEAT CLOSES AT ADVANCE

CHICAGO, March 2.—Pronounced strength and activity developed in grain futures trading today, with sharp advances in price shown, especially in the late dealings.

Inflation talk suggested by Washington messages was a bullish factor, and so too was announcement from Buenos Aires that the Argentine government would hoist the minimum wheat price paid to farmers commencing Monday next.

Wheat closed strong, 1½ to 1⅞c above yesterday's finish; corn, 1 to 1⅜s up; oats, ⅞ to 1¼c advanced, and provisions showing 7 to 12 cents gain.

DRASTIC DROP IN STOCKS NOT INDICATED

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, N. Y. University.

NEW YORK, March 2.—The stock market is dull and thin and nervous, as befits an institution which is threatened with virtual extinction. Some stocks are being liquidated, as might be expected when a government threatens to wipe out profits.

If one watches the tape or listens to market gossip during the day one gets the impression that things are bad, and that a big decline may be impending.

But, while I admit that almost anything seems possible under such abnormal and artificial conditions, I do not get the impression that the market is set to go down much. I note that at the end of the day, the averages have done little, and Steel sticks at 54, Can at 100, and DuPont at 99.

If NRA restrictions and other new deal experiments were going to go through and be fatal, why has the market not cracked wide open?

STRATEGY SEEN

We may well remember certain intangible factors. One is that the big fellows in stock market affairs cannot want a boiling market at a time when a regulative measure is being considered. In fact, they probably have figured that a sick-looking market just now will help their case.

Another intangible is the government's financing. Some observers even think that a moderately long-term bond issue is contemplated. I doubt this, but we have seen enough of the government's "soft peddling" tactics to know that they work against speculation during periods of financing.

On the other hand, Washington must know that a stock market crash would hurt the administration, both financially and in other ways.

It is obviously true that at its recent high level the market had (1) exhausted the influence of existing inflationary steps, and (2) run into liquidation by institutions and individuals hung up with levels. These factors stopped the stocks bought long ago at similar rise. But they do not explain or cause any large reaction.

NO SELLING CLIMAX

In this connection, one notes that there has been no big selling climax with large volume. This, I think, shows that the "technical position" is not top-heavy, and that the bearish factors are not a sort to induce panicky selling.

Liquidation of any heavy sort has been largely confined to special situations, as possibly, National Biscuit and Corn Products Refining, or (combined with speculative selling), in Johns Manville and Western Union, etc.

Much progress has been made in clearing up the strike situation in Toledo and Cleveland. I get the impression that the way is cleared for considerable amendment of the stock exchange bill and note that Roosevelt withholds his approval.

As expected, the CWA army is to be cared for under other letters. Tariff tinkering is to be tentative and cautious, and you may be sure that no large labor groups will be hurt by so politically-minded an administration.

INFLATION ON WAY

Above all and back of all, real effective inflation is actually in the making. Its effects are kept back only by threats of "cracking down" on business and proposals for radical "reforms." But the government can't both hold out the feed bag ond put on the brakes forever—the harness will break.

So, while caution and careful selection are required, I favor buying moderately during weakness. I am more afraid of the dollar than I am of NRA. The American public is not going to let good business and good equities be ruined.

Reliance Shows Gain for Month

An increase of 29 per cent in life insurance written in February, compared with the same month last year, is reported by the Reliance Life Insurance Company of Pittsburgh. New life insurance submitted to the company last month amounted to $4,768,216.

In the Pittsburgh district, Reliance Life received 636 applications for $1,438,000 in February. This was the largest number of sales in any month for three years. The volume was the largest since November, 1932.

Merchants Fight Closing of Bridge

NEW CASTLE, Pa., March 2.—(INS.)—Automobiles were still detouring in this city today while the West Washington bridge remained closed pending a decision in a court battle precipitated by Mayor Mayne's action in barricading the structure.

Judge R. L. Hildebrand is expected to hand down a decision soon in an equity suit brought by West End business houses against the city and county asking a special injunction to compel authorities to open the bridge, which is a main traffic artery.

Helen Mack Wears Engagemenet Ring

HOLLYWOOD, March 2.—(AP.)—A large engagement ring is being worn by Helen Mack, former New York actress, now of the films. The ring is a gift from Charles Irwin, a Fox Film Corporation trustee.

Asks Second Bonus Arrested for Fraud

HARRISBURG, March 2.—(AP.)—Fred Fletcher, of Bloomsburg, is held by state police for a hearing on charges of falsifying an application for the state soldiers' bonus.

Police said they have evidence that Fletcher collected a bonus in New Jersey in 1922 and that in applying for a Pennsylvania bonus said he had never received a bonus in another state.

Hitchcock Brother Sued for Divorce

NEWBURGH, N. Y., March 2.—(AP.)—Suit for divorce has been brought against Francis C. E. Hitchcock, of the polo-playing Hitchocks, by his wife, Mary Atwell Hitchcock, the society girl he married three years ago.

Hitchcock, a clerk in a New York brokerage concern, is a brother of Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., famous polo player.

Film Stars Caught As Waiters Strike

HOLLYWOOD, March 2.—(AP.)—Twenty-seven waiters in one of Hollywood's famous restaurants walked out yesterday while more than a score of film celebrities were eating. Other employes kept service going.

In the restaurant at the time were Tom Mix, Wallace Beery, Bebe Daniels, Bert Wheeler, Elissa Landi, Judith Allen, Lee Tracy and June Collyer.

Nervous?

Here is a medicine which quiets quivering nerves. . . . You eat better . . . sleep better. 98 out of 100 women say — "It helps me."

"Before my baby was born I was run-down and nervous. My mother told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to ease my nerves and prepare me for childbirth. After only a few bottles I was up and doing my work cheerfully. Childbirth was very easy, thanks to your medicine". —Mrs. John Ellis, 6308 So. Campbell Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

"For five years I suffered terribly with headache and backache and was so nervous I would have to go to bed. I took different medicines but with no results until a friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After taking four bottles I am a different woman. I only wish I had started on it when I first had my troubles."—Mrs. H. B. Lusby, 202 N. 34th St., Louisville, Kentucky.

"Mother gave me the Compound when I was 15. Took it at childbirth and at the Change. It has been wonderful".—Mrs. John W. Applegate, 215 Walnut Street, Asbury Park, N. J.

CANAL HEARING MAY RESUME NEXT WEEK

WASHINGTON, March 1.—(AP.)—The House Rivers and Harbors Committee may start hearings next week on the proposed Beaver-Mahoning canal, designed to give the Youngstown steel district a water outlet comparable with that of the Pittsburgh area.

Chairman Mansfield (Dem.), of Texas, said the committee could go ahead on the project as soon as it receives the recommendations of the Board of Army Engineers. The engineers' report is expected by the end of this week and Mansfield said the hearings probably could be called "about the middle of next week."

The Army engineers are understood to have prepared a favorable report, reversing the adverse views held after a survey of the $37,000,000 project some time ago.

STATUS UNCERTAIN

Just what the status of the project will be, however, was uncertain. Chairman Mansfield said he was not yet certain whether there would be an omnibus rivers and harbors bill at the present session of Congress in view of President Roosevelt's intention of developing a long-range program for flood control.

Mansfield said:

"We don't know yet what kind of a setup that would be and whether it will include inland waterway."

Neither, the chairman said, has it been determined whether funds for the canal would be sought from the Public Works Administration or whether Congress would be asked for an appropriation.

OPPOSED BY RAILROADS

Opposition by the railroads, however, is definite. Mansfield said counsel for the Association of Railway Executives had served notice on the committee it would oppose all such inland water projects and he predicted the railroads would file protesting briefs as soon as the Beaver-Mahoning is brought up for consideration.

The project calls for channelization of the Beaver and Mahoning rivers from the Ohio River at Beaver, Pa., up to Struthers, O., a suburb of Youngstown. Its advocates claim it would be of vast benefit to the Youngstown steel district and by giving the area cheaper water transportation, enable it to compete with the Pittsburgh district, which now has a water outlet by way of the Ohio River.

NAZI PREACHERS WAR ON FOES

BERLIN, March 2.—(AP.)—A new campaign against anti-Nazi Christian pastors was on in Germany today.

Reichbishop Ludwig Mueller announced last night he would oust insurgent Protestant pastors with "elementary force" and would substitute Nazi lay preachers if necessary.

At Hanover, a minority group of those protesting against what they term Mueller's assumption of dictatorial powers, left the Nazi Christian group of the provincial synod after Bishop Marahrens had pleaded in vain with the assembly to permit them to come to debate.

The bishop declared:

"In moments like this "everyone should be permitted to stand up before the gospel and his Christian conscience and express what seems to be his duty and his inner need."

But the Rev. Mr. Hahn, vice president of the synod, retorted:

"There is no place for the old kind of debating in Nazi Germany."

Florists, Gardeners To Meet Tuesday

A meeting of the Pittsburgh Florists and Gardeners Club is scheduled for Tuesday night in the North Side Carnegie Library. Secretary W. T. Usinger today announced that among future meetings will be a session at the Schenley Park Conservatory April 3.

TO RELIEVE CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are hard of hearing or have head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength) and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

CARNERA BEATS LOUGHRAN IN 'MAN THROWING' BOUT

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Valiant Try by Loughran. • McGraw's Last Verdict.
Champion Loses Prestige. All Athletes Need Keying.
Swetonic Only New Brave. Perry May Join Pros.

Though suffering in the end a defeat that was inevitable under the one-sided physical conditions, Tommy Loughran must be given credit for a valiant stand against hopeless odds, and must be said to have surprised the great majority of ring followers by holding off the mammoth Primo Carnera for 15 rounds in that rain-soaked Miami ring last night. It was just as the dope had said—Loughran still had the speed and boxing skill practically to hold his own for 10 rounds, but didn't have the stuff at that late stage of his career to keep it up for those extra five frames under the mauling and clubbing of a giant foe six years younger and 86 pounds heavier.

Tommy Loughran

In lasting the distance through gameness and fighting spirit, Tommy did a lot of credit to himself and at the same time took considerable prestige away from Carnera. The Italian giant still owns the world heavyweight title, but, except in proving that he is a better boxer that he had been given credit for being, he didn't boost his stock as a champion last night, just as he failed to do so in his first defense of the crown against the washed-up Paulino Uzcudun. Even with all his tremendous advantages, it was only by making use of his huge bulk and strength in roughhouse tactics, and by clubbing with his enormous arms, that he was able to wear down his ageing and punchless foe and go through to a lusterless decision. If he possessed the fighting ability or hitting power to be expected in a champion, Primo should have won by a knockout in those late rounds.

SWETONIC ONLY NEW MEMBER OF BRAVES

If the Boston National League club had not bought Pitcher Steve Swetonic from Pittsburgh, Manager Bill McKechnie would have established some sort of record by going to training camp for a new season with a squad made up entirely of players who were serving under him at the close of the preceding campaign. Swetonic is the only new man on the entire Brave roster. Every other player on the list finished the season of 1933 with the Braves. The closest approach to a newcomer, apart from Swetonic, is Outfielder Rupert Thompson, and he was with the club last fall long enough to play in 24 games.

All of the rest except Ray Starr and Bob Smith, who joined in mid-season, were in line at the start of last year's race. The catchers are Hogan and Spohrer; pitchers, Brandt, Betts, Cantwell, Frankhouse, Swetonic, Smith, Starr, Brown, Mangum and Zachary; infielders, Jordan, Maranville, Urbanski, Whitney and Gyselman, and outfielders, Berger, Lee, Moore, Mowrey, Worthington and Thompson. So McKechnie, with only 23 players, is down to the summer limit already, and will have the smallest and least changed squad in the majors.

LAST BASEBALL OPINION OF JOHN M'GRAW

The last decision made by the late John J. McGraw on a baseball question was given the day before he entered the hospital, when Dan Daniel asked him if he considered the famous Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance trio the greatest double-play combination in the history of baseball. McGraw replied emphatically in the negative. Disregarding the first baseman in reviewing the best double-play makers, he said Tinker and Evers did not rate one, two, three. The greatest combination of all time, he opined, was that of Herman Long and Bobby Lowe, of the Boston Nationals from 1893 to 1901, inclusive, pronounced remarkable fielders, each knowing by instinct after long association just what the other would do in a given situation.

Bobby Lowe

McGraw said that next to Long and Lowe he would rank Hughey Jennings and Heinie Reitz, of the old Baltimore Orioles. Ed Williamson and Fred Pfeffer, of the Chicago White Stockings in Anson's time, were given third place, with Tinker and Evers fourth. Art Devlin, former Giant third baseman, who was present, suggested that Honus Wagner and Jack Miller, of the Pirates, could not be overlooked, but McGraw doubted that Wagner ever had had a partner great enough to put Honus among the double-play wonders.

GRID NOT ALONE IN REQUIRING HIGH PITCH

The late Knute Rockne always insisted that football teams had to be keyed to a higher pitch than competitors in any other sport, but while admitting that gridiron success depends on mental attitude, veteran observers contend that participants in all games, professional as well as amateur, must be at an equally high key. They saw new evidence of it in the recent Cunningham Bonthron track duels, basketball, billiards, boxing and other sports this winter. Oarsmen have to be keyed to just as high a pitch as football players. So do basketball and track teams. The baseball club that is not on the right mental edge never will get anywhere.

Tennis players, golfers, speed skaters, poloists, contestants in racquets and squash, skiers, swimmers and even gymnasts must be keyed to be at their best or to outdo themselves. Jack Dempsey always was keyed to such a high pitch in the ring that on a few occasions he came close to being a nervous wreck. The old keying was missing when Max Schmeling lost to Max Baer and Steve Hamas. Hockey teams are sluggish and unsuccessful when not keyed up. Billiard and soccer players, automobile racing drivers and bowlers must be keyed up for important contests. Victory usually depends on the state of mind rather than on physical equipment.

PERRY MAY BE NEXT TO TURN TENNIS PRO

The amateur tennis authorities have more to worry about than the latest inroads made in the simon pure ranks by the desertion of Keith Gledhill and Alfred Chapin, Jr., to join the professional division. The report persists that Fred Perry, English Davis Cup star, will turn pro at the conclusion of the summer campaign if England loses the trophy. The loss of Perry would be a severe blow to the amateur field, as few more than Australian Jack Crawford would be left of the outstanding old guard and only the younger crop would remain. Tournament receipts would dwindle. And Perry would be a tremendous asset to the pros, as he is young and has color and crowd appeal in addition to ability, and would be a new star in the professional firmament.

Fred Perry

The change in tennis ideas extending over the international field is traced to the depression. It is pointed out that in the old prosperous days a tennis star could make money selling insurance or something else as a sideline. But the tightness of money does not permit tennis enthusiasts to loosen the pursestrings. Hence the amateur star gives serious thought to professionalism and a good week's pay.

JACKETS MEET RIBBONS FOR LOOP LEAD

GAME TONIGHT

Chicago Blue Ribbons vs. Yellow Jackets, Motor Square Garden, 8:30 p. m.

STANDING OF THE TEAMS
(Second Half)

	W.	L.	G.	OG.	Pts.
Chicago Sox	2	1	34	26	4
Pittsburgh	2	2	53	42	4
Chicago Ribbons	2	2	45	50	4
Detroit	0	1	8	22	0

By CARL W. SHATTO

The three-way deadlock for the lead in the second half race of the American and International Lacrosse Association will be broken at Motor Square Garden tonight when the Yellow Jackets meet the Chicago Blue Ribbons.

Bruce Cordick

The teams sharing the top rung are the Jackets, first-half winners; the Robbins and the Chicago White Sox, each with four points. Of these entries, the Sox are in the most advantageous position, in that they have lost one less game than their leading rivals.

One of the features of Jackets-Ribbons meetings is the dueling between the Association's leading goalies—Bruce Cordick, of Pittsburgh, and Bill MacArthur, of Chicago. Thus far Cordick has played his more-experienced rival to a standstill, and holds an edge on his home court.

Running Deer and Tecumseh, former members of the Buffalo Indians, have been signed by the Ribbons and will make their debut in Chicago livery tonight. They are the aces of the recently disbanded Buffalo squad. The probable lineup:

Yellow Jackets.		Blue Ribbons.
Cordick	G.	MacArthur
F. Langevin	D.	Sanderson
N. Langevin		Hatton
LaFrance	C.	Kingston
Vincent	F.	Harmon
Boughton	F.	Baldwin

Referee: Jacket substitutes, Corr, Jennings, McCann, Kirk and I. Hennessy. Blue Ribbons substitutes, Braden, White, Stephenson, Bain and Quirk.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Miami, Fla., Primo Carnera, heavyweight champion of the world, defeated Tommy Loughran, 15 rounds, to retained title. Jackie Reid defeated Joe Kopp, 4 rounds. Johnny Miller defeated Al Wilson, 4 rounds. Eddie Hogan defeated Jack Pettifer, 4 rounds. Chester Slaton defeated George Neron, 4 rounds. Tom Cancella knocked out Red Toney, 4 rounds. Frank Barrett defeated Eddie Houghton, 4 rounds.

At Kansas City, Tony Canzoneri defeated Pete Nebergall, Kansas City, welterweight, defeated Bud Breese, 8 rounds.

At Philadelphia, Young Joe Firpo knocked out Louis Kaplan, 1 round. Jim Reilly knocked out Roxie Forglone, 4 rounds.

Two Teams Share Bike Race Lead

NEW YORK, March 2.—(AP.)—Despite repeated efforts to overhaul them, the teams of Brocardo-Guimbretiere and Letournel-Schon maintained their two-lap advantage over their nearest rivals today as they passed the 107th hour of the six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden.

The Georgetti-Peden, Rebuli-Severnini combination were the only two laps behind.

Jams were frequent in the early morning sprints, but there were no mishaps. The leaders had covered 1,815 miles, nine laps, and thus far 802 laps have been stolen.

FRENCH LOOMS AS PIRATE HOLDOUT

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 2.—The advance guard of Pittsburgh Pirates, consisting of batterymen, were set for the first workout of the spring training trip today. The Pirate party arrived here yesterday afternoon.

Although there was no comment forthcoming from President William E. Benswanger, it was learned that Larry French, the club's crack southpaw hurler, had not as yet signed a contract for the 1934 campaign. The Californian is reported as dissatisfied with the terms offered him by the Pittsburgh officials and is going to see to it that the ante is boosted before he affixes his John Hancock to a contract.

LAYS DOWN RULES

Manager George Gibson called the athletes together for a pep meeting upon their arrival yesterday and laid down some rules for the stay here. The boys will have to break up their evening entertainments by 11:30 o'clock and be in the old hay by midnight. They'll have to walk back and forth to the ball park from the hotel and they must be up and ready for breakfast at 8 o'clock in the morning.

Boss Gibby plans to hold two workouts each day until further notice.

The Pirate travelers were greeted yesterday at San Jose by First Baseman Gus Suhr, Mrs. Suhr and their baby daughter, Barbara Jean. Gus looks to be in first rate condition and eagerly awaits the bell.

All hands were enthralled in Utah yesterday when crossing the Great Salt Lake. The Nevada desert exerted its charm also.

GREETED BY CITIZENS

Oakland was reached early and the short trip south to Paso Robles followed immediately.

The citizenry of the Almond City was out en masse to greet the players. Each later expressed relief after the long train ride.

Catchers Earl Grace, Art Veltman and Cy Blanton arrived during the afternoon. All are in the pink of condition. Lloyd Johnson came from San Francisco, while Waite Hoyt and Doc and Jim Crandall arrived from Los Angeles. The new member of the pitching staff, Red Lucas, was warmly received.

FLANNERY VICTOR

J. Rodgers Flannery defeated H. A. Robinson, 17-16, 15-17, 15-12 and 17-15, in a second round class B squash racquets championship tournament match at the Keystone Club yesterday.

Round-by-Round Story Of Carnera's Victory

MIAMI, Fla., March 2.—(AP.)—The round-by-round account of the Primo Carnera-Tommy Loughran 15-round fight for the heavyweight championship of the world, staged in Madison Square Garden bowl here last night, in which Carnera retained the title by winning the decision, follows:

Round One—Loughran danced lightly from his corner, slipped under Carnera's left jab and shot a long left to the body. The giant champion stormed in on Tommy, pressed him to the ropes and as they swapped body punches Tommy complained Carnera was stepping on his feet. Carnera leaped on the challenger and tumbled him across the ring, heaving him from side to side, and the crowd booed. Carnera drove Tommy to the ropes, shot a left hook to the head, a heavy right to the body and another left to the body. Tommy danced away and stabbed Carnera's head with three left jabs, but the champion roared back at him, nailing him with a hard uppercut to the head as the bell sounded.

Round Two—Loughran surprised the big boy, shooting left to the head and chopping a right to the body. Carnera stabbed Tommy's face neatly with a long left and Tommy, looking like a pigmy beside the tremendous bulk of the champion, stabbed him right back on the nose. Carnera jumped into close quarters and roughed Loughran along the ropes, but Tommy tied him up neatly as Carnera swung wildly with both hands. Carnera chased Tommy into a corner, whipped a left to the body and a right to the head which shook the challenger badly. Holding Tommy with one hand Carnera drove the challenger across the ring and hurled him about roughly, failing to land the blow but bearing down with all his weight on Loughran's smaller form and the crowd howled in protest as the referee pulled the champion away angrily at the bell.

Round Three—Loughran took the offensive, jabbing Carnera's nose three times with a light left. As Carnera seized the tiny challenger, started to hurl him about again, the crowd howled again. The champ grinned and let Tommy loose. Loughran danced away lightly, pumping three lefts to the head and a right to the body, but Carnera chased after him, smothered him in his big arms and hurled him about on the ropes, clubbing lefts to the body, rights to the side of the head as they mixed it in the open. Carnera hit the challenger with a hard left hook to the head, but Tommy stopped short and belted the champ with a long straight right to the jaw. Carnera fought back savagely, pounding Tommy's arms and with both his huge fists.

Round Four—Dancing in swiftly, Tommy shot a left to the head and a right to the body. That angered the champion so he picked Tommy up and almost hurled him through the ropes. The referee warned him again and Loughran stepped in, jamming Carnera's face with a short left, crossing his right full and hard to the jaw. Carnera missed a right in return. Matching all his guile against the tremendous strength of the champion, Tommy stabbed in with lefts, feinted him out of position and banged him with both hands as the crowd went wild with applause. Carnera, making the champion miss and Carnera looked like a novice as Loughran speared him and out-danced him to the end of the round.

Round Five—Carnera caught Tommy coming in with a left to the side of the face and roughed Tommy unmercifully along the ropes, holding him with both hands and hitting him on the side of the head. He drove Tommy into a corner and the challenger made the giant miss with both hands. But Carnera leaned heavily on the fellow and smashed him about the head with both hands. Carnera chased Tommy across the ring, caught him on the other ropes and did it all over again. Tommy bounced from side to side totally confused by the champ's strength after Carnera had caught to the chin and Carnera missed a terrific wallop. Loughran conducted both to the body with a beautiful rally as the bell sounded.

Round Six—Carnera rushed out anxiously and Tommy speared him with a left to the face and brought a bump under the champion's left eye. Loughran flew at the champ with both hands smashing rights and lefts to the giant's face and Carnera was so frantic he grabbed Loughran about the face with one hand and hammered his head with a right until the referee forced him to stop. Failing at long range, Carnera grabbed Tommy again and forced him to the ropes where he hammered wildly at Tommy's body, forcing him half way out of the ring. Tommy came away and banged another hard right to the jaw, but Carnera forced him to the ropes and hit him on the head with both hands. Loughran banged a right to the body, but Carnera knocked down his face from a cut on the left side of his head as the bell sounded.

Round Seven—Moving swiftly, Tommy danced about the great hulk of the champion trying to reach him with a left jab to the face, but Carnera stabbed out three times with his own left to Tommy's jaw. Tommy shot a light left to the body and as the champion rushed in, tied up Carnera neatly. As they came away Loughran shot a terrific right to Carnera's jaw and the champion turned savage. He drove Loughran to the ropes, smashing his head with both hands, beating him as he would with two clubs and the challenger backed desperately. Carnera calmed down and Loughran danced dizzily to the center of the ring again. He managed to jab a left to Carnera's head and a left to the side as the bell sounded.

Round Eight—Carnera tore out as if to end the fight swiftly, catching Loughran in mid-ring, driving him across to the ropes under a bat-like attack from both fists. Tommy staggered as he came off the ropes and his legs were dragging wearily. He shot his left to Primo's body and then landed a hard right to the chin as Carnera followed. Again, as Tommy retreated and the champion tore after him, Loughran stabbed his left to the head and pounded his right on Carnera's jaw. Suddenly Carnera charged Loughran to the ropes, but Tommy grabbed him, pulled his way out of danger and stabbed the champion's nose weakly as the bell rang.

Round Nine—Content to box with his lighter and cleverer challenger, Carnera stabbed Loughran's head with his left, then Tommy slipped inside and shot his own left to the Champion's jaw. Carnera rushed Loughran to the ropes again, the one place where he continually held the upper hand, and bludgeoned Tommy about the head with both hands. Loughran came out wearily and Carnera jabbed him heavily about the head with three long left handers. Again Carnera stabbed Loughran's face with a left then crossed a right to the jaw as Tommy weakened and moved slowly in his efforts to get away. As they clinched the referee pulled them away and Loughran and he shook hands as they parted.

Round Ten—Loughran bounced up freshly and stabbed for Carnera's long jaw with his left. They popped jabs at each other until Carnera again enveloped the challenger in his huge arms on the ropes and held him, clubbed him and heaved him around generally. Loughran tried to reach the champion's head with his left but he could only retreat to the opposite ropes when the champion again hung all over him. Once more Referee Shea hauled the Champion off the little man angrily and Carnera shouted back at him in Italian. The pace slowed as they were content to feint for right hand openings. Tommy shot a long right to the head, Carnera got one over, Loughran whipped a left hook to the body and Carnera missed with both hands.

Round Eleven—Loughran adopted new tactics, bending low and stabbing half a dozen lefts and smashed the Champ heavily on the head with three right hands. Tommy staggered as the referee pulled them apart and he wearily hitted a left jab to the Champion's head. Carnera measured him with a left but landed high on the head, and followed in with a hard hook to the jaw. The Champion sank a deep left hook into Tommy's body, forced him into a corner and banged to the head with both hands. Tommy managed to dance away, but he was weak and very tired as the bell sounded.

Round Twelve—Loughran danced about the center of the ring striving to keep away from Carnera's rushes. The Champion bulled after him, caught him in a corner and smashing him furiously about the head with both hands. As Tommy swayed before the one-sided rain staggering heavily and the crowd sought shelter. Tired himself, Carnera pushed Tommy from one corner to another, but the Champion was as clumsy as he was mild. Tommy stopped heavy punches at the bobbing, weaving challenger. Loughran sneaked over a left hook to the body and another left to the jaw, but the Champion staggered him with a left hook to the body. Tommy, in desperation, flung a long right to the Champion's jaw, but Tommy was desperately weary and holding as the bell rang.

Round Thirteen—Making it as rough as he could the Champion thundered down on Tommy forcing him to the ropes for fast handed cuffing. Tommy tore loose and as they stepped around the middle of the ring he landed three left jabs to the Champion's head, but Carnera caught him again and bounced two rights off Tommy's jaw and then caught him in a corner with a left hook to the head. The crowd booed again as

TOMMY MAKES GAME FIGHT FOR TITLE

GATE $44,598.70.

MIAMI, Fla., March 2.—(AP.)—Records today showed a paid attendance of only 8,624 and gross receipts of $44,598.70—a low-water mark for heavyweight title fights for this century—for the 15-round Primo Carnera-Tommy Loughran world heavyweight bout here last night. Net receipts were listed at $39,361.60.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service.

MIAMI, Fla., March 2.—The man's face had that puffed and bloated aspect the bad matchmaker always has the morning after, and in his eyes was the strained, unhappy look of one who had tried and lost. But there except for the grace of divine intervention, might have gone Thomas J. Loughran, heavyweight champion of the world.

In other words, he did not win the heavyweight championship from Primo Carnera last night in 15 rounds out there at the Madison Square Garden arena while most of Miami was turning the back of its apathetic neck. He didn't even get a chance to fight for it, owing to the fact that it wasn't a fight. It was a hammer throwing contest and the only rules were three turns and stay in the circle. Mr. Loughran had a very distinguished role. He was the hammer. Intermittent rain soaked the spectators while the show went on.

MIGHT HAVE WON

There was a time, through the third to the sixth round, when this pitifully meager man, outweighed by 36 pounds and as fragile as a wine glass, not only could have won but looked as though he would. But the only thing he could have won was the fight and they weren't talking one of these last night. It was strictly a man throwing record and Loughran's stamina, great soul though he might be, was unfortunate. He was the man.

That's a far cry, as the editorial writers so quaintly say, from New Orleans and Corbett and Sullivan; or Carson City and Corbett and Fitzsimmons; or Coney Island and Corbett and Jeffries; or the Polo Grounds and Dempsey and Firpo to the engaging and romantic business of last night. Carnera wouldn't have won this prize fight by any code except that of the ap room and bar.

He had to pull this midge

SOUTH AND PERRY BEGIN PLAY FOR CITY FLOOR TITLE

ELIMINATIONS RESUMED IN W.P.I.A.L.

By JULIUS LEVIN

With three W. P. I. A. L. elimination contests listed for disposal tonight and the opening battle for the City League championship scheduled this afternoon in the Pitt Stadium pavilion, scholastic basketball teams of Western Pennsylvania face a strenuous program.

Mr. Bridenbaugh

The opening battle for the City championship finds the same teams which represented the two local sections last season battling for the Fintex trophy, emblematic of the scholastic basketball supremacy of the local circuit and District VIII in the P. I. A. A. play.

SOUTH FAVORITE

South High School, undefeated in 26 straight City League games, is a repeater in Section I, while Perry High School has retained its crown in Section II. Last year, South defeated Perry in two straight games to win the city crown. It followed this triumph by disposing of Dubois and Duquesne in the state eliminations, only to fall in the semi-finals at State College before Altoona. Altoona was defeated in the state championship game at Philadelphia.

South takes the floor this afternoon a big favorite to defeat the North Siders although both schools will present veteran lineups. The two scoring leaders in the local race will be the central figures, with Spotovich leading the attack for South, and Kornick doing likewise for Perry. The second game will be played next Tuesday and the third, if necessary, a week from this afternoon.

REPEATERS IN ACTION

Names familiar to followers of W. P. I. A. L. tournament play appear on tonight's program of three elimination games listed for disposal on high school floors in Western Pennsylvania.

The field of survivors having been reduced from 19 to 14 quintets, the list will be chopped to 11 following tonight's contests when three teams are certain to fall by the wayside. Three teams were eliminated on the first night of play, Tuesday, while two more saw their title aspirations shattered in last night's duels.

Tonight's three contests bring together six sectional winners, all of which have had tournament experience in the past. East Pittsburgh High, c mpion of Section XVII for the third successive season under the excellent coaching of Johnny Coleman, makes its second appearance in the current tournament by playing a second-round engagement with Uniontown, champion of Section XI, at Monessen High School. East Pittsburgh qualifies for this engagement by disposing of Perry Township, Section XIX champion, in a first-round battle.

FORMER LEAGUE CHAMP

In meeting Uniontown, East Pittsburgh stacks up against one of the perennial winners in W. P. I. A. L. sectional championships. Uniontown is one of the few schools to take the W. P. I. A. L. basketball championship in two successive seasons, Coach A. J. Everhart's passers winning the titles in 1925 and 1926. Charley Hyatt was a member of those teams. Uniontown went through its Section XI schedule with 10 straight victories.

Repeaters from last season battle in the game at New Castle, which brings together New Castle, champion of Section III, and Union Township, standard-bearer of Section XVIII. Both retained their laurels in this year's race. New Castle, however, is an overwhelming favorite, Coach Bridenbaugh's team being picked by many as a possible finalist.

Like the contest at New Castle, the battle between Ambridge, champion of Section IV, and Leetsdale, champion of Section II, on the Beaver Falls High School floor, brings together repeaters in the W. P. I. A. L. sectional fights.

AMBRIDGE STRONG

Ambridge, coached by Moe Rubenstein, won 22 out of 23 games, losing only the finale to the Geneva College Reserves, 19-18. Leetsdale, coached by W. E. Buker, is one of the smallest schools in the W. P. I. A. L in enrollment, this institution having only 83 boys in the upper grades eligible

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: MASTER OF 200 LANGUAGES—Dr. Ludwig Harald Schutz, of Frankfurt-am-Main, was born in Traunstein, Bavaria, in 1873. Beginning the study of languages at the age of 12, he has mastered more than 200 languages and idioms. Among the languages mastered are some African dialects for which there are no names as yet. When a group of American Indians came to Germany with a circus, posing as Sioux, Dr. Schutz, listening to them for a few minutes, exposed them as Pawnees to the immense astonishment of the Indians. Dr. Schutz repeatedly has occupied professional chairs at Frankfort University, teaching 24 languages within a single semester.

TOMORROW: A DEALER IN FALLEN STARS

M'GIRR JOINS BECK AND RAYMOND

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

They're hanging out an "Under New Management" sign at Motor Square Garden today. It applies to the boxing club which functions there.

A new deal has just been arranged whereby the outside interests in the club have eliminated themselves and Jim McGirr, who keeps on promoting in McKeesport regardless of wind, weather or reason, and often in spite of an absence of box office, has moved in to take their place with Jules Beck and Lew Raymond as his partners.

SECOND VENTURE HERE

McGirr, a shrewd boxing man, with two decades of experience as a promoter, has been in Pittsburgh before, having had a hand in the Moose Temple for a short time, but he pulled out there when he saw it couldn't be made a go. At the Garden, he will be the promoter, with Raymond serving as matchmaker and Beck as general manager.

The men who are dropping out of the picture are Herman Weingrad, of Philadelphia, and Jack Roisman, of New York, who originally came in to promote wrestling with Raymond and Beck and stayed through the recent profitable Ted Yarosz-Jimmy Smith fight.

THREE SHOWS PLANNED

The new club's first show will be that Charley Massera-Reds Barry heavyweight offering, one week from next Monday night. Anson Green, Homestead Negro middleweight, will box an opponent to be selected in another 10-rounder, and Al Quaill, Brookline middleweight, will be a principal in one of the three six-round preliminaries.

The following Monday, March 19, Mose Butch may meet Freddie Miller, the N. B. A. featherweight champion, in a duel of southpaws unless plans miscarry, and a Yarosz bout is in the cards for March 26.

McGirr said he may continue to operate in McKeesport, but if so, on other than Monday nights. The shows held there to date this season have failed to draw sufficiently to pay expenses, although McGirr has tried to give the fans a run for their money. He is staging a Frankie Wolfram-Nat Litfin show there next Monday.

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Greater Pittsburgh amateur championships, Boys' Club of Pittsburgh.

Ken Overlin vs. Joe Kaminski, 10 rounds; Johnny Duca vs. Danny Devlin, 8 rounds, and Frankie Brill vs. Benny Victor, Charley McLaughlin vs. Leo McDonald and Fritz McBride vs. Bill Harkins, 6 rounds each, Philadelphia.

BELLEAIR HEIGHTS, Fla., March 2.—(AP.)—Al Watrous, of Detroit, with a total of 139, led the field in the West Coast open championship at the halfway mark.

He was pressed closely by Paul Runyan, of White Plains, N. Y., who put together two 70s for 140.

Sam Parks, Jr., of the South Hills Country Club, Pittsburgh, had a 73 and a 74 for a total of 147, while Vincent Eldred, another Pittsburgher, took a 156 with rounds of 75 and 71.

SOME DAY

THIS MAN WILL TRY

Bayuk "PHILLIES"

This man has a one-track mind. He doesn't believe any cigar—for 5c—could please his taste.

But facts are this man's meat. And he's getting facts about Bayuk "Phillies" . . . from his friends—and from dealers who sell him cigars.

He now knows that Bayuk "Phillies" is NOT a 5c cigar but a guaranteed 10c value for 5c.

He is learning that Bayuk "Phillies" is now preferred by men who previously paid double or even triple its price for their cigars.

He is being told by dealers that Bayuk "Phillies" is their largest-selling cigar—and the cigar they recommend to experienced smokers.

Some day soon these facts will cause him to try Bayuk "Phillies". And if you're this man—you'll be amazed at the enjoyment you get from a cigar now selling for 5c.

Have YOU tried Bayuk "PHILLIES"

Bayuk's Guarantee

In 1929—a peak sales year—the Bayuk Philadelphia Perfecto (Familiarly known as "Philadelphia Handmade") was the largest-selling 10-cent brand in America.

Bayuk guarantees that this cigar today—at 5 cents—contains the same fine Imported Sumatra wrapper—the same fine ripe Domestic and Havana long-filler. It's the same identical cigar.

DUQUESNE, CARNEGIE TECH FIVES BATTLE TONIGHT

BLUFFITES OUT TO GET SHARE OF TITLE

Brenner	C	Croft
Reiter	G	Rigg
Moore	G	Silverman (AC)

Referee—Sykes Reed, Pitt.
Umpire—Ben Richman, Pitt.

By JESS CARVER

Carnegie Tech's varsity basketballers can cause a terrific commotion tonight should they happen to knock off the Dukes. The rival quintets wind up the city round-robin series as they meet in a return clash in the Dukes' gymnasium.

A Tech victory not only would knock the Dukes out of the claim they have on a split for the city championship, but pretty well would wash the Bluffites out of any claim they may be contemplating on the district laurels. However, Carnegie's chances of bumping Chick Davies and his lads are about as slim as a lot of gals would like to be.

The freshman quintets will clash in the preliminary scheduled to get under way at 7 o'clock. The varsity encounter will go on at 8:15.

Graduate Athletic Manager John D. Holohan, of the Dukes, last night admitted a break in basketball relations with Westminster, effective next season. He gave as a reason the fact that the locals will be limited to 20 games and will be meeting some new opponents. Dissatisfaction with the manner in which the Duke's game with Westminster at Sharon recently was handled is generally credited with having something to do with the situation, however.

A total of 14 bouts, barring unforseen defaults, will be offered in the Dukes' gym tomorow night. The varsity boxers engage Bucknell's punchers in an Eastern Intercollegiate session, and in addition to these battles, the finals of the local university's intra-mural tournament will be run off.

The pairings for the intramural bouts follows:

115 pounds—Shearin vs. Onderish.
125 pounds—Jordin vs. Kirk.
135 pounds—Madden vs. Parents.
145 pounds—Getty vs. Pronke.
155 pounds—Malitovsky vs. Cullen.
165 pounds—Mulvey vs. Hall.
175 pounds—Daily vs. Laputka.

Lawrenceville Floor Play Draw Made

The draw for first round games in both the senior and junior divisions of the Lawrenceville basketball tournament was made last night by Chick Davies, head coach at Duquesne University, and Ralph Waner.

The tournament will get under way at Foresters' Hall next Monday night. The first round draw follows:

FIRST-ROUND SENIORS

Graham Pipers vs. Glenshaw Merchants.
Greb Brothers vs. Old St. Patrick.
Westinghouse Cadets vs. Mohawks.
Tech Engineers vs. Flying Dutchman.
Pittsburgh Boys' Club vs. Pop Yetters.
Frank Ferris Club vs. Falcons.
Westinghouse Collegiates vs. St. Mary's Lyceum.
Chick Five vs. Chappie Wright Senators.

FIRST-ROUND JUNIORS

Forester Reserves vs. St. Hyacinth's Choir Boys.
Kremer Club vs. Chappie Wrights.
R. S. Cain vs. Burke Five.
Sheridan Arrows vs. Moffin M. E.
Individual Aces vs. Cochran Club.
Emhasy Club vs. Schenley Falcons.
Chick Five vs. Aspinwall Aces.
St. Peter's Boys' Club vs. Swissvale Aces.
Russ Armour vs. Bernhardt Pals.
Forest Hills Cadets vs. Duke A. C.
Pacific M. E. drew a bye.

TITLE BATTLE BY ROUNDS

the Champ took every advantage of his great size and hammered Tommy roughly in a corner. He leaned wearily on the Champ took another hard left hook to the head and then mightily heaved his right into Carnera's solar plexus. Tommy was dancing unsteadily at the bell.

Round Fourteen—Carnera galloped clumsily across the ring and heaved a left at Tommy's head but missed as the crowd laughed. Then danced in, ripping and swaping left jabs, but when Loughran buried a deep hook to the body the Champion smashed him with both hands. Loughran staggered backwards and Carnera followed him madly, shooting for a knockout. Three heavy left jabs and a thumping right rocked the challenger. Tommy retreated, the left side of his face swelling and Carnera chased him to the ropes. A left and right to the head and a left to the body drove Tommy cross-legged into a corner. Weakly the challenger swung two left hooks to the head but Carnera laughed as he drove him again to the ropes and belted Tommy's head with rights. Loughran was so dazed he went to Carnera's corner at the bell.

Round Fifteen—Loughran rallied desperately, jabbing a left to Carnera's body and a right to the head. The Champ chased him to the ropes and dropped a hard right on Tommy's chin. As they danced in mid-ring Loughran's defense was gone and Carnera stabbed him repeatedly with left jabs to the head. The crowd booed as Carnera pounded Tommy into another corner and never let up in his roughness. A left and right to the head and he reeled into a corner, badly beaten, as Carnera slugged his head with both hands. Carnera let up a bit, and jabbed the challenger's head, but in a few seconds Tore back again with all his might, forcing Tommy against the ropes and almost from the ring. Loughran reeled into a left jab and right cross to the jaw, but he stabbed back gallantly. Carnera was beating him with both hands at the bell.

HEARST TROPHY RACE OPEN IN FLORIDA

NEW SMYRNA, Fla., March 2.—(Universal.)—Qualifying for American drivers, a part of the international speedboat regatta, were resumed on the choppy Indian River here today.

Walter Elliott, first speedboat driver to take his qualifying trip, almost equalled the American record of 61.75 with an unofficial mark of 61.2. The official time was not revealed by race officials, who said all marks of American drivers seeking qualification would be kept secret. Elliott made three laps, a total distance of 5 miles.

Crack European outboard speedboat drivers, some of them titled, will pit their high-powered craft against a selected team of Americans in the first of a series of international tests beginning here today and Sunday, for the William Randolph Hearst trophy.

The William Randolph Hearst trophy is for the Class X international races, so called because of the use of a new Class X motor, never before used for racing in the United States. These power plants, limited only to a piston displacement of 738 cubic inches, are capable of grinding out 70 horsepower at 9,000 revolutions.

'HE CAN'T HIT,' LOUGHRAN

MIAMI, Fla., March 2.—The three officials who decided in Primo Carnera's favor over Tommy Loughran last night each gave the champion a wide margin on points. The referee, Leo Shea, and one judge Colin McLachlan, credited Primo with 10 rounds, while the other judge, Roy Lathan, scored 12 out of 15 for the titleholder.

Shea and McLachlan each gave Loughram only one round, with four even, the former giving Tommy the second and the latter conceding him the fourth. Lathan scored the fifth, sixth and tenth for Loughran. Thus not one of the trio agreed on any one of the rounds tallied for the challenger. All united, however, with the ringsiders in giving Carnera a wide margin the last five rounds.

In his dressing room after the fight, Loughran said he thought he could have gone on to win except for Carnera's repeated fouling, for which the champion was booed. He said:

"Carnera can't punch and he never hurt me. However, he fouled me with the use of backhand punches, holding and hitting, clubbing and repeatedly stepping on my feet. This took a lot of me, especially out of my legs. In the eleventh round, he bruised my foot when he stepped on it and this slowed me down. I am not quibbling about the decision, but I would not hesitate to fight him again."

Carnera admitted he learned a lot about boxing from the smaller man and said Loughran had hurt him with both lefts and rights.

The referee spoke very firmly to Carnera at the time, but somehow Loughran didn't feel comforted. Tommy took the third and fourth and got an even break in the sixth with rapid lefts to the face and an occasional right to the body and jaw. Carnera tried to pretend that he wasn't being bothered by Loughran's right cross.

FADES AFTER SEVENTH

Nevertheless, he still had his health, whereas Loughran was so tired from all the wrestling and brawling that he ceased trying to circle the giant with the start of the seventh. And the start of the seventh was the finish of Loughran. From that moment, he never took a round, and, at the end, it was only a question of whether he would be able to last to the final bell.

That he did must forever remain a rebuke to Carnera's ability.

The gate for this comical event was bad enough, $39,000, establishing an all-time low for heavyweight championship endeavors. But Carnera's performance was even worse. He wasn't exactly bad, he was awful, and I can't help but think that this ineptitude is permanent.

SCOTT, DORMONT WIN

The Scott High School passers, of North Braddock, and Dormont advanced in the W. P. I. A. L. elimination play last night. Scott, champion of Section VIII, defeated Latrobe, Section X rulers, 41 to 26, on the Irwin High School floor. Dormont had to spurt in the last period to beat Washington, of Section XV, 37 to 31.

The Dormont victory has been protested, Coach Cox, of Washington, objecting to a ruling made by Referee Dave Fawcett. Fawcett was stricken with a stomach cramp in the second half of the game and while doubled up with pain in the middle of the floor, blew his whistle just before Watson, Washington forward, made a field goal. The goal was not allowed.

Revere Foster, Dormont's bespectacled forward, was the hero of the game, accounting for nine consecutive points in the last period to establish his team's safe margin. Washington had come from behind in the third period to crawl up to within a point of the Dormonters.

Scott had little difficulty in outclassing Latrobe after the first period. The passing of the Section X quintet gave it a lead at 11 to 8, but after that it was all Scott. The lineups:

Chickie's Daughter

rious, it's because of you and the way I feel. In olden times men of 21 became kings and generals. They were grown up at 16. The olden times were right.

"It's only economics and the way the modern world shells out the coin that makes them laugh at us when we're 21. We can't get enough money to assume responsibility before we're 30.

"Every fellow knows that, but he knows, too, that at 21 he's as much man as he's ever going to be, except for judgment and experience, and you don't need those things to know you're in love and that you've found the girl you've always wanted."

View of Life

Pippin's eyes glistened. Her hand tightened spontaneously on his.

"I believe that too, Bill. I know we can feel as much as we're ever going to feel, but we do need experience. I hope I'm not going to fall in love for a few years yet."

"You didn't mean that about acquiring a past, did you, Pippin? Some girls do go out deliberately to get experience and 'learn the score' as they say. They think it's the thing to do. Maybe it's all right for them. It would be awful for you."

"Why should it be awful for me?"

"It would. Besides you couldn't get away with it."

"Is that an insult or what? Bill, you wouldn't really expect a girl to settle down without a few gay affairs first, would you?"

"What do you mean by 'gay affairs'?"

"Oh—drifting about Venice in a gondola and having gorgeous Romeos singing in my ear!"

"Not other things, Pippin?"

"Like what?"

"You're too young. You don't even figure it. You won't."

She glanced up, saw the young man's face intently pale and serious. It gave her a queer, stabbing little joy.

A number of times Chickie tried to draw her out. Pippin had the young girl's reluctance to reveal her thoughts. She grew flippant or evaded.

Chickie Worried

But one night she offered:

"He wants to give me a bracelet so that I'll remember him and write. Isn't that exciting?"

"Do you want to take it?"

"I couldn't. I'd feel queer. He says he wouldn't regard it seriously. But he might. I don't want him to . . .! I never want anyone to have a SLIGHT hold on me. When I take a bracelet it's going to mean everything. Take all—give all. That's my type, mother. Know that?"

Chickie turned her head sharply, her eyes sh... in's sudden candor—her ...rg fluent naive candor ...r weak and speechless. ...know that sacrificing. Did she know that wild ...ating wish to lose one's s... another?

"It IS your type, Pippin. ... a fine type. I'm sure of t... but the greatest sin in t... world is to spend oneself with... out consideration and without stern demand that an adequate return be made. It isn't generosity. It isn't fulfillment. It's weakness. It's gross, blind stupidity, I KNOW."

Then Chickie would have spoken . . . would have brought out the anguished past. A long time she had intended to speak.

But Pippin in a little rush put young arms about her mother's neck:

"Darling, you're worried! I know what you're thinking. Some girls do things, not because they want to, but to please another. Like Emmie Lawton . . . But don't ever worry about me. I'll never be that kind of weak sister. Anything that happens to me will be because I WANTED it to happen. I'm hard. Like Janina."

"What would Emmie do?"

"Anything. It's awful about Emmie. She's so mad about Jack. She'll do ANYTHING—yes, ANYTHING to keep him. He's not worth it."

Confides in Daughter

"No man is, Pippin . . . No matter how fine Jack might be, he couldn't be worth the sacrifice of Emmie's self. Sacrifice is that kind of a gift. It hurts the one who takes even more than the one who gives. It forces on him a thing which should never be offered. He takes it and is shamed, is resentful, is furious. Sacrifice makes the recipient a cheat, the giver a bankrupt."

"You're right, mother," said the girl, blandly. "Besides, I don't see this petting stuff. It makes me sick. I can't bear to be mauled. It's such a silly bore.

"That's why I like Bill. He's sweet—really, he is. He has finesse. You look like an angel sitting there. I'm glad I picked you for a mother."

Pippin closed her eyes, her lips still rippling with the last drowsy word. She was asleep.

Chickie looked into the lovely, ardent young face. She touched the live gold hair. It was electric. Everything about Pippin was surcharged with youth and passion.

Chickie murmured, feeling quiet—a kind of desperate quiet:

"She has his brain . . . his courage. It will stand her."

She meant that David's gifts to the girl would outbalance hers. She hoped so. Only God could know how wildly she hoped it.

HOOKER'S EMIGRATION TO CONNECTICUT—UNION OF NEW ENGLAND

Thomas Hooker, English Puritan clergyman, who fled to Holland in 1630, immigrated in 1633 to New England, soon becoming influential.

He was instrumental in driving Roger Williams to today's Rhode Island, latter honored as its founder.

Hooker himself, with his followers in 1636 left and settled in the Valley of the Connecticut River, laying the foundations of today's state. He was active in bringing about a confederation of the New England settlements as protection against Indians and the Dutch. The "Union of New England" (1643) was the first attempt to organize federal government in America.

The territories of Mass., R. I., Conn., Me., N. H., Vt. (not settled at that time) were originally included in the grants (1606, 1620) to the London Co., by James I, King of England.

The charters granted and the property rights sold by the London Co. (meanwhile reorganized) were in many instances overlapping, giving rise to long controversies. Mass., New York, for example claimed authority over New Hampshire, Maine, Vermont. Some of these disputes outlived the War of Independence. (U. S. History)

TENNESSEE VALLEY AUTHORITY—MUSCLE SHOALS

The Public act 17, recommended by President Roosevelt to the 73d Congress, approved May 18, 1933 created the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA), a corporation empowered to finish, enlarge, and operate the hyrdoelectric development of the Tennessee River at Muscle Shoals, also at other points. It will produce and distribute cheap electric power and fertilizer, assisting in the agricultural and industrial improvements of neighboring states. EHFA (Electric Home and Farm Authority, Inc.), a subsidiary of TVA., is to finance consumers purchasing electric appliances, helping to design apparatus best adapted to needs of consumer. (Probl. ELECTRICITY: ENERGY, CONSTITUENT OF MATTER

Electricity is a form of energy (ability to do work) and also the ultimate constituent of matter which is composed of protons (positive) and electrons (negative) particles of electricity.

The same kind of electric particles repell, different attract each other. All protons and fixed electrons—locked in the nucleus of the atom—cannot move without the atom; but some of the electrons, which are free in conductors, can move. The flow of these electrons constitute the electric current. Insulators have no free electrons.

Glass, rubbed with silk, loses electrons, becomes positively charged, attracts electrons of nearby body, which, if light, move toward glass.

Rod (A) negatively charged (more electrons than normally) repells electrons from near toward far end of conductor (B); the former will become positively, the latter negatively charged. This influence is called electrostatic induction. (21-III-B)

JUNIOR PATROL

No honest fellow cheats in school, fellows!

We are hoping that no Junior Patrol member copies his lesson or test from another student. Worst of all, copying and cheating makes a fellow's brain lazy.

It seems to be true that many people, even grown up people, have lazy brains—they don't like to think themselves, and so they are willing to let other people think for them.

That is a bad habit, fellows. If you let other people think for you, they can boss you and tell you what to do. And they won't pay you so much to work for them.

If you are ever tempted to copy an answer in your school work, just remember, you are hurting yourself. Someone else is thinking for you.

Then, too, how do you know you are copying the right answer? Everybody makes mistakes. Learn the lesson yourself, so that oyu know it's right. Don't depend on somebody else to have the right answer.

Now here is a dandy letter from Shirley Ann Allen, of 636 Park avenue, Clairton, Pa., She writes:

"I am having my mother write you a letter and send two pledges, one for me and one for my little sister. We hope that we are not too little to belong to the Junior Patrol. I help my mother by picking up the papers, dressing myself, and keeping our toys put away. I am five years old and Martha Faye is two. We both like to hear what Junior has to say and have the funny papers read to us. Please send us the cards and badges if we are not too little."

You can't be too small to join the Junior Patrol, Shirley Ann, just so you are a good girl and you are willing to help others. We liked your letter very much, and we know your mother and father must be proud of both you and your little sister, Martha Faye. So we are sending the badges and cards right away quick. You should get them soon. We hope you will write again and tell us more about your town and home.

Then, we have a letter now from Capt. Adelaide Rockliffe, of Forest Hills, Pa. Her club is going along fine, she says, and not long ago celebrated the birthday of one of the members. She has 11 members. We'll be sending your armband right away, Adelaide.

JUNIOR PATROL PLEDGE

I promise to help children less fortunate than I am.
I promise to do my best to make my parents proud of me.
I promise to watch carefully when crossing streets and to aid other children in keeping out of danger.
I promise to study hard and do errands willingly.
I promise to be a 100% Junior Patrol member.

The Bug Investigates Thirsts

With March a long way to go and no way of stopping it, our roving commissions report on the first two months of 1934.

We sent these small but determined posses out to note the difference between prohibition and repeal.

We furnished them with a sum of money and microscopes. All the committees reported progress. But not in a straight line.

Well, you could fan us over with a West Indian typhoon if the commish didn't claim that there was no difference. If there was, it was not visible to the bleared eye.

We know it will raise many protests from the drys to hear what we are going to say. Repeal is the soberest, the most temperate and the more reasonable.

It may be due to atmospheric conditions and human nature. One commissioner said it was caused by high prices. We fired him right away. We want fair and honest commissioning provided it agrees with our ideas. We have precedent for them.

It seems that no longer does the college youth carry the festive silver flask on his downy hip. No more does he shriek on the campus or waddle in the frat house. Silver flasks are no longer pro tem. And when a thing is out of fashion, let the dead past annoy no life insurance agent.

We have cafes, yes. We have barrooms, ditto. We have cabarets and night clubs. But the drinking has moderated. A more sober people have throttled it down to one drink at a time.

In the old days they tried to get it all at once, like a camel at a Saharan well. Now, they realize it will still be here tomorrow, and they go at it more sanely.

True, some of the boys get out of line, due to effervescence and evaporation in transit. But the older majority is handling the juice of the vine with hauteur and aplomb.

They know it is going to be here a long time. And they want to be around the same length of distance. Another item is that there is no longer the forbidden fruit angle connected with liquor. The speakeasy glamour and romance has passed on. There are no paid guides, because everybody knows where to get it.

That's our story. And we're like the red ant that got on the flypaper. We don't belong there. But we stick to it just the same. Let's be going.

What Is Park's Excuse?

The District Attorney's Failure to Prosecute the 1932 Election Crooks Is Puzzling

Forty-eight election officials have been convicted up to this writing, in eleven trials in the United States District Court, of falsifying and altering ballots in the congressional elections of November, 1932, in Allegheny County. A number of other defendants in these cases are awaiting trial.

As this impressive record of convictions is considered; as the immense amount of testimony of fraud is studied, the question inevitably rises, Why did not District Attorney Andrew T. Park prosecute these cases?

mitted were offenses against the Com- vania as well as against the United States. It is customary to prosecute such cases in the state courts, and very unusual to prosecute them in the federal courts.

Immediately after the 1932 election the cry of "fraud" was raised from the housetops. But although District Attorney Park has a force of county detectives through whom the charge could have been investigated he instituted no prosecutions.

It was because of his negligence that the federal government, at considerable inconvenience, stepped in.

What excuse can Park offer?

The Pitt Building Drive

The Community Should Welcome the Opportunity To Get the Cathedral Finished

The community should welcome, and we believe does welcome, the announcement of Chancellor John G. Bowman, of the University of Pittsburgh, that a $1,650,000 subscription campaign will be conducted shortly to finish the Cathedral of Learning.

The Cathedral will be "Pittsburgh's Pride" if finished. If left to stand much longer in an uncompleted condition it will become known as "Pittsburgh's Folly."

Every consideration of civic pride dictates that the job be finished without further delay.

The University of Pittsburgh has made astonishing strides during the 14 years in which Dr. Bowman has been in charge. The student enrollment has doubled, the faculty has been strengthened, the debt has been wiped out. Dr. Bowman has plans which, if carried out, will make Pittsburgh one of the world's famous centers of learning.

But the program requires the early completion of the Cathedral—an enterprise in which all loyal Pittsburghers should be glad to help.

What the NRA Costs

Business Statistics Show Recovery Slowed Down After Gen. Johnson Got Busy

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, National Recovery Administrator, acts on the theory that the proper response to criticism of the NRA is to "crack down" on the critic.

But statistics cannot be browbeaten by such tactics.

A survey made by the National Industrial Conference Board indicates that the recovery process during 1933 was MORE EFFECTIVE BEFORE THE NRA GOT UNDER WAY.

The data presented confirm the opinion of William Randolph Hearst that, though the NRA may be desirable as social legislation, it does not primarily constitute an instrument of economic recovery.

In summarizing the course of general business before and after Gen. Johnson got on the front page, the National Industrial Conference Board pointed out:

"After March, 1933, PRODUCTION INCREASED SHARPLY until July, and prices rose in less degree. Labor cost per man-hour was somewhat less, and, aided by better plant utilization, labor cost per unit of product was reduced.

"After July PRODUCTION FELL ABRUPTLY, and prices rose slightly.

"The higher wage rates imposed by government policy increased labor cost per man-hour, curtailment of hours lessened the efficiency of plant operation, and introduction of new employes lowered the average efficiency of the working force.

"As a result, labor cost per unit of product increased, and labor cost in relation to manufacturers' gross income rose."

After a quarter of a year, business again began to show recovery tendencies, indicating that the fundamental forward trend was stronger than the artificial obstacles set up.

Constructive policies of the administration, including acceleration of public works, banking and monetary reform, and narrowing of price gaps through farm relief, are working strongly in behalf of economic recovery.

The main effort of government should be put vigorously behind the actual agencies of RECOVERY.

How the Boys Kept Warm

Zero Weather Produces an Extraordinary Amount of Wood Cutting in State Forests

Dr. Frank A. Evans tells us in an article in the current number of the Pittsburgh Medical Bulletin that chemical oxidation, which is a sort of slow combustion, goes on in the body mechanism when power is developed from which motion is derived.

The Civilian Conservation Corps boys in the Pennsylvania state forests showed full appreciation during the recent sub-zero weather of this principle of human physiology.

They asked to be given duties that would call for muscular exertion which would keep them warm. And so they were assigned to improvement cutting, which requires the wielding of an axe.

Secretary Lewis E. Staley, of the Department of Forests and Waters, reports that as a direct result of the extremely cold weather 4,000 acres of the state forests were given improvement cutting during the past month, which is more than had been accomplished since the CCC boys' arrival in the Pennsylvania camps last spring.

Although the fact that muscular exercise makes one warm is a commonplace truism, it is none the less wonderful on that account as a chemical phenomenon.

Stay Home and Saw Wood!

League Court propaganda is persistent as well as pestiferous.

Pacifist organizations are circulating petitions to Congress throughout the country, asking citizens to sign.

These petitions call upon the Government to declare the conditions under which America will become a League Court member.

There is only one answer—UNDER NO CONDITIONS—and both Congress and the country gave that answer long ago.

The League Court has only one important decision on its record. That was a decision against the Anschluss or Customs Union plan of Austria and Germany, and the adverse decision was a POLITICAL DECISION. France and her satellite little nations outvoted the big Powers and handed the decision down from the League Court bench because it was a decision that FRANCE WANTED.

This country has no business in Old World politics. We have problems enough at home. So let Uncle Sam STAY HOME and SAW WOOD.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, March 2.—Thoughts while strolling: Those windows of cashew nuts make a fellow want to sneeze. Arthur Brisbane and Deems Taylor have the same towering foreheads. That wag depositor who pul's his pockets inside out whenever he passed the closed Harriman Bank.

One word description of Ruth Chatterton — whimpery. Chorus girls can sustain conversation all evening with just one line, "Aren't you wunner-ful?" Florence Rice, to clinch a stage part, learned to play the piano and sing in two months. Whatever became of Josie Collins?

Albert Lasker never misses a new movie. Spooky the way a window curtain flies up whenever I get lost in reverie. And if I were a sketcher of metropolitan types, I'd plant my easel in Bryant Park at sun-down. Abe Lyman's expressive hands. Jim Carroll's fat cigar.

Bernard Baruch's offhand ease. The Globe always reminds me of a press agent taking me to an actress's dressing room for an interview, knocking and inquiring: "Are you decent?" The first time I ever heard the stage idiom for "Are you dressed?" Dorothy Gish and June Lillibridge look alike.

One of my favorite people — Dick Patterson. Of all my books I think I prize most a 45-cent second hand Addison's Spectator. Wonder if J. P. Morgan ever talked baby talk to anyone. Those fellows who step from doorways and call Buddy. Could it be they take me for Buddy Rogers?

I thought tremulous Helen Morgan was the only public performer whose graceful hands fluttered like aspen leaves before the audience. But it seems such nervousness affects some old-timers. George M. Cohan, for instance. In holding a song he sang over the air recently, a close-up revealed his hands twitching in wild tremor.

Even the thriller type of magazines have thumbs-downed on gangster fiction. With the movies and radio banging the idea, too, the channel of glorification now narrows to tabloids. The gangster, from Gyp the Blood to Legs Diamond, has proved a miserable sort of rat, who uses a machine gun at the expense of innocent children and whose courage is solely from liquor and drugs.

I have picked up a morning bowing acquaintance with a group of shills—two women and three men—in a jewelry auction room in West Forty-second street. They arrive about 11 o'clock to group about the auctioneer and look like customers. After frequently passing the place at that time of day, looking in, I finally began to bow and they to return it. There is a comic sheepishness about them, the guilty flush of "After all, we must make a living." And, too, they get to meet all kinds of people.

So many delightful vistas greet the eye of the New York saunterer. I think especially of those bonfires of red at the foot of every cross street at sundown. To the sentimental, all the city's faulty helter-skelter becomes suddenly precious. Sunsets will always to the impressionable give a new clutch to the unknowable. They are beacons of something far beyond, a heavenly testament of affection that somewhere all is well. I know many sunset lovers—George Gershwin, Charles M. Schwab, Doris Kenyon, Tom Mix and others whose names at the moment are fugitive.

One unforgettable sunset, a long swing back in time, was from a Santa Fe observation platform crossing Arizona's desert. The occupant of the only other chair was a fat, roughish fellow I did not then know personally but the world knew as Fatty Arbuckle. Under the prismatic spell of the dying splendor he sat rigid until the landscape was eclipsed by dusk. The train lights came on. He was wiping away a tear hurriedly, clumsily. And through all the vicissitudes he later passed I could never somehow believe he was bad as painted. He loved the sunset.

Maj. Edward Bowes is supremely militaristic. He thinks in the precise formations of squads and platoons and his vast affairs are meticulously orderly. His friends say jokingly when he was elevated to high rank his pajamas were epauleted and he went to sleep with his sword. Anyway when his lovely wife, the former Margaret Illington, thanked friends for a profusion of flowers after a surgical operation her cards read: "Mrs. Major Operation Bowes thanks you very much!"

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Can Anything Make Us New?

I was in a hurry . . . late for an appointment . . . so I took a cross-cut over the city.

Something about the quiet street seemed familiar. That swoop of cypress branch across a crumbling wall . . . the stone bench in the pool of warm, blue shadow underneath . . . the spangle of bright sky caught in the broken grill . . .

Now I remembered! But how long was it since I had passed that way? Twenty—no, more than 30 years! Yet in a flash they were gone, and I was a girl again—the girl who once had raced along that old, flagged walk.

What a hurry she had always been in—that far away youngster! So excited about everything . . . so inquisitive, furious and delighted . . . so achingly in love with life. And now—

Suddenly I hated the woman who stood in that girl's place. What had she done with that shining young enthusiasm, those brave young dreams? Why had she—why have all, who once were warm and eager—grown so cold and empty with the passing years? Is it inevitable? Does life fail us? Must we become like that if we live too long, too much?

I knew the answer. It was not inevitable! We do not age because we live too long or too much. WE AGE BECAUSE WE DO NOT LIVE ENOUGH!

That lost girl had what it took for great living . . . courage, curiosity, faith, fury, tenderness, joy. BUT SHE DID NOT HAVE THESE THINGS MERELY BECAUSE SHE WAS YOUNG. SHE HAD THEM BECAUSE SHE WAS OPEN TO LIFE. AND LIFE, IN RETURN, FILLED HER WITH ITS WARM AND RACING TIDE.

Then, with the years, she drew apart from life. Unconsciously laziness, cowardice and conceit formed a shell about her . . . shut life out . . . shut her away from those challenges and conflicts that once kept her fresh and fit. She grew cold and empty—and old.

The years did not make her old. Years, by themselves, do not make any of us old. Unknowingly, we make ourselves empty and old and cold by shutting life out. Then some day, at some turn in the road, we come upon our lost selves and realize the truth, with incredulous dismay.

Surely we have not lost that radiant youth forever! It can not, must not, be that life shall end in such a drab defeat. Is there not still a chance for us . . . some blessed magic that will make us new again . . . something that will restore that vanished eagerness and joy?

Standing there, at my road's turning, that cry rose in me, as it has risen in you . . . as it must rise in each of us some day—IS THERE NOT SOMETHING THAT WILL MAKE US NEW?

Something "to make us new." Where had I last seen that expression? In a prayer . . . Augusta Thomson's "Canticles of Love." Religious? Yes, but is there any religion in human need? Rather, is not all need "religion?" Do we not all pray when we cry, in hunger and remorse—

"If I could only be young again! Start all over again?"

Like an answer, whispering, the gentle words came back:

"Slowly, with infinite care and tenderness beyond all thinking, Thou dost return in[illegible] heart that[illegible]ee, yet ...stored not this Possession. Why dost Thou ever return? There is no reason why, except that Thou lovest us. 'BEHOLD! I MAKE ALL THINGS NEW!' Make my heart new that it may love Thee with a perfect love. Make my mind new that it may forget its knowledge of evil."

"Behold! I make all things new." Old words; how often I had heard them as a youngster. Yet now, for the first time, they lived for me. Perhaps because, for the first time, I realized my need of them . . . realized that I had "not treasured" that "possession" without which our existence is meaningless.

Life, Love, or God . . . call it what name you will . . . once it was ours. Once we were filled with something which made every hour radiant. And then it passed. Our hearts grew cold and old.

But did they need to? No! Love did not leave us . . . Life did not fail us . . . WE FAILED LOVE AND LIFE. We closed the door . . . built a hard shell of laziness, conceit and fear.

But is it too late, now, to find our youth again? Is there not magic which will make us new? There is!

An open heart where love may flow again;

An eager mind, where light may shine again;

And willing flesh, where life may stir again—

UNDO THE DOOR, AND LIFE WILL MAKE YOU NEW.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

You Can Always Tell—

You can always tell whether a girl is marrying for love—or just for experiment, or for adventure, or for glamor—or "for instance."

Because, while a man usually marries for one of two reasons—for love or for money—a woman may marry for any one of a dozen reasons.

You can tell when a girl is marrying for love by noting whether she concentrates most of her enthusiasm on selecting hats and shoes and evening gowns for her trousseau, or shows more interest in tea gowns, negligees, bungalow aprons and filling her hope chest with tea towels and serviettes.

You can tell when a girl is marrying for love or for something else, again, by her choice of a honeymoon trip, and whether she wants to spend those glamorous weeks in some far-off, romantic place where they can be alone together—or whether she wants to go to New York or Paris or Monte Carlo, where they can see people and go places and do things.

* * *

You can tell whether a girl is marrying for love or for something more "substantial" and material, by following her through the shops and observing whether she stops to glance at baby clothes and perambulators—or seems to be more violently interested in square cut diamonds and slave bracelets and the newest model of motor cars.

* * *

You can tell whether a girl is marrying for love or for something less substantial and more frivolous, by noting whether she insists on a big "show wedding," which will make a splash in all the rotagravure sections—or would rather just slip off quietly to the City Hall or The Little Church Around the Corner or the nearest Gretna Green and soft-pedal the whole thing.

You can tell whether a girl is marrying for love, or just as a last resort or as an escape from stenography, by observing whether she seems to take a vital and practical interest in furnishing her new home, arranging for her wedding and shopping for her trousseau—or whether she seems dreamy and distrait and is constantly boring you with panegyrics on her fiance's wisdom, charms and virtues.

Oh yes, you can always tell whether or not a girl is marrying, just for love. Everyboy can tell—except the MAN! And he is usually too dazzled by his own emotions or too frightened at the prospect of marriage, to be able to see what he's heading for. There is something about the proximity of a wedding that strikes a man with Love-blindness!

Farley Admits Ignorance, Haste in Air Mail Action

By James T. Williams, Jr.

As a witness before the Senate's special committee on investigation of air mail and ocean mail contracts, Postmaster General Farley gave sensational testimony last Saturday afternoon, which appears to have been almost wholly overlooked by many, if not most, of the Sunday newspapers of the country.

Many Senators in Congress did not hear of this testimony until they were told by several members of the committee within the last day or two that it had been given. Even now, some Senators are still ignorant of this testimony for the following reasons:

The up-to-date report of the proceedings of this special committee, of which Senator Hugo Lafayette Black, of Alabama, is chairman, are not yet available in printed form either to the Senate or the House of Representatives, much less to the press and the people of the United States.

Although the so-called Black committee, which began investigating ocean mail contracts last September, did not reach airmail contracts until after Christmas, the printed copies of the hearing available at this writing cover only the testimony given up to and including January 18 of this year.

This means that neither the Senate nor the House can base any legislation regarding domestic airmail contracts on the testimony given on that subject before the so-called Black committee because none of the testimony since January 18 is yet in print. And the mimeographed copies of the testimony are distributed only to the members of the Senate's special committee.

Admissions of Mr. Farley

IT is from one of these mimeographed copies that the admissions of Mr. Farley of Saturday last, listed below, are taken.

Mr. Farley admitted that up to the thirtieth of January last he had ratified and confirmed domestic airmail contracts as entirely legal.

Mr. Farley admitted that he did not change his judgment regarding the legality of these contracts until sometime between January 30 and February 6.

Mr. Farley admitted that he did not write the letter which he signed on February 14, last, notifying Senator Black, as chairman of the special Senate committee, of his intention to cancel all domestic airmail contracts upon the ground that they were illegal.

Mr. Farley admitted that his letter which he signed was prepared by the solicitor of the department, Mr. Crowley "with Mr. Ristine, and with the Attorney General of the United States."

Mr. Farley admitted that the following section of the postal laws and regulations had never been specifically called to his attention:

"In all cases of regular contract, the contract may, in the discretion of the Postmaster General, be continued in force beyond its express terms for a period not exceeding six months, until a new contract with the same or other contractors shall be made by the Postmaster General."

Testimony Deserved Greater Attention

HAD this procedure been followed, the six heroes of the Army Air Corps who were sent to an unnecessary death last week would still be flying the colors; the airline pilots would still be flying the mails; no American citizen would have been convicted as guilty without a hearing; American air transport would not now be shattered by a crippling blow; and the Army Air Corps would not now be paralyzed as a vital arm of the national defense.

The importance of the sensational admissions by Mr. Farley as a witness before the so-called Black committee last Saturday afternoon would seem to have merited more attention around the Sunday morning breakfast table of the American people than they got, due to the fact that so few of these admissions have yet seen the light of print.

In view of this fact, the Senate may go to the rescue of the American people in their eagerness for the truth and order the insertion hereafter in the Congressional Record of each day's proceedings of all testimony taken at the hearings before the special committee of which Senator Hugo Lafayette Black is the chairman and chief pilot.

Human Side of the News

The Case of Grover Bergdoll—John Tasker Howard's Biography of Stephen C. Foster

By Edwin C. Hill

A WOMAN past 70—short, heavy set, her gray hair drawn back in a knot—sits in her mansion in a suburb of Philadelphia and writes to the President of the United States. She is Mrs. Emma Bergdoll and she begs Mr. Roosevelt to grant a pardon to her son, Grover, who is now and has been for the past 15 years a fugitive from justice. The mother, with little of the determination of defiance which marked her aid and the defense of the two sons who refused to serve in the American Army, says today that she was prompted to ask the amnesty through a desire to see the son and his three children before she dies.

It was only last Christmas that the President restored to citizenship her son, Erwin, who had served four years in federal prison for evading the draft. The circumstances of Grover Bergdoll's escape are well known. He was arrested in his mother's home, court-martialed and sentenced to five years. This was in 1920.

He told the officers on Governor's Island that he had buried a pot of gold in the West Maryland mountains and under a small guard was sent to recover it. He got to Philadelphia and with his mothers' aid made his escape, reached Germany, where he was accepted as a hero, and where two American army sergeants were almost lynched when they tried to arrest him after the Rhine Occupation. He married and is forty now. His mother has visited him at least once in recent years.

The Bergdoll family made its wealth in Philadelphia, branching out from a small brewery into a large one with extensive real estate holdings. The sons were born in the United States. Grover was a speed maniac and something of a daredevil, and he tried in 1914 to enlist as a German aviator through the German Consul General.

The only reason why Erwin and Grover Bergdoll, two American citizens, refused to serve their country was that they loved Germany more. And their mother was most aggressive in their support. But she is old now—nearing the end. Perhaps the President will show the clemency that is asked. Perhaps he should. Time cures many things.

Popularity of Foster's Songs

I SUPPOSE that there is never a day or an evening in all the United States that some one is not singing or playing the simple melodies that have touched the hearts of our people generally, almost more than any music ever written. These melodies may go out on the air from great orchestras and noted singers, or echo gently on rural countrysides from piano or family organ. But always, somewhere, warm and moving echoes of "My Old Kentucky Home," "Suwanee River," "Old Black Joe," "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground"—the songs of Stephen Foster, of Pittsburgh, the first American troubadour.

How many know that it was just seventy years ago that the wasted form of Stephen Foster, who had touched the hearts of millions, whose simple songs are immortal, was carried from a ward in Bellevue Hospital in New York to the place of the dead below? Dead at thirty-eight, this young man who wrote music of such wistful sweetness. Yet an end of bitter tragedy, his handsome, slender body and poetic face wrecked by dissipation, talents destroyed, illness, death.

His Songs Marked By Melancholy

THE story is told by John Tasker Howard in his new book on Stephen Foster. His genius was spontaneous. It caught fire from the old Negro spirituals of the South, the chanting, mournful songs sung by the slaves as they toiled in the cotton fields or sat in front of their cabins in the dusk. Melancholy was deep within them, an underlying strain, a prophecy of the tragedy of Foster's own life. The Forty-Niners who swarmed across the plains to the golden lure of California dared desert and mountain and the Red Indian to the tune of Stephen Foster's "O, Susanna." And then he wrote the song which has been sold in a greater number of copies than even "Home, Sweet Home"—"Suwanee River", although Stephen Foster had never been in Florida, never seen the little Suwanee, had never heard of it until his brother suggested it as a gentle, flowing title.

His best years were between 1850 and 1860, for then he wrote "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground," "Old Folks at Home," and "My Old Kentucky Home." In those years he prospered, but he was not a genius upon whom the gods looked kindly, and so he passed, 70 years ago, in darkness and despair. Only his haunting melodies remain.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

As an old fellow, you may feel somewhat flattered if invited by younger men to accompany them on their trips to the big games and other attractions.

In order to show you are a "good sport" you are likely to go beyond the bounds of propriety and justice to yourself.

Young fellows are conceded certain liberties in which you, as an older or middle-aged man, should not indulge.

And should the younger men invite you to do the things that you know you should not do, they won't respect you if you accept their invitations.

They have a certain degree of respect for you that causes them to surround you with certain ideals.

When you shatter their ideals of you, you have dropped far in their estimation.

It should not be difficult for you to courteously refuse a request to go beyond the limits your age and position set for you.

You will not lose prestige with the younger fellows (if they are the right sort) if you decline to accept suggestions which they know you should not accept.

Even if they lose interest in you because you refuse to cast aside the principles that you know as an older man you should preserve, they will honor you for it and you will have their respect, if not their society.
